BRITISH OPEN ASSAULT ON ROMMEL

Japanese Close in Upon Guadalcanal Island

Severe Naval Losses Are Dealt by Allied Bombers; Flank Attack Is Beaten

Grumman Wildcats Intercept Jap Fighter Planes in Attempt to Raid Airfield and Drive Enemy Away; Ten Jap Vessels Hit

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP).—Japanese invasion forces, dealt a severe naval loss by Allied bombers in the southwestern Pacific, apparently were closing in on embattled Guadalcanal Island today for an all-out assault on the American-held airbase.

Disclosing that the Japanese had landed on Russell Island, about 30 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, naval spokesmen acknowledged that the invaders might have established similar positions on other neighboring small islands.

While the Navy reported yesterday additional destruction of 12 Nipponese planes and repulse of a second enemy "feeler" attack on the Guadalcanal airfield, heavy bombers under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Australian command sank or badly damaged 10 Japanese vessels including a cruiser.

Raiding with "deadly effect," allied headquarters said, the bombers dumped explosives on the cruiser, a destroyer and eight transports or cargo ships at Rabaul, New Britain, just west of Bougainville Island in the Solomons.

The low-level attack before dawn yesterday (Australian time) was believed to have sunk the cruiser, destroyer and two large merchant vessels while severely damaging the other ships, the communique said.

The Japanese flank attack on troops holding the Guadalcanal airfield occurred October 21 and was the second in two days to be driven back. The maneuver was regarded as a test of the American force's strength but if successful might have been followed by heavy waves of enemy soldiers concentrated in the northwest portion of the island.

On the same day, seven enemy bombers with a fighter escort sought to bomb the airfield, springboard of the U. S. aerial offensive.

One bomber was shot down by anti-aircraft batteries and two others were damaged. Grumman Wildcat fighters intercepted the Japanese fighter planes and destroyed six of them, the navy added, at the cost of two "Wildcats."

Several groups of enemy planes renewed the attack the next day. Flying conditions were poor, the navy said, but the Wildcats shot down an entire attacking group of five bombers.

American positions on Espiritu Santo Island in the New Hebrides were shelled the night of October 22 by an enemy ship, presumably a submarine.

The allied bombing raid on Japanese naval concentrations, believed to be sparring for an invasion opening, was the second in two days. Cooperating with the American command in the Solomons, the planes from Australian bases previously dropped 10 tons of bombs on Japanese vessels in Bougainville's Buin Harbor.

The allied and American aerial attacks since the strong enemy naval forces were sighted about 10 days ago thus far have sunk or damaged five Japanese cruisers, 10 destroyers and 14 other ships, mostly transports.

Meantime, the unsuccessful Japanese drive for the allied Port Moresby base in New Guinea was subjected to a continued Australian offensive which has succeeded in pushing enemy troops back toward their Kokoda invasion base.

Overdue on Flight

The War Department reported that Captain E. V. ("Eddie") Rickenbacker, flying ace of the first World War, was two days overdue on an official inspection flight between Oahu and other islands in the Pacific.

2.54 Inches of Rain

Although rain fell in Kingston on Friday it was not in sufficient quantity to register on the rain guage located on the roof of the city hall. So far this month the guage has recorded a precipitation of 2.54 inches of rain in the city. Temperatures on Friday in the city ranged from a low of 53 degrees to a high of 66 degrees, according to the records in the city engineer's office.

Hunting Licenses

City Clerk Leo P. Fennelly said today that so far this week his office had issued a total of 280 hunting licenses. A number of the licenses were issued to boys from 14 to 16 years of age. This is the largest number of hunting licenses to be issued in a single week in many years by the city clerk. The city clerk also issued a number of combination hunting and fishing licenses.

Americans Search Ocean for Airmen

Rickenbacker, Crew Are Object of Pacific Patrol; Planes, Ships Assist

Honolulu, Oct. 24 (AP)—American war birds of '42 were in the sky over distant Pacific waters today searching the sea for Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, Uncle Sam's ace eagle of '18.

The War Department said Rickenbacker, on an inspection trip for Lieut. General H. H. Arnold, army air force commander, had not been heard from since Wednesday evening when he reported only one hour's supply of gasoline remained in his plane's tanks.

At that time, Rickenbacker and the crew of a large military plane were flying between Oahu, Hawaii, and another island in the Pacific.

United States Army Hawaiian department headquarters announced that every available army and navy plane and surface craft from the southwest Hawaiian Islands was searching for the missing fliers.

The army did not disclose names of others aboard the plane, but it was believed here there were at least 10 persons, including the crew, in the flight group.

Officers here hopefully remembered that normal equipment of all such planes includes rubber life rafts. These fragile craft have saved the lives of many military fliers who have been forced down at sea in Pacific fighting. The planes have sunk within minutes after striking the water, but survivors have lived for weeks aboard the rubber rafts.

Many a youngster piloting the searching planes may have nourished his aviation ambitions on tales of "Rick's" triumphs over Germans in the air in 1917-18, and perhaps prayed that he would be the first to spot the rubber rafts which might be bearing Rickenbacker and his comrades to safety.

Mindful of the courage, skill and luck of the 52-year-old veteran who as America's first great ace bagged 21 German planes and four enemy balloons, Dewey Rickenbacker, brother of the flier, said at Beverly Hills, Calif., "This just isn't Eddie's time. After all, this

Highland Boy Hit By Truck Is Still Critically Injured

Jay Heaton, 10, in Vassar Hospital; Troopers Are Still Investigating Accident Phases

Jay Heaton, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Heaton of Highland, was struck by a truck Friday while on his way to school. He suffered chest injuries and was taken to Vassar Hospital where his condition was reported as critical.

The accident happened on the highway underneath the viaduct which carries route 9-W over the ferry road. George Palmateer, 24, of Highland, operator of the truck, told Sergeant E. J. Hulse of the State Police, that he did not see the boy and did not know he had struck him until he heard him scream. He said the boy, who was looking for his brother, had apparently run out and been struck by a corner of the rack body of the truck. It appeared as though the boy had been struck on the back and thrown to the pavement. The injured lad was taken to the office of Dr. C. F. Meekins at Highland and then transferred to the hospital.

An investigation was being continued today by Sergeant Hulse and Trooper James Benson. The boy's condition today was unchanged.

Destroyer Is Launched

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—The destroyer Daly was launched at Staten Island today, named for the marine Sergeant major who the navy said led a World War I attack in France with the cry, "Come on, you — — do you want to live forever?" The launching at the yards of the Bethlehem Steel Company was sponsored by Mrs. Arthur Ransweiler, of Glendale, L. I., niece of Sergeant Major Daniel Daly, recipient of two congressional medals and many other battle decorations, who died in 1937.

Planes' Collision Kills 12 Persons Near Palm Springs

Civilian Airplane Spotter Tells of Seeing Army Craft and Transport Come Together

Palm Springs, Calif., Oct. 24 (AP)—After an American Airlines official had declared that an army bomber was in collision with a transport plane shortly before the latter crashed near here late yesterday, killing 12, a civilian defense airplane spotter told today of seeing the two twin-engined ships come together just before one wavered from its course and struck a mountainside.

Southern California army authorities maintained a strict silence pending a military investigation. But in San Francisco, Fourth Air Force spokesmen maintained that to their knowledge no military airplane was involved in the crash of the American airliner.

The plane spotter is R. M. Martin, also a guard at a telephone repeater station. He told reporters he saw two planes, flying at about 8,000 feet, one about a mile and a half behind the other.

"Both were twin-engined ships," he said. "The one in the rear veered away into a cloud and I thought it had changed course.

"Then it came back and slid in so close to the other plane I couldn't distinguish between them. Bits of metal began flying from the planes."

When asked if he would say that the two ships collided he said:

"Well, I wouldn't say they didn't."

Martin said that, while watching the airliner spin earthward, he lost sight of the other ship and didn't know what happened to it. There were no reports of another plane crashing, however.

He said he was willing to testify before an army board of inquiry.

Army spokesmen on the scene said they had absolutely nothing to say about the crash, and at March Field officers said they hadn't even heard about it. A military guard was thrown about the wrecked airliner, and civilians barred.

Hours after the crash the wreckage was still burning, and it was thought it would be several hours before an examination of the debris could be made.

The crew of three and all nine passengers were killed, airline officials announced. Among the dead was Ralph Rainger, song writer, who composed such popular numbers as "Love in Bloom," "June in January," and "Here Lies Love."

The statement of the airlines executive, Charles A. Rheinstrom, vice president in charge of traffic, was made in New York and released through the airlines office here. He said:

"American Airlines Flight 28, eastbound Los Angeles to New York, was in collision with army bomber, crashed half mile west of Palm Springs at 5:15 p. m., Pacific Time Friday, October 23.

"Left Los Angeles at 4:30 p. m.

Deaths of Four Are Investigated

Police Are Told Both Cars in Ashokan Tragedy Were Driving Without Lights; Fact Not Established

Authorities were still busy today conducting an investigation to determine the facts surrounding the accident at Ashokan Thursday night during the test blackout when four people were killed. While the four survivors of the two car crash were questioned it had not been definitely established that both cars were proceeding without lights but investigating officials said indications pointed to that fact.

When last seen the car of Air Warden Frank E. Jones of Ashokan was said to be proceeding without lights. Persons interviewed told the investigating officials that when the Jones car stopped at the DuBois premises a few hundred feet from the scene of the accident to warn of a light which was showing, there were no lights on the car. One of the girls in the car of Samuel Gray, also an air warden, told the officials that she did not believe there were lights on the car in which she was a passenger and which was driven from Ashokan toward Glenford.

Lawrence Shurter of Samsonville, a passenger in the Jones car, was questioned again at the Kingston Hospital Friday night by Deputy Sheriff Clayton Vredenburg but he was unable to give the officials much information regarding the accident. His condition is good and he is expected to leave the hospital shortly. George Secore of Ashokan, an occupant of the Gray car, was also reported in good condition today and possibly will be discharged today. Like Shurter, Secore was unable to give any definite information as to the accident.

Muriel DuBois of Ashokan and Barbara Ostrander, also of Ashokan, who were riding in the Gray car were not severely injured but suffered from shock.

Meanwhile the funeral services for the four victims will be held. Three of the services will be held Sunday and the fourth on Monday. All four services will be in charge of the Lasher Funeral Home of Woodstock.

Services for Edward Floss of Ashokan will be conducted from the Lasher Funeral Home, Woodstock, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock with the Rev. Robert Guice of Ashokan in charge and burial will be in Woodstock cemetery. Mr. Floss is survived by his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Every Floss;

U. S. Says There Is No Shortage Of Coffee Stocks

However, Officials Refuse to Discuss Rationing; Brazil to Refit Axis Vessels

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—Despite some local shortages of coffee, the stocks of the nation's favorite breakfast beverage are at least normal and perhaps above, informed government sources said today.

On an unofficial and anonymous basis, these officials attributed the shortages, not caused by hoarding and overbuying, to the War Production Board's 35 per cent cut in the amount available to consumers—a step prompted by uncertainties of shipping.

The coffee stocks, however, generally are kept at only a two to three months supply level.

Government rationing officials confronted with spreading reports of local shortages and hoarding by housewives, refused to discuss possibility of coffee rationing.

Neither the War Production Board, which would have to order the rationing, nor the Office of Price Administration, which would carry it out, had any rejoinder to predictions from a number of food merchants that consumer control was inevitable, along the lines of sugar rationing.

Officials asserted that any comment on their part would only call attention to the problem and thus perhaps stimulate new buying runs, of the sort reported yesterday in Chicago, Cincinnati, Boston and elsewhere.

Housewives, they added, have not yet been impressed with urgency of conserving coffee—nor, apparently, have a number yet learned that coffee cannot be hoarded very successfully because of rapid loss of flavor and aroma.

Reports circulated in Washington, as in New York importing circles, that imports from Brazil coul be expected to pick up soon because of an apparent decline in submarine activity and the fact that Brazil, where huge supplies

France Is Reported Near Chaos Over Labor Draft

Laval, if Government Should Flee to Place in Africa, Could Go Only to Berlin

(This daily feature, conducted by DeWitt Mackenzie, war analyst who is visiting the war zone, is written today by Fred Vanderschmidt. Mackenzie is expected to resume Monday.)

These may well be the last days of "The Vichy Government," that melancholy group of Frenchmen who, in the faded hotels of an outmoded spa, tried to erect a synthetic Fascist facade before the ruins of the conquered third republic.

By devious ways the news came out of unoccupied France this week that the colleagues of Pierre Laval, or some of them, practically had packed their portmanteaux, and there was the suggestion that Admiral Jean Darlan, the head of what fighting forces remain under Vichy command, was looking around the African Empire for a dark continent capital to which some kind of a government could flee from Vichy.

The reason given was that France is on the edge of chaos because of Germany's demand, through Laval, for 150,000 skilled artisans to work in German factories. Evidently the men of Vichy feel that unless Laval delivers, Germany will kick France while she is down, and kick her hard. The ultimate deadline appears to be November 30 for delivery of the artisans.

It is not suggested, however, that Laval would go to Africa. Those who plan to do so must have some idea of eventual dealings with the allies, now so firmly established below the Mediterranean.

Laval cannot have any illusions about his standing with British, Fighting French or United States leadership. He has only one road ahead of him, and they fail, as it seems they must, it leads to Berlin.

What will the Germans do if

The Pilgrim concern was formerly located in the building on Grand street which was taken over by the Electrol plant in its expansion program, and is now using several locations in the city to carry on its manufacturing business.

Dr. Frederick Stamm Gives Address To Kingston Hospital Nurses' Class

Nurses who are being graduated into the world of today reminded the Rev. Frederick K. Stamm, D. D., as he spoke last evening at the commencement exercises held in the high school auditorium for 18 nurses of the Kingston Hospital School of Nursing, of "a beautiful picture across a dark background."

Dr. Stamm is pastor of the Clinton Avenue Community Church, Brooklyn. This church represents a union of the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church and the Simpson Methodist Church there.

Dr. Stamm chose as his theme, "What Makes a Good Nurse," and listed several qualities which are needed in addition to the technical schooling.

First of all, since the nurse is going to meet so many people, Dr. Stamm believes a nurse must like people. They must deal with human being and therefore must be sympathetic. He cited examples of his own experience with sick people and their reactions in explaining the entirely different moods the nurse will find in different individuals.

Along with sympathy Dr. Stamm advised the use of a general knowledge of psychology and the understanding of human nature. Finally he recommended a religious spirit. The world is learning that health is not restored by medicine or services alone, he stated. The patient must have confidence in the nurse and although all of the sick are not healed, Dr. Stamm reminded the nurses of the fine feel-

Full-Scale Attack Is Under Way

Red Power Grows

Soviet Slay More Than 2,200 Nazis in Volga City

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

Britain's Egyptian armies opened an apparently full-scale offensive against the Axis before dawn today, beating Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel to the punch and breaking a month-old stalemate on the El Alamein front 80 miles west of Alexandria.

A bulletin from Gen. Sir Harold R.L.G. Alexander's headquarters in Cairo said the British eighth army attack with strong air support—probably including U. S. army planes—and added:

"Fierce fighting developed and is continuing.

"Allied air forces during the night of Oct. 22-23 and yesterday continued their pressure on enemy landing grounds in the forward area."

Attacking under a full desert moon, allied troops surged forward across the sandy no-man's land under a strong cover of warplanes, while tanks and artillery sent thousands of shells screaming into the enemy.

Besides British Empire troops, Poles, Free French, Greeks and other allies were reported storming the Axis lines stretched cross a 40-mile front from the Mediterranean Sea to the desolate wastes of the Quattara Depression.

The line has been stabilized since July 1, when Rommel's headlong offensive was brought to a halt, but just a month ago the Axis chieftain made a short-lived attempt to skirt the British flank.

Small "test" units of American-manned tanks have been in action against the Germans and Italians on the desert battlefield, but it was not disclosed whether they were aiding the big new push today.

While the British armies lashed out in an offensive which may decide the fate of the Mediterranean, the RAF's giant bombers reached out across the Alps for the second night in succession last night to blast the Italian cities of Genoa and Turin.

The two cities, one a key port for shipping supplies to North Africa and the other site of the Royal Italian Arsenal, were the targets of the greatest weight of bombs ever dropped on Italy 24 hours earlier.

The Italians said "notable" damage was also inflicted at Savona, 25 miles west of Genoa, in last night's assault. Thirteen persons were reported killed and 46 injured.

A Fascist communique listed 29 persons killed and 121 injured in the previous raid on Genoa. The communique said one person was killed and 10 injured last night at Turin.

Air-raid alarms in Switzerland lasting 55 and 65 minutes indicated that sizeable RAF formations passed overhead enroute to attack Italy's war centers.

On the rekindled Egyptian battlefront, the Italian high command reported "intense air activity" but made no mention of the new British offensive.

The terse British communique gave no details on the progress of the battle, but the implication was clear that Gen. Alexander had struck before Marshal Rommel could launch his own offensive.

Reports reaching Cairo late Thursday said Rommel, who recently returned to his North African post after conferring with Adolf Hitler in Berlin, had been placed in supreme command of Axis land, sea and air forces in the Mediterranean theater and had been ordered to open a big-scale offensive.

These reports said Rommel planned synchronized drives into Egypt from the El Alamein front and from Greek islands into Syria.

Tempestuous German and Italian air assaults on the British Mediterranean citadel of Malta all last week indicated that the Axis was attempting to move strong reinforcements to North Africa for Rommel's projected offensive.

At the same time, the British 8th army was being powerfully reinforced by American-built tanks and planes and by strong units of the U. S. army air force, enabling Gen. Alexander to seize the initiative.

Axis reports earlier this week

Martin said that, while watching the airliner spin earthward, he lost sight of the other ship and didn't know what happened to it. There were no reports of another plane crashing, however.

He said he was willing to testify before an army board of inquiry.

Army spokesmen on the scene said they had absolutely nothing to say about the crash, and at March Field officers said they hadn't even heard about it. A military guard was thrown about the wrecked airliner, and civilians barred.

Hours after the crash the wreckage was still burning, and it was thought it would be several hours before an examination of the debris could be made.

The crew of three and all nine passengers were killed, airline officials announced. Among the dead was Ralph Rainger, song writer, who composed such popular numbers as "Love in Bloom," "June in January," and "Here Lies Love."

The statement of the airlines executive, Charles A. Rheinstrom, vice president in charge of traffic, was made in New York and released through the airlines office here. He said:

"American Airlines Flight 28, eastbound Los Angeles to New York, was in collision with army bomber, crashed half mile west of Palm Springs at 5:15 p. m., Pacific Time Friday, October 23.

"Left Los Angeles at 4:30 p. m.

Police Are Told Both Cars in Ashokan Tragedy Were Driving Without Lights; Fact Not Established

Authorities were still busy today conducting an investigation to determine the facts surrounding the accident at Ashokan Thursday night during the test blackout when four people were killed. While the four survivors of the two car crash were questioned it had not been definitely established that both cars were proceeding without lights but investigating officials said indications pointed to that fact.

When last seen the car of Air Warden Frank E. Jones of Ashokan was said to be proceeding without lights. Persons interviewed told the investigating officials that when the Jones car stopped at the DuBois premises a few hundred feet from the scene of the accident to warn of a light which was showing, there were no lights on the car. One of the girls in the car of Samuel Gray, also an air warden, told the officials that she did not believe there were lights on the car in which she was a passenger and which was driven from Ashokan toward Glenford.

Lawrence Shurter of Samsonville, a passenger in the Jones car, was questioned again at the Kingston Hospital Friday night by Deputy Sheriff Clayton Vredenburg but he was unable to give the officials much information regarding the accident. His condition is good and he is expected to leave the hospital shortly. George Secore of Ashokan, an occupant of the Gray car, was also reported in good condition today and possibly will be discharged today. Like Shurter, Secore was unable to give any definite information as to the accident.

Muriel DuBois of Ashokan and Barbara Ostrander, also of Ashokan, who were riding in the Gray car were not severely injured but suffered from shock.

Meanwhile the funeral services for the four victims will be held. Three of the services will be held Sunday and the fourth on Monday. All four services will be in charge of the Lasher Funeral Home of Woodstock.

Services for Edward Ploss of Ashokan will be conducted from the Lasher Funeral Home, Woodstock, Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock with the Rev. Robert Guice of Ashokan in charge and burial will be in Woodstock cemetery. Mr. Ploss is survived by his wife, Mrs. Myrtis Every Ploss;

U. S. Says There Is No Shortage Of Coffee Stocks

However, Officials Refuse to Discuss Rationing; Brazil to Refit Axis Vessels

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—Despite some local shortages of coffee, the stocks of the nation's favorite breakfast beverage are at least normal and perhaps above, informed government sources said today.

On an unofficial and anonymous basis, these officials attributed the shortages, not caused by hoarding and overbuying, to the War Production Board's 35 per cent cut in the amount available to consumers—a step prompted by uncertainties of shipping.

The coffee stocks, however, generally are kept at only a two to three months supply level.

Government rationing officials confronted with spreading reports of local shortages and hoarding by housewives, refused to discuss possibility of coffee rationing.

Neither the War Production Board, which would have to order the rationing, nor the Office of Price Administration, which would carry it out, had any rejoinder to predictions from a number of food merchants that consumer control was inevitable, along the lines of sugar rationing.

Officials asserted that any comment on their part would only call attention to the problem and thus perhaps stimulate new buying runs, of the sort reported yesterday in Chicago, Cincinnati, Boston and elsewhere.

Housewives, they added, have not yet been impressed with urgency of conserving coffee—nor, apparently, have a number yet learned that coffee cannot be hoarded very successfully because of rapid loss of flavor and aroma.

Reports circulated in Washington, as in New York importing circles, that imports from Brazil coul be expected to pick up soon because of an apparent decline in submarine activity and the fact that Brazil, where huge supplies

France Is Reported Near Chaos Over Labor Draft

Laval, if Government Should Flee to Place in Africa, Could Go Only to Berlin

(This daily feature, conducted by DeWitt Mackenzie, war analyst who is visiting the war zone, is written today by Fred Vanderschmidt. Mackenzie is expected to resume Monday.)

These may well be the last days of "The Vichy Government," that melancholy group of Frenchmen who, in the faded hotels of an outmoded spa, tried to erect a synthetic Fascist facade before the ruins of the conquered third republic.

By devious ways the news came out of unoccupied France this week that the colleagues of Pierre Laval, or some of them, practically had packed their portmanteaux, and there was the suggestion that Admiral Jean Darlan, the head of what fighting forces remain under Vichy command, was looking around the African Empire for a dark continent capital to which some kind of a government could flee from Vichy.

The reason given was that France is on the edge of chaos because of Germany's demand, through Laval, for 150,000 skilled artisans to work in German factories. Evidently the men of Vichy feel that unless Laval delivers, Germany will kick France while she is down, and kick her hard. The ultimate deadline appears to be November 30 for delivery of the artisans.

It is not suggested, however, that Laval would go to Africa. Those who plan to do so must have some idea of eventual dealings with the allies, now so firmly established below the Mediterranean.

Laval cannot have any illusions about his standing with British, Fighting French or United States leadership. He has only one road ahead of him, and they fail, as it seems they must, it leads to Berlin.

What will the Germans do if

Dr. Frederick Stamm Gives Address To Kingston Hospital Nurses' Class

Nurses who are being graduated into the world of today reminded the Rev. Frederick K. Stamm, D. D., as he spoke last evening at the commencement exercises held in the high school auditorium for 18 nurses of the Kingston Hospital School of Nursing, of "a beautiful picture across a dark background."

Dr. Stamm is pastor of the Clinton Avenue Community Church, Brooklyn. This church represents a union of the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church and the Simpson Methodist Church there.

Dr. Stamm chose as his theme, "What Makes a Good Nurse," and listed several qualities which are needed in addition to the technical schooling.

First of all, since the nurse is going to meet so many people, Dr. Stamm believes a nurse must like people. They must deal with human being and therefore must be sympathetic. He cited examples of his own experience with sick people and their reactions in explaining the entirely different moods the nurse will find in different individuals.

Along with sympathy Dr. Stamm advised the use of a general knowledge of psychology and the understanding of human nature. Finally he recommended a religious spirit. The world is learning that health is not restored by medicine or services alone, he stated. The patient must have confidence in the nurse and although all of the sick are not healed, Dr. Stamm reminded the nurses of the fine feel-

Full-Scale Attack Is Under Way

Red Power Grows

Soviet Slay More Than 2,200 Nazis in Volga City

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

Britain's Egyptian armies opened an apparently full-scale offensive against the Axis before dawn today, beating Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel to the punch and breaking a month-old stalemate on the El Alamein front 80 miles west of Alexandria.

A bulletin from Gen. Sir Harold R.L.G. Alexander's headquarters in Cairo said the British eighth army attack with strong air support—probably including U. S. army planes—and added:

"Fierce fighting developed and is continuing.

"Allied air forces during the night of Oct. 22-23 and yesterday continued their pressure on enemy landing grounds in the forward area."

Attacking under a full desert moon, allied troops surged forward across the sandy no-man's land under a strong cover of warplanes, while tanks and artillery sent thousands of shells screaming into the enemy.

Besides British Empire troops, Poles, Free French, Greeks and other allies were reported storming the Axis lines stretched cross a 40-mile front from the Medittterranean Sea to the desolate wastes of the Quattara Depression.

The line has been stabilized since July 1, when Rommel's headlong offensive was brought to a halt, but just a month ago the Axis chieftain made a short-lived attempt to skirt the British flank.

Small "test" units of American-manned tanks have been in action against the Germans and Italians on the desert battlefield, but it was not disclosed whether they were aiding the big new push today.

While the British armies lashed out in an offensive which may decide the fate of the Mediterranean, the RAF's giant bombers reached out across the Alps for the second night in succession last night to blast the Italian cities of Genoa and Turin.

The two cities, one a key port for shipping supplies to North Africa and the other site of the Royal Italian Arsenal, were the targets of the greatest weight of bombs ever dropped on Italy 24 hours earlier.

The Italians said "notable" damage was also inflicted at Savona, 25 miles west of Genoa, in last night's assault. Thirteen persons were reported killed and 46 injured.

A Fascist communique listed 29 persons killed and 121 injured in the previous raid on Genoa. The communique said one person was killed and 10 injured last night at Turin.

Air-raid alarms in Switzerland lasting 55 and 65 minutes indicated that sizeable RAF formations passed overhead enroute to a ttack Italy's war centers.

On the rekindled Egyptian battlefront, the Italian high command reported "intense air activity" but made no mention of the new British offensive.

The terse British communique gave no details on the progress of the battle, but the implication was clear that Gen. Alexander had struck before Marshal Rommel could launch his own offensive.

Reports reaching Cairo late Thursday said Rommel, who recently returned to h is North African post after conferring with Adolf Hitler in Berlin, had been placed in supreme command of Axis land, sea and air forces in the Mediterranean theater and had been ordered to open a big-scale offensive.

These reports said Rommel planned synchronized drives into Egypt from the El Alamein front and from Greek islands into Syria.

Tempestuous German and Italian air assaults on the British Mediterranean citadel of Malta all last week indicated that the Axis was attempting to move strong reinforcements to North Africa for Rommel's projected offensive.

At the same time, the British 8th army was being powerfully reinforced by American-built tanks and planes and by strong units of the U. S. army air force, enabling Gen. Alexander to seize the initiative.

Axis reports earlier this week

ALL DAY SERVICE

Sunday the Bloomingdale Reformed Church of Bloomington will observe its 17th annual All Day Service. This service was instituted by the former pastor, the Rev. C. V. W. Bedford, and has been held annually for the past 16 years. It is observed by holding services during the day in charge of guest speakers. There is also opportunity given the people to make their love offerings to the Lord. This year the speakers during the afternoon will be the Rev. F. B. Seeley, D. D., of the Fair Street Reformed Church, and the Rev. H. Victor Kane of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church. Ostrander Phillips of Kingston will speak in the evening. Special music in the form of solos and duets will be heard. The Ladies' Aid furnishes coffee and tea to those who bring a basket lunch for the evening meal. All are welcome to come.

Unsaddled

Panhandle, Tex. — Broadway Actor Winton O'Keefe is home from Fort Riley for a 10-day furlough but he isn't bragging about the cavalry lieutenant's boots as he had planned.

The ranch-born O'Keefe chose cavalry so he could be with horses.

Now, his outfit has been mechanized.

The discovery of oil in Pennsylvania and the ending of the fad for whalebone corsets gradually killed the American whaling industry.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Slow But Good

Philadelphia — Hired to drive a delivery truck, John Hanlon left on his first assignment in the morning—and didn't return until next afternoon.

The company was about to fire him but Hanlon interposed:

"The truck broke down out in the country. So I repaired it. It took a good many hours, but I was told to make that delivery. I did."

"You've made good," the boss said.

Boy, That's Honesty!

Waynesboro, Pa. — H. E. Wilson, travelling man, thinks Waynesboro must be the most honest town in the nation.

On his last trip here he left his hat on a restaurant hat rack and forgot about it.

"Three months later," he said, "I came back and went into the same restaurant. And there, right where I left it, was that hat."

Ghost Prevention

Ganado, Ariz. — The Navajo Indians who shiver in their moccassins at the mere mention of chindi —ghosts—are ready to celebrate Halloween.

The Ganado Mission of the Presbyterian Church has invited 1,000 of them to their bazaar that night.

Oh yes, the mission brass band has been enlisted to keep the ghosts away.

No Excuses

Shawnee, Okla. — Oklahoma Baptist University co-eds who have dates with cadets at the army basic flying school no longer can protest: "But I didn't know he was married!"

On the bulletin board of the girls' dormitory is posted a list of all married cadets.

Adventurous Lion

Los Angeles — Flak, eight-month-old African lion and mascot of an army anti-aircraft unit, was A. W. O. L. for five hours.

Flak broke a stout chain, and started down the road to Burbank. The highlight of his trip came when Charles Kern, an animal trainer, collared him. Kern found he had more lion than he had bargained for, and barely escaped to safety.

A corporal and several privates finally got the job done.

Flak isn't likely to escape again. He's in the guardhouse.

In early childhood Daniel Webster first studied the Constitution—as printed on a cotton handkerchief.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Slow But Good

Philadelphia — Hired to drive a delivery truck, John Hanlon left on his first assignment in the morning—and didn't return until next afternoon.

The company was about to fire him but Hanlon interposed:

"The truck broke down out in the country. So I repaired it. It took a good many hours, but I was told to make that delivery. I did."

"You've made good," the boss said.

Boy, That's Honesty!

Waynesboro, Pa. — H. E. Wilson, travelling man, thinks Waynesboro must be the most honest town in the nation.

On his last trip here he left his hat on a restaurant hat rack and forgot about it.

"Three months later," he said, "I came back and went into the same restaurant. And there, right where I left it, was that hat."

Ghost Prevention

Ganado, Ariz. — The Navajo Indians who shiver in their mocassins at the mere mention of chindi —ghosts—are ready to celebrate Halloween.

The Ganado Mission of the Presbyterian Church has invited 1,000 of them to their bazaar that night.

Oh yes, the mission brass band has been enlisted to keep the ghosts away.

No Excuses

Shawnee, Okla. — Oklahoma Baptist University co-eds who have dates with cadets at the army basic flying school no longer can protest: "But I didn't know he was married!"

On the bulletin board of the girls' dormitory is posted a list of all married cadets.

Adventurous Lion

Los Angeles — Flak, eight-month-old African lion and mascot of an army anti-aircraft unit, was A. W. O. L. for five hours.

Flak broke a stout chain, and started down the road to Burbank. The highlight of his trip came when Charles Kern, an animal trainer, collared him. Kern found he had more lion than he had bargained for, and barely escaped to safety.

A corporal and several privates finally got the job done.

Flak isn't likely to escape again. He's in the guardhouse.

The club stocked its ground fairly heavy this year which in turn, provided some good shooting for members since the season opened last Monday.

The pheasants which are to be released Sunday will be adult birds and members interested in helping with the distribution are asked to meet at the club house at 1:30 o'clock.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP) — The general direction was moderately upward in today's brief stock market.

Gains of fractions to a point or so were well distributed at a fairly active opening, in which low-priced issues changed hands in blocks of 1,000 to 6,000 shares. Dealings then slackened and top prices were reduced here and there near the final hour.

The war news, on balance, favored the United Nations and this was viewed as a sustaining market influence. Many customers either stood aside or kept commitments light for week-end protection.

Bonds and commodities were slightly mixed.

Among stocks International Telephone was the fastest mover, getting into new high ground for the year before backing away. Supported were N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Consolidated Edison, Dome Mines, Homestake, du Pont, Montgovery Ward, Kennecott, Woolworth, Boeing and Westinghouse.

Allied Chemical dropped two points. Lacking climbing power were Johns-Manville, Santa Fe, Union Carbide and Caterpillar Tractor.

Democrat Leaders Support Bennett

Roosevelt, Lehman, Mead Take Active Part in Bennett Campaign

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 24 (AP)—Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., Democratic candidate for governor, campaigns in eastern New York counties today, his drive for election vigorously supported by leaders of his party in state and nation.

In speeches here and in Washington and New York city last night, Governor Lehman and both of New York's U. S. senators added their endorsements to the plea of President Roosevelt, made public earlier in the day, for Bennett's election and the defeat of Republican Thomas E. Dewey.

In his first active participation in this campaign, Lehman told a rally in heavily Democratic Albany that the issue is simple but vital: Whether the sound, progressive and humane administration of the state government shall be continued.

Senator James M. Mead, speaking at a series of rallies in Brooklyn, where he lost the party's gubernatorial nomination to Bennett, said a Dewey victory would be regarded by the Axis as a slap at President Roosevelt and what he stands for. He maintained that Bennett would carry on the principles of "three great liberal governors" of New York.

In Washington, Senator Robert F. Wagner attacked Dewey's position on foreign policy before Pearl Harbor as one of vacillation.

After a swing through counties surrounding Albany today, Bennett will be joined by State Chairman James A. Farley as a speaker at a meeting in Troy tonight.

Lehman accused Dewey of attempting to run on the record of the Democratic party by crediting Republicans with legislation benefiting labor, improving unemployment insurance, outlawing racial and religious discrimination in employment and reducing personal income taxes.

The entire program was initiated by the Democratic administration, Lehman asserted, and asked:

"Shall we turn the state over to a party whose record is one of reaction and political expediency—a record that belies the statements that its candidates now so glibly makes?"

Dewey Still Hits State Tax System

Speaks in Queens Public Schools; Would Revise State Income Tax

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Republican Gubernatorial Candidate Thomas E. Dewey was on record today as favoring additional safeguards for homeowners throughout the state and additional legislative representation for those in Queens.

Delivering the same prepared address at two public schools in Queens, Dewey said that in 1939 Republicans prevented the imposition of a state levy of $1 on every $1,000 assessed valuation of real estate. He urged support of Republicans as "wholeheartedly sympathetic and alive to your needs."

In advocating revisions in the state income tax law which would permit families to make deductions for medical expenses, life insurance premiums and for children attending college, Dewey said:

"It is my belief that both the individual and the government will benefit from placing income tax collections on a pay-as-you-go basis."

He charged that because of Democratic obstruction in the legislature, Queens was not fairly represented in the state legislature and pointed out that the district has two senators and six assemblymen, the number it had in 1917, although its population has since tripled.

"Queens county has been cheated out of its representation in the state legislature," he said. "That is also true of Brooklyn, the Bronx, Nassau county and some other sections of the state.

"The votes of the people of those sections have counted in the legislature less than the votes of other people. That is unfair and I am against it."

Speaking on a statewide blue network radio hookup in support of Dewey, Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., chairman of the citizens committee for Dewey for governor, declared that the Republican candidate had advanced "from one public service to another, all of unusual difficulty, and his call to each resulted from the excellence of his performance in the preceding one."

Candidate?

Although the New York state election ballot lists Pvt. Coleman Cheney as Socialist candidate for governor, U. S. Army officials say no soldier on active duty may run for public office. Private Cheney is shown on active duty at Lowry Field, Denver, Colo.

Organized Gang of Boys Cut Clothes Lines

The mystery of who has been cutting down the clothes lines in some 15 backyards in the central section of the city is believed solved by the arrest Friday of four boys, all under 16 years of age. The boys are to be arraigned later in children's court on charges of juvenile delinquency.

According to the police the boys had an organized gang of four members with a captain, a lieutenant and two privates. One of the boys, architecturally inclined, drew up plans of the various backyards and the location of the clothes lines to be cut.

The malicious practice of cutting clothes lines has been going on during the past week and the police department received approximately 15 complaints from householders on Van Deusen street, Van Buren street, Clinton avenue, Henry street and Furnace street, who found their clothes lines cut during the night.

All four boys the police said today reside in the vicinity of the area where the clothes lines were cut.

isn't the first time he's been in a tight spot."

But Mrs. Elizabeth Rickenbacker, 79, the mother, had her misgivings when the captain visited her at Beverly Hills recently, en route to the Pacific assignment.

"My mother felt that something was going to happen to Eddie and asked him not to go," Dewey Rickenbacker said. "But he just laughed and reassured her that everything would be all right."

This optimism and fortitude carried Rickenbacker through a tough experience nearly two years ago when he was injured seriously in the crash of an airliner near Atlanta. Rickenbacker spent weeks in a hospital while broken bones were healing. Others among the passengers and crew of that plane were killed in the crash.

In New York, Rickenbacker's wife waited by the telephone, hoping that the next call would bring good news.

"Eddie will turn up," she assured friends. "He's too old a hand to get lost in any airplane now."

Rickenbacker's trip over the Pacific was for a purpose similar to his recent inspection flight to England. The War Department said he was acting as confidential advisor to the Secretary of War on aircraft.

Rickenbacker, on his return from England, praised the performances of U. S. Army planes, particularly emphasizing the work done by the flying fortresses.

Among the ships flying today in search for him were flying fortresses, aided by navy seaplanes.

British Open Rommel Assault

of a great air battle over the desert, involving 400 planes, indicated that the two armies again were preparing to strike—with Rommel attempting to drive toward the green valley of the Nile and the Suez Canal, and the British seeking to throw the invaders back westward across Libya.

Rommel's eventual objective would be a junction with the German armies driving down through the Russian Caucasus toward the Middle East, completing a giant pincers movement to gain control of the Mediterranean.

Russian Road Is Bitter

But the Germans still had a long and bitter road to travel in the Caucasus, where the Russians were staging a magnificent defense in the snow-blanketed mountains and along the Black Sea coast.

Red Army headquarters said Russian cavalrymen "pressed the enemy back" after beating off several attacks in the Mozdok sector, gateway to the Grozny oil fields in the central Caucasus, but acknowledged that the Germans had advanced on the Black Sea port of Tuapse in the northwest Caucasus.

In the 61-day-old siege of Stalingrad, the Russian command announced that defenders of the fire-blackened Volga metropolis killed more than 2,200 Germans yesterday, frustrated all Nazi attacks and breached an enemy fortified area along the 40-mile northwest corridor between the Don and Volga rivers.

It was the fifth straight day without a single Russian retreat on the Stalingrad front.

Hitler's field headquarters asserted that tank-led Nazi troops "threw the enemy out of various streets" in fierce house-to-house fighting yesterday and seized "the greater part of the Red October works and advanced to the Volga."

The Nazi command dismissed Soviet relief attacks north of the city as "weak and unsuccessful."

In contrast to the official German claim, Red Army headquarters declared the Red Defenders crushed all Nazi attacks against the northside factory, Red October, despite a shower of 1,500 Stuka bombs.

A Berlin broadcast quoted Nazi military quarters as conceding that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's relief army had attained numerical superiority on the northwest flank, but asserted that the Russians "nowhere succeeded in breaking into the main German fighting line."

The broadcast also claimed that Nazi shock troops, screened by planes, had overrun the Red October industrial plant in Stalingrad's northern suburbs and thus "cut the last Soviet bulwark and reached the Volga."

But at noon today, Soviet headquarters declared flatly:

"In the Stalingrad area, our trops repulsed all enemy attacks.

"A group of enemy automatic riflemen broke through the outskirts of a factor (probably the same 'Red October' works mentioned by the Germans).

"Our detachment completely wiped out this unit. Mortar gunners set on fire or disabled five German tanks and killed 200 Hitlerites.

On the northwest steppes, Soviet gunners muffled in greatcoats against winter's first snowstorm were officially credited with killing 1,000 Germans and capturing two Nazi strongholds.

A Soviet communique said the Germans launched three successive counterattacks to regain the lost positions but were driven off.

Far to the north, Russian troops, warships and planes broke up an attempt by plane-supported Axis forces to land on an island in Lake Ladoga, which flanks long-besieged Leningrad.

Soviet headquarters said the Russians smashed 16 Axis landing vessels, captured another, and shot down 15 planes in air combat.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP) — The general direction was moderately upward in today's brief stock market.

Gains of fractions to a point or so were well distributed at a fairly active opening in which low-priced issues changed hands in blocks of 1,000 to 6,000 shares. Dealings then slackened and top prices were reduced here and there near the final hour.

The war news, on balance, favored the United Nations and this was viewed as a sustaining market influence. Many customers either stood aside or kept commitments light for week-end protection.

Bonds and commodities were slightly mixed.

Among stocks International Telephone was the fastest mover, getting into new high ground for the year before backing away. Supported were N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Consolidated Edison, Dome Mines, Homestake, du Pont, Montgovery Ward, Kennecott, Woolworth, Boeing and Westinghouse.

Allied Chemical dropped two points. Lacking climbing power were Johns-Manville, Santa Fe, Union Carbide and Caterpillar Tractor.

Democrat Leaders Support Bennett

Roosevelt, Lehman, Mead Take Active Part in Bennett Campaign

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 24 (AP)—Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., Democratic candidate for governor, campaigns in eastern New York counties today, his drive for election vigorously supported by leaders of his party in state and nation.

In speeches here and in Washington and New York city last night, Governor Lehman and both of New York's U. S. senators added their endorsements to the plea of President Roosevelt, made public earlier in the day, for Bennett's election and the defeat of Republican Thomas E. Dewey.

In his first active participation in this campaign, Lehman told a rally in heavily Democratic Albany that the issue is simple but vital: Whether the sound, progressive and humane administration of the state government shall be continued.

Senator James M. Mead, speaking at a series of rallies in Brooklyn, where he lost the party's gubernatorial nomination to Bennett, said a Dewey victory would be regarded by the Axis as a slap at President Roosevelt and what he stands for. He maintained that Bennett would carry on the principles of "three great liberal governors" of New York.

In Washington, Senator Robert F. Wagner attacked Dewey's position on foreign policy before Pearl Harbor as one of vacillation.

After a swing through counties surrounding Albany today, Bennett will be joined by State Chairman James A. Farley as a speaker at a meeting in Troy tonight.

Lehman accused Dewey of attempting to run on the record of the Democratic party by crediting Republicans with legislation benefiting labor, improving unemployment insurance, outlawing racial and religious discrimination in employment and reducing personal income taxes.

The entire program was initiated by the Democratic administration, Lehman asserted, and asked:

"Shall we turn the state over to a party whose record is one of reaction and political expediency—a record that belies the statements that its candidates now so glibly makes?"

Dewey Still Hits State Tax System

Speaks in Queens Public Schools; Would Revise State Income Tax

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Republican Gubernatorial Candidate Thomas E. Dewey was on record today as favoring additional safeguards for homeowners throughout the state and additional legislative representation for those in Queens.

Delivering the same prepared address at two public schools in Queens, Dewey said that in 1939 Republicans prevented the imposition of a state levy of $1 on every $1,000 assessed valuation of real estate. He urged support of Republicans as "wholeheartedly sympathetic and alive to your needs."

In advocating revisions in the state income tax law which would permit families to make deductions for medical expenses, life insurance premiums and for children attending college, Dewey said:

"It is my belief that both the individual and the government will benefit from placing income tax collections on a pay-as-you-go basis."

He charged that because of Democratic obstruction in the legislature, Queens was not fairly represented in the state legislature and pointed out that the district has two senators and six assemblymen, the number it had in 1917, although its population has since tripled.

"Queens county has been cheated out of its representation in the state legislature," he said. "That is also true of Brooklyn, the Bronx, Nassau county and some other sections of the state.

"The votes of the people of those sections have counted in the legislature less than the votes of other people. That is unfair and I am against it."

Speaking on a statewide blue network radio hookup in support of Dewey, Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., chairman of the citizens committee for Dewey for governor, declared that the Republican candidate had advanced "from one public service to another, all of unusual difficulty, and his call to each resulted from the excellence of his performance in the preceding one."

Organized Gang of Boys Cut Clothes Lines

The mystery of who has been cutting down the clothes lines in some 15 backyards in the central section of the city is believed solved by the arrest Friday of four boys, all under 16 years of age. The boys are to be arraigned later in children's court on charges of juvenile delinquency.

According to the police the boys had an organized gang of four members with a captain, a lieutenant and two privates. One of the boys, architecturally inclined, drew up plans of the various backyards and the location of the clothes lines to be cut.

The malicious practice of cutting clothes lines has been going on during the past week and the police department received approximately 15 complaints from householders on Van Deusen street, Van Buren street, Clinton avenue, Henry street and Furnace street, who found their clothes lines cut during the night.

All four boys the police said today reside in the vicinity of the area where the clothes lines were cut.

isn't the first time he's been in a tight spot."

But Mrs. Elizabeth Rickenbacker, 79, the mother, had her misgivings when the captain visited her at Beverly Hills recently, en route to the Pacific assignment.

"My mother felt that something was going to happen to Eddie and asked him not to go," Dewey Rickenbacker said. "But he just laughed and reassured her that everything would be all right."

This optimism and fortitude carried Rickenbacker through a tough experience nearly two years ago when he was injured seriously in the crash of an airliner near Atlanta. Rickenbacker spent weeks in a hospital while broken bones were healing. Others among the passengers and crew of that plane were killed in the crash.

In New York, Rickenbacker's wife waited by the telephone, hoping that the next call would bring good news.

"Eddie will turn up," she assured friends. "He's too old a hand to get lost in any airplane now."

Rickenbacker's trip over the Pacific was for a purpose similar to his recent inspection flight to England. The War Department said he was acting as confidential advisor to the Secretary of War on aircraft.

Rickenbacker, on his return from England, praised the performances of U. S. Army planes, particularly emphasizing the work done by the flying fortresses.

Among the ships flying today in search for him were flying fortresses, aided by navy seaplanes.

of a great air battle over the desert, involving 400 planes, indicated that the two armies again were preparing to strike—with Rommel attempting to drive toward the green valley of the Nile and the Suez Canal, and the British seeking to throw the invaders back westward across Libya.

Rommel's eventual objective would be a junction with the German armies driving down through the Russian Caucasus toward the Middle East, completing a giant pincers movement to gain control of the Mediterranean.

Russian Road Is Bitter

But the Germans still had a long and bitter road to travel in the Caucasus, where the Russians were staging a magnificent defense in the snow-blanketed mountains and along the Black Sea coast.

Red Army headquarters said Russian cavalrymen "pressed the enemy back" after beating off several attacks in the Mozdok sector, gateway to the Grozny oil fields in the central Caucasus, but acknowledged that the Germans had advanced on the Black Sea port of Tuapse in the northwest Caucasus.

In the 61-day-old siege of Stalingrad, the Russian command announced that defenders of the fire-blackened Volga metropolis killed more than 2,200 Germans yesterday, frustrated all Nazi attacks and breached an enemy fortified area along the 40-mile northwest corridor between the Don and Volda rivers.

It was the fifth straight day without a single Russian retreat on the Stalingrad front.

Hitler's field headquarters asserted that tank-led Nazi troops "threw the enemy out of various streets" in fierce house-to-house fighting yesterday and seized "the greater part of the Red October works and advanced to the Volga."

The Nazi command dismissed Soviet relief attacks north of the city as "weak and unsuccessful."

In contrast to the official German claim, Red Army headquarters declared the Red Defenders crushed all Nazi attacks against the northside factory, Red October, despite a shower of 1,500 Stuka bombs.

A Berlin broadcast quoted Nazi military quarters as conceding that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's relief army had attained numerical superiority on the northwest flank, but asserted that the Russians "nowhere succeeded in breaking into the main German fighting line."

The broadcast also claimed that Nazi shock troops, screened by planes, had overrun the Red October industrial plant in Stalingrad's northern suburbs and thus "cut the last Soviet bulwark and reached the Volga."

But at noon today, Soviet headquarters declared flatly:

"In the Stalingrad area, our trops repulsed all enemy attacks.

"A group of enemy automatic riflemen broke through the outskirts of a factor (probably the same 'Red October' works mentioned by the Germans).

"Our detachment completely wiped out this unit. Mortar gunners set on fire or disabled five German tanks and killed 200 Hitlerites.

On the northwest steppes, Soviet gunners muffled in greatcoats against winter's first snowstorm were officially credited with killing 1,000 Germans and capturing two Nazi strongholds.

A Soviet communique said the Germans launched three successive counterattacks to regain the lost positions but were driven off.

Far to the north, Russian troops, warships and planes broke up an attempt by plane-supported Axis forces to land on an island in Lake Ladoga, which flanks long-besiezed Leningrad.

Soviet headquarters said the Russians smashed 16 Axis landing vessels, captured another, and shot down 15 planes in air combat.

SOLOMONS AND SEDAN

Ever since 1870 Sedan has been a word of ill omen to the French. There the Emperor Napoleon III surrendered with his entire army to the Prussians under Von Moltke, thereby losing both the war and Alsace-Lorraine. In 1918 the unpleasant association was forgotten for a time, when Sedan marked the farthest advance of the victorious French army before the armistice. But in 1940 the old reputation of the town reappeared stronger than ever. Here the Germans made the final break-through that brought the French army to its knees.

So far the Solomon Islands have been Japan's Sedan. There, after their initial conquest they have suffered defeat after defeat. Just lately, after a coup in which they sank four American warships, they slumped again and lost five vessels of their own. They then engaged in a protracted battle which ought to make or break the reputation of the Islands for Japan.

Some savage tribes refuse to utter the name of a place or thing that has brought them continual ill fortune. It would not be surprising if the Japanese, whose conduct shows them to be as savage as any painted man with a flint axe, should in their future histories refuse to mention the Solomons.

TOO MUCH JUNK

All that junk turned in in recent weeks throughout the country wasn't necessarily patriotic. A lot of it might be strategic, from the viewpoint of a housewife or househusband. Everybody knows how junk tends to accumulate even around the most orderly home. Usually that comes from mere indolence, but often it is a case of false thrift. Somebody around the place simply can't bear to sell old stuff or give it away. So it accumulates in the basement and elsewhere, and may choke up the place until the family can hardly turn around to get essential work done.

But a welcome light must have broken over thousands of homes, as a result of the recent overhauling. The home is so much cleaner and more spacious when a lot of rubbish has been removed. Housekeeping is made simpler and easier. With the practice once started, millions of people may want to keep it up for their own benefit, and have regular junking festivals at least a couple of times a year. The orderly life is wonderful, when the family gets used to it.

A RECORD TO BE PROUD OF

One of the outstanding Republican leaders in New York state is Senator Arthur H. Wicks, chairman of the state finance committee and senior Republican senator in the State Senate. He was first elected to the state legislature in 1926, and has served the people of the 29th district so well that he was the unanimous choice of the Republican party to succeed himself.

In the early years of the depression he introduced the Wicks act, which became a law when unemployment and want prevailed throughout the state. This act for the first time in the history of the state created state-wide agencies for handling the problem of public relief and the care of the unemployed.

Senator Wicks is widely known as a liberal in the field of labor legislation, and his labor record is outstanding.

During the sixteen years he has served this district in Albany he has proven one of the most progressive men in public life. For years he has been known as a fighting senator working not only for the benefit of his own district but the entire state.

That Senator Wicks will be returned to the state legislature by an even larger majority than he has ever received in the past is a foregone conclusion.

FUTURE RIDING

When this present unpleasantness is over, says Tom L. Johnson, nephew and namesake of a famous Cleveland mayor, who now represents a Toledo automobile company, "We'll be able to put on the market a small four-cylinder car which will sell for about $500, go 45 miles on a gallon of gas, save rubber on tires, have a top speed around 80 miles an hour, and go anywhere. What more can anyone want?"

It sounds like a sublimated jeep, and millions may be waiting and watching for it. With the present standstill in production of private cars, they'll probably be car-crazy by the time the war ends.

But who knows? By that time it might be aerial runabouts that they want. The planners may be wise to plan for wings as well as wheels.

NAZI VIEW OF WAR

To most people war is about the most dreadful evil that can be imagined, except, of course, domination by the Axis nations. Yet such countries do not regard it in this light. In fact, they seem rather pleased with it. Witness these words of General von Bock, Hitler's commander in Russia:

"Wars are not only inevitable, but essential as population regulators. They are like an endless game of cards. Sometimes one person wins, sometimes another, but the clever player manages to keep his average high."

This cold-blooded attitude toward so great an evil is only one of the many counts that make the world so anxious to wipe out Nazism.

"Tiring women" used to dress queens, but now they just put air in anybody's tires.

Does Hitler wish he had not said a few days ago, "We shall take Stalingrad?"

CAUSES OF ACNE

One of the facts physicians have been learning the past few years is that some ailments or groups of symptoms are not due to one cause but to several and if one of these causes is removed, the patient gets well and the cure is naturally attributed to the removal of this one cause.

What has happened is that the removal of this one cause enabled the body to overcome the other causes, once freed from this one cause.

One example is acne—pimples. It is now known that acne, coming on at puberty, is related to the sex glands, as injections of sex gland substance has produced acne in several individuals. Yet it is also known that certain foods—fats and starches—can bring on the acne eruption or aggravate an eruption already present.

It is because acne has more than one cause that there have been so many successful methods of curing it reported. Thus the viosterol treatment as suggested by two University of Chicago professors has cured a great many cases and others report that as soon as they stop using viosterol, the acne returns. Other cases receive no help from viosterol.

Other cases of acne have been cured by the injection of pituitary extract every day for thirty or sixty days. And again many other cases receive no help whatever from pituitary extract.

An explanation of why some cases of acne are helped by one form of treatment and others are not, is given by Dr. K. A. Baird, West St. John, New Brunswick, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal. Dr. Baird states that there are three underlying causes in practically all cases of acne, namely an abnormally low blood serum resistance to cocci infection; an abnormal secretion or manufacture of oil in the sebaceous glands of the skin; and a lowered resistance to cocci infection by the skin itself in certain parts—face, chest—aside from the blood stream.

Dr. Baird reports success in 25 cases by treating all three conditions at the same time; mixed vaccines to raise blood serum resistance to cocci infection; injections of anterior pituitary extract and application of a sulphur lotion to restore the oil or sebum to a normal condition; and washing the skin on which pimples are present with hot soapy water, rinse with warm water, and then douche skin with cold water.

Acne—Pimples

Thousands of persons suffer the embarrassment from acne (pimples) at the age when personal appearance is particularly important to them. To obtain it just send ten cents and a three cent stamp, to cover cost of handling and mailing, to The Bell Library, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Republican Candidates

A series of word pictures of the Republican Candidates

That John F. Wadlin, well known attorney of Highland, who has ably represented Ulster county in the State Assembly for the past two years, would be named by the Republicans to succeed himself for a second term, was a foregone conclusion.

During his first two years of service Assemblyman Wadlin has fulfilled predictions as to his ability to well and truly represent the interests of the people of Ulster county in the State Legislature and has steadily advanced in standing among his fellow legislators, a matter of no little importance in qualifying him to serve his constituents to the highest possible degree.

At the outset of his legislative career he was given four important committee assignments. He has served on these committees throughout the two years he has been in Albany and has become thoroughly familiar with their workings and with the fields of vital activities which fall within their jurisdiction. They are the committees on Labor and Industry, The City of New York, Civil Service and Internal Affairs.

Some of the matters which fall within scope of these committees are of deep concern to the people of Ulster county and they have been fortunate in having their representative named to membership on them and thus be in a position where he make himself felt should need arise.

Mr. Wadlin's ability and standing in his home town were recognized in numerous ways before he began his legislative career at Albany. He was chairman of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors at the time of his election to the Assembly in 1940, resigning the position to take up his duties as an Assemblyman. Before that he had served the town of Lloyd as a Justice of the Peace, as a member of the Central Rural School District Board of Education and as a Fire Commissioner of the Highland Fire District. The keen interest he has taken in the welfare of his town and community, and the experience he gained by participation in its affairs, social, civic and political, have stood him in good stead in his legislative work.

Fraternally Mr. Wadlin is a member of the B. P. O. E., the I. O. O. F. and of Adonai Lodge No. 718, F. & A. M., Highland, of which he is a past master. He also served as district deputy grand master of the Green-Ulster Masonic District, 1938-39. He is a member and treasurer of the Highland Savings and Loan Association.

Mr. Wadlin attended Cornell University, following which he graduated from the Law School of St. Lawrence University and was admitted to the Bar in 1925.

In 1935 Mr. Wadlin was married to Beatrice Hasbrouck, an attorney of Highland. They have two daughters, Elizabeth and Diane.

Maine Foretop for Scrap

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP) — The foretop of the battleship Maine, long displayed as an historic relic at Annapolis, is going on the scrap heap. The Navy announced today that trophies and relics of five wars would be collected at the Naval Academy to be sold and melted down to provide weapons for this war as part of the nation-wide scrap salvage campaign. The Navy said the academy scrap collection was expected to yield 462,000 pounds of iron and steel and 41,000 pounds of brass and bronze. In addition, miscellaneous equipment formerly used at the academy for training was expected to yield about 300 tons of assorted metal scrap.

Joseph Effers and four friends from New York spent the week-end at the Twin Cottage.

William Barbanes of New York spent the week-end with the Effers family.

Mose Wallace of Poughkeepsie spent Wednesday at his cottage here.

Mrs. Anna Maschino and Mrs. Elizabeth Hussman spent Tuesday afternoon in Kingston.

Joe Effers of New York is spending two weeks vacation with his parents at the Twin Cottage.

Mrs. Ray LeFevre and Mrs. Edward Dession spent Wednesday afternoon visiting friends in Kingston.

Vincent Sanfelice of New York is spending a few days with his family.

Warren Mowle, school collector for District No. 3, will continue to collect taxes at his home until November 10 at 5 per cent.

Miss Eileen McLaren has left for New York where she is employed.

WOMEN TO TACKLE BOMBS

Women have volunteered in large numbers in London since the order was issued for compulsory fire-watching. Housewives of Bermondsey and Rotherhithe, badly blitzed areas, are the most advanced in training. The Midland Region fire defense contest, first of its kind in the country, was swamped with entries.

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY

Some of the many fall novels—

If it were true that the war is turning public taste away from fiction, the books on my desk would not be there. If anything, there are more novels this fall than last.

Stefan Heym's "Hostages" is one of these. It is a keenly plotted and pleasantly written story about the events that followed the disappearance of a drunken German officer in a waterfront cafe in Prague. Although there are many more people than seven in the book, Mr. Heym has centered things on one really interesting woman and six men. The book has power, which is nothing unusual. It has also warmth and a sort of electric quality that holds it above the ruck of novels which use the war as a base.

So does John Burgan's "Even My Own Brother" have power. At the end you need no diagram—this sort of thing has been happening all over the country and you know it. Lang Taylor is Mr. Burgan's "hero" and he is typical of quite a few people you know, yourself. He begins as a recently fired gas station employe, and by successive steps, politics and a fascist-minded organization dedicated to the proposition of pensions for the aged among them, he becomes the sort of material Nazi Germany feeds on. Mr. Burgan's writing is strong to the edge of violence, and what he says has a bite in it.

Lloyd C. Douglas has made a ten-strike in "The Robe." That is to say, he has combined his curious power to write novels the people want to read with a good deal of Biblical knowledge, and probably has done much to keep the home fires burning in the Douglas house. The book is the story of the soldier who won Christ's robe when he tossed with his comrades for it at the Crucifixion. Oddly, it was written after a saleswoman in an Ohio department store asked Mr. Douglas what became of the robe. It is one of the author's best.

And Harold Matthews' "River Bottom Boy" is a sometimes bawdy, always sincere story about a family of Negroes who went to New Orleans with the idea that the city might give them a better life, and found the opposite to be the case. Mr. Matthews knows Negroes, knows New Orleans, and writes neatly.

TROOPER CORNERS-MILK

Australians are amazed at the American soldier's craving for milk, particularly for a milk and malt mixture as "sweet milk." A milkman visiting a camp near Melbourne sold his remaining supply of sweet milk, 10 bottles in all, to a soldier who returned the empty bottles before the milkman left the camp.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Trip to Europe Will Stir Up Interest, but Her Comments Should Be Without Private Sponsorship

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 24—Announcement that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has arrived in England, presumably by airplane, is unique in the annals of government. Never before has a first lady gone abroad alone while her husband was in public office. But Mrs. Roosevelt is different in many other respects from the wives of other presidents. She is a public figure in her own right.

The visit will stir up considerable interest, however, not because it is unprecedented but because Mrs. Roosevelt is an alert-minded observer with a decidedly liberal viewpoint. For her to see with her own eyes the way Britain is organized for war, the way the American troops are quartered and what the effects are of the presence of such a large American army in England will mean an interesting flow of information.

It would be a mistake, of course, if Mrs. Roosevelt confined her published comments to private sponsons because what she has to say is of interest to all Americans, and she is being received abroad not as a private individual but with all the ceremony that befits a reception to the wife of a president of the United States.

While Europeans are aware of how unregal the American attitude is, especially toward celebrities, there is, nevertheless, abroad a tendency to regard the wife of a chief executive of any major power as comparable in importance to a queen. The British, who are noted for their hospitality and deference to important visitors, will not spare any of the trimmings and Mrs. Roosevelt will have about as interesting a time as she has had on any of her journeys in the last nine years.

Mrs. Roosevelt is not the kind of a person who cares very much about the dinners and the parties. She has a distinct flair for sociological study and observation and she will no doubt ask many questions and visit many places that will not prove either entertaining or pleasant. For she will wish to know how the underprivileged are getting along and what strides Britain is making toward the removal of those inequities of class and group that have plagued England for so many years.

Nor will Mrs. Roosevelt's questions be trite or formal. She has a habit of penetrating the most complicated controversies. It would not be surprising if she sought information on Britain's policy toward India, on the attitude toward Russia, and particularly on the manner in which the workers are being compensated during the long hours in the factories and the mines.

Even such a delicate subject as the post-war world in its relation to the British empire possessions would not be by-passed by Mrs. Roosevelt if she found among prominent British officials those who were inclined to express to her the British viewpoint. After all, she already has a personal acquaintance not only with the king and queen but with Prime Minister Churchill, since these dignitaries and others in the cabinet have visited the White House in recent years.

From the American viewpoint, there will be some observers who will insist that woman's place is in the home, even if she is the wife of a president, but there are women who have made a career for themselves without regard to the vocation of the husband. Mrs. Roosevelt has for years shown an independence of mind and an interest in public questions quite apart from the views of her distinguished husband. She is even credited by some observers with having an instinctive liberalism far more pronounced than that of Mr. Roosevelt.

One may differ with the comments and judgments expressed by Mrs. Roosevelt; and in many instances she has certainly spoken without thorough knowledge of the background and circumstances of particular controversies, but it cannot be said that she has anything but an honest approach to the social questions of the day. Indeed, her frankness and outspoken comments at times are the result of her forthrightness of view rather than of any artificial purpose such as might customarily come with a political objective.

When Mrs. Roosevelt goes to England in the midst of war, braving the hazards of trans-oceanic travel, she goes to help bring better understanding between the British and the American peoples. Unofficial emissaries sometimes do a better job than the official envoys—and sometimes, it might be admitted, a woman's approach might even be better than the masculine ego is willing to concede.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

With "Bud" Culloton on the mound and Jack Robins behind the plate the Kingston Colonials on July 10, 1927, defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates at the Kingston Fair Grounds by a score of 6 to 1 before a small audience which ventured out to see the game in spite of the misty, rainy weather that prevailed that afternoon.

Other players in the Kingston line-up that afternoon were Howie Carter, Kelly, Shay, McDermott, Allen, Bill Schwab and Loeser.

And speaking of baseball I recall the days when former Police Sergeant William F. Hanley used to toss them over for the local cops with "Gus" Kuehn behind the plate. They made a great pair. Older readers will recall the days before Hanley became a cop when he used to twirl in the old Hudson River League in the days at the turn of the century. He also at one time hurled them over for the famous Chandlers of Dutchess county.

Former Sergeant Hanley died on July 5, 1927, in his home on Shufeldt street, about two years after he had retired from the police force. He was appointed a member of the police force on February 1, 1913.

Ground was broken on Thursday afternoon, July 14, 1927, for the new building at Gleneric Park on the 10-acre plot of ground that the Kingston Y's Men's Club had bought for use as a summer camp by the local "Y".

Charles Ramsey, president of the board of directors of the "Y" dug the first spadeful of ground with Dr. Julian I. Gifford, president of the Y's Men's Club acting as master of ceremonies. The Rev. Dr. Lucas Boeve of the First Dutch Church offered the prayer, and brief addresses were made by "Pop" Hinds, physical director and several others.

The plans for the building called for a structure 64 feet long and 24 feet in width. Architect George E. Lowe had prepared the plans.

Mr. Ramsey for years was active in the local "Y" and did much to carry on the activities of the association. "Pop" Hinds was widely known as a physical director, and while in Kingston turned out some of the fastest amateur basketball teams in the history of the association.

The days of the silent pictures was recalled to my mind by reading an item dated July 12, 1917, which said that Star Theatre on Broadway, near the Broadway crossing, had closed its doors. I recall the days when this theatre was operated by the late Phil Sampson, who with his brother for years conducted Sampson Brothers clothing house in the building now housing The Freeman on lower Broadway.

Superintendents in Line

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—National Selective Service System officials disclosed today that local draft boards had been advised that school superintendents were eligible for occupational deferment under certain conditions. Similar eligibility was conferred upon presidents, deans and registrars in junior colleges, colleges, universities and professional schools along with professors and instructors engaged in full-time instruction and research in 20 specified subjects. Superintendents affected are those of elementary, secondary and preparatory school systems, and the same eligibility was given to teachers engaged in full-time instruction in aeronautics, biology, chemistry, mathematics, physics and radio.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Back in 1940, when John L. Lewis, then just about kingpin in the C. I. O., put his chips on Wendell L. Willkie, I remember using a quote from someone who knows the old union rebel better than any one else. The quote was: "Don't forget that first and always, he's a good gambler."

In 1940, Lewis lost and for quite a while after that it appeared that his chips were dwindling. Whether they still are remains to be seen, but by his announcement that he is withdrawing the United Mine Workers from the C. I. O. Lewis has certainly demanded a new shuffle.

The question now is can Lewis gather enough supporters around him from the independent unions and possibly from dissatisfied unions in the C. I. O. and A. F. L., to rebuild the power he once held.

He is, of course, employing the old battle strategy of divide-and-conquer. According to labor observers here, Lewis' plan had this advantage: his opponents were already divided.

In addition, there are some potent independent unions that have nothing to do with either the C. I. O. or A. F. L., which might be recruited on a new front.

Considering these things, is it any wonder that Lewis was willing to call for a new stack and another deal?

The talk of a "labor peace" between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. has been kicked around ever since Lewis led the original rebellion. There have been times when it appeared more impossible than it has in recent weeks. But to those who know the extent of the jurisdictional differences, it never has appeared likely. The war effort hasn't changed the situation at all. In many instances, it has widened the gap. A quick glance at the rapid growth of union membership in the last year or so will make that understandable. Where the A. F. L. and C. I. O. once fought over hundreds of members and jurisdiction on a score of jobs, they now have to settle those same problems multiplied by hundreds.

Probably a much more important factor in the now three-cornered labor union struggle is the trend which manpower legislation will take.

If it comes down to a work-or-fight ultimatum, with wages controlled, the union game may have to be called off for the duration for lack of cards—at least so far as the three leaders are concerned.

As a matter of fact, with James F. Byrnes now firmly in the saddle as stabilization czar, and likely to be able to call forth any further legislation necessary to enforce economic controls on all fronts, that time may already have arrived.

SOLOMONS AND SEDAN

Ever since 1870 Sedan has been a word of ill omen to the French. There the Emperor Napoleon III surrendered with his entire army to the Prussians under Von Moltke, thereby losing both the war and Alsace-Lorraine. In 1918 the unpleasant association was forgotten for a time, when Sedan marked the farthest advance of the victorious French army before the armistice. But in 1940 the old reputation of the town reappeared stronger than ever. Here the Germans made the final break-through that brought the French army to its knees.

So far the Solomon Islands have been Japan's Sedan. There, after their initial conquest they have suffered defeat after defeat. Just lately, after a coup in which they sank four American warships, they slumped again and lost five vessels of their own. They then engaged in a protracted battle which ought to make or break the reputation of the islands for Japan.

Some savage tribes refuse to utter the name of a place or thing that has brought them continual ill fortune. It would not be surprising if the Japanese, whose conduct shows them to be as savage as any painted man with a flint axe, should in their future histories refuse to mention the Solomons.

TOO MUCH JUNK

All that junk turned in in recent weeks throughout the country wasn't necessarily patriotic. A lot of it might be strategic, from the viewpoint of a housewife or househusband. Everybody knows how junk tends to accumulate even around the most orderly home. Usually that comes from mere indolence, but often it is a case of false thrift. Somebody around the place simply can't bear to sell old stuff or give it away. So it accumulates in the basement and elsewhere, and may choke up the place until the family can hardly turn around to get essential work done.

But a welcome light must have broken over thousands of homes, as a result of the recent overhauling. The home is so much cleaner and more spacious when a lot of rubbish has been removed. Housekeeping is made simpler and easier. With the practice once started, millions of people may want to keep it up for their own benefit, and have regular junking festivals at least a couple of times a year. The orderly life is wonderful, when the family gets used to it.

A RECORD TO BE PROUD OF

One of the outstanding Republican leaders in New York state is Senator Arthur H. Wicks, chairman of the state finance committee and senior Republican senator in the State Senate. He was first elected to the state legislature in 1926, and has served the people of the 29th district so well that he was the unanimous choice of the Republican party to succeed himself.

In the early years of the depression he introduced the Wicks act, which became a law when unemployment and want prevailed throughout the state. This act for the first time in the history of the state created statewide agencies for handling the problem of public relief and the care of the unemployed.

Senator Wicks is widely known as a liberal in the field of labor legislation, and his labor record is outstanding.

During the sixteen years he has served this district in Albany he has proven one of the most progressive men in public life. For years he has been known as a fighting senator working not only for the benefit of his own district but the entire state.

That Senator Wicks will be returned to the state legislature by an even larger majority than he has ever received in the past is a foregone conclusion.

FUTURE RIDING

When this present unpleasantness is over, says Tom L. Johnson, nephew and namesake of a famous Cleveland mayor, who now represents a Toledo automobile company, "We'll be able to put on the market a small four-cylinder car which will sell for about $500, go 45 miles on a gallon of gas, save rubber on tires, have a top speed around 80 miles an hour, and go anywhere. What more can anyone want?"

It sounds like a sublimated jeep, and millions may be waiting and watching for it. With the present standstill in production of private cars, they'll probably be car-crazy by the time the war ends.

But who knows? By that time it might be aerial runabouts that they want. The planners may be wise to plan for wings as well as wheels.

NAZI VIEW OF WAR

To most people war is about the most dreadful evil that can be imagined, except, of course, domination by the Axis nations. Yet such countries do not regard it in this light. In fact, they seem rather pleased with it. Witness these words of General von Bock, Hitler's commander in Russia:

"Wars are not only inevitable, but essential as population regulators. They are like an endless game of cards. Sometimes one person wins, sometimes another, but the clever player manages to keep his average high."

This cold-blooded attitude toward so great an evil is only one of the many counts that make the world so anxious to wipe out Nazism.

"Tiring women" used to dress queens, but now they just put air in anybody's tires.

Does Hitler wish he had not said a few days ago, "We shall take Stalingrad?"

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act).

CAUSES OF ACNE

One of the facts physicians have been learning the past few years is that some ailments or groups of symptoms are not due to one cause but to several and if one of these causes is removed, the patient gets well and the cure is naturally attributed to the removal of this one cause.

What has happened is that the removal of this one cause enabled the body to overcome the other causes, once freed from this one cause.

One example is acne—pimples. It is now known that acne, coming on at puberty, is related to the sex glands, as injections of sex gland substance has produced acne in several individuals. Yet it is also known that certain foods—fats and starches—can bring on the acne eruption or aggravate an eruption already present.

It is because acne has more than one cause that there have been so many successful methods of curing it reported. Thus the viosterol treatment as suggested by two University of Chicago professors has cured a great many cases and others report that as soon as they stop using viosterol, the acne returns. Other cases receive no help from viosterol.

Other cases of acne have been cured by the injection of pituitary extract every day for thirty or sixty days. And again many other cases receive no help whatever from pituitary extract.

An explanation of why some cases of acne are helped by one form of treatment and others are not, is given by Dr. K. A. Baird, West St. John, New Brunswick, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal. Dr. Baird states that there are three underlying causes in practically all cases of acne, namely an abnormally low blood serum resistance to cocci infection; an abnormal secretion or manufacture of oil in the sebaceous glands of the skin; and a lowered resistance to cocci infection by the skin itself in certain parts—face, chest—aside from the blood stream.

Dr. Baird reports success in 25 cases by treating all three conditions at the same time; mixed vaccines to raise blood serum resistance to cocci infection; injections of anterior pituitary extract and application of a sulphur lotion to restore the oil or sebum to a normal condition; and washing the skin on which pimples are present with hot soapy water, rinse with warm water, and then douche skin with cold water.

Thousands of persons suffer the embarrassment from acne (pimples) at the age when personal appearance is particularly important to them. Republican Candidates

A series of word pictures of the Republican Candidates

That John F. Wadlin, well known attorney of Highland, who has ably represented Ulster county in the State Assembly for the past two years, would be named by the Republicans to succeed himself for a second term, was a foregone conclusion.

During his first two years of service Assemblyman Wadlin has fulfilled predictions as to his ability to well and truly represent the interests of the people of Ulster county in the State Legislature and has steadily advanced in standing among his fellow legislators, a matter of no little importance in qualifying him to serve his constituents to the highest possible degree.

At the outset of his legislative career he was given four important committee assignments. He has served on these committees throughout the two years he has been in Albany and has become thoroughly familiar with their workings and with the fields of vital activities which fall within their jurisdiction. They are the committees on Labor and Industry. The City of New York, Civil Service and Internal Affairs.

Some of the matters which fall within scope of these committees are of deep concern to the people of Ulster county and they have been fortunate in having their representative named to membership on them and thus be in a position where he make himself felt should need arise.

Mr. Wadlin's ability and standing in his home town were recognized in numerous ways before he began his legislative career at Albany. He was chairman of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors at the time of his election to the Assembly in 1940, resigning the position to take up his duties as an Assemblyman. Before that he had served the town of Lloyd as a Justice of the Peace, as a member of the Central Rural School District Board of Education and as a Fire Commissioner of the Highland Fire District. The keen interest he has taken in the welfare of his town and community, and the experience he gained by participation in its affairs, social, civic and political, have stood him in good stead in his legislative work.

Fraternally Mr. Wadlin is a member of the B. P. O. E., the I. O. O. F. and of Adonai Lodge No. 718, F. & A. M., Highland, of which he is a past master. He also served as district deputy grand master of the Green-Ulster Masonic District, 1938-39. He is a member and treasurer of the Highland Savings and Loan Association.

Mr. Wadlin attended Cornell University, following which he graduated from the Law School of St. Lawrence University and was admitted to the Bar in 1925.

In 1935 Mr. Wadlin was married to Beatrice Hasbrouck, an attorney of Highland. They have two daughters, Elizabeth and Diane.

Maine Foretop for Scrap

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP) — The foretop of the battleship Maine, long displayed as an historic relic at Annapolis, is going on the scrap heap. The Navy announced today that trophies and relics of five wars would be collected at the Naval Academy to be sold and melted down to provide weapons for this war as part of the nationwide scrap salvage campaign. The Navy said the academy scrap collection was expected to yield 462,000 pounds of iron and steel and 41,000 pounds of brass and bronze. In addition, miscellaneous equipment formerly used at the academy for training was expected to yield about 300 tons of assorted metal scrap.

Some of the many fall novels—

If it were true that the war is turning public taste away from fiction, the books on my desk would not be there. If anything, there are more novels this fall than last.

Stefan Heym's "Hostages" is one of these. It is a keenly plotted and pleasantly written story about the events that followed the disappearance of a drunken German officer in a waterfront cafe in Prague. Although there are many more people than seven in the book, Mr. Heym has centered things on one really interesting woman and six men. The book has power, which is nothing unusual. It has also warmth and a sort of electric quality that holds it above the ruck of novels which use the war as a base.

So does John Burgan's "Even My Own Brother" have power. At the end you need no diagram—this sort of thing has been happening all over the country and you know it. Lang Taylor is Mr. Burgan's "hero" and he is typical of quite a few people you know, yourself. He begins as a recently fired gas station employe and by successive steps, politics and a fascist-minded organization dedicated to the proposition of pensions for the aged among them, he becomes the sort of material Nazi Germany feeds on. Mr. Burgan's writing is strong to the edge of violence, and what he says has a bite in it.

Lloyd C. Douglas has made a ten-strike in "The Robe." That is to say, he has combined his curious power to write novels the people want to read with a good deal of Biblical knowledge, and probably has done much to keep the home fires burning in the Douglas house. The book is the story of the soldier who won Christ's robe when he tossed with his comrades for it at the Crucifixion. Oddly, it was written after a saleswoman in an Ohio department store asked Mr. Douglas what became of the robe. It is one of the author's best.

And Harold Matthews' "River Bottom Boy" is a sometimes bawdy, always sincere story about a family of Negroes who went to New Orleans with the idea that the city might give them a better life, and found the opposite to be the case. Mr. Matthews knows Negroes, knows New Orleans, and writes neatly.

TROOPER CORNERS MILK

Australians are amazed at the American soldier's craving for milk, particularly for a milk and malt mixture as "sweet milk." A milkman visiting a camp near Melbourne sold his remaining supply of sweet milk, 10 bottles in all, to a soldier who returned the empty bottles before the milkman left the camp.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Trip to Europe Will Stir Up Interest, but Her Comments Should Be Without Private Sponsorship

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 24—Announcement that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has arrived in England, presumably by airplane, is unique in the annals of government. Never before has a first lady gone abroad alone while her husband was in public office. But Mrs. Roosevelt is different in many other respects from the wives of other presidents. She is a public figure in her own right.

The visit will stir up considerable interest, however, not because it is unprecedented but because Mrs. Roosevelt is an alert-minded observer with a decidedly liberal viewpoint. For her to see with her own eyes the way Britain is organized for war, the way the American troops are quartered and what the effects are of the presence of such a large American army in England will mean an interesting flow of information.

It would be a mistake, of course, if Mrs. Roosevelt confined her published comments to private sponsons because what she has to say is of interest to all Americans, and she is being received abroad not as a private individual but with all the ceremony that befits a reception to the wife of a president of the United States.

While Europeans are aware of how unregal the American attitude is, especially toward celebrities, there is, nevertheless, abroad a tendency to regard the wife of a chief executive of any major power as comparable in importance to a queen. The British, who are noted for their hospitality and deference to important visitors, will not spare any of the trimmings and Mrs. Roosevelt will have about as interesting a time as she has had on any of her journeys in the last nine years.

Mrs. Roosevelt is not the kind of a person who cares very much about the dinners and the parties. She has a distinct flair for sociological study and observation and she will no doubt ask many questions and visit many places that will not prove either entertaining or pleasant. For she will wish to know how the underprivileged are getting along and what strides Britain is making toward the removal of those inequities of class and group that have plagued England for so many years.

Nor will Mrs. Roosevelt's questions be trite or formal. She has a habit of penetrating the most complicated controversies. It would not be surprising if she sought information on Britain's policy toward India, on the attitude toward Russia, and particularly on the manner in which the workers are being compensated during the long hours in the factories and the mines.

Even such a delicate subject as the post-war world in its relation to the British empire possessions would not be by-passed by Mrs. Roosevelt if she found among prominent British officials those who were inclined to express to her the British viewpoint. After all, she already has a personal acquaintance not only with the king and queen but with Prime Minister Churchill, since these dignitaries and others in the cabinet have visited the White House in recent years.

From the American viewpoint, there will be some observers who will insist that woman's place is in the home, even if she is the wife of a president, but there are women who have made a career for themselves without regard to the vocation of the husband. Mrs. Roosevelt has for years shown an independence of mind and an interest in public questions quite apart from the views of her distinguished husband. She is even credited by some observers with having an instinctive liberalism far more pronounced than that of Mr. Roosevelt.

One may differ with the comments and judgments expressed by Mrs. Roosevelt, and in many instances she has certainly spoken without thorough knowledge of the background and circumstances of particular controversies, but it cannot be said that she has anything but an honest approach to the social questions of the day. Indeed, her frankness and outspoken comments at times are the result of her forthrightness of view rather than of any artificial purpose such as might customarily come with a political objective.

When Mrs. Roosevelt goes to England in the midst of war, braving the hazards of trans-oceanic travel, she goes to help bring better understanding between the British and the American peoples. Unofficial emissaries sometimes do a better job than the official envoys—and sometimes, it might be admitted, a woman's approach might even be better than the masculine ego is willing to concede.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

With "Bud" Culloton on the mound and Jack Robins behind the plate the Kingston Colonials on July 10, 1927, defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates at the Kingston Fair Grounds by a score of 6 to 1 before a small audience which ventured out to see the game in spite of the misty, rainy weather that prevailed that afternoon.

Other players in the Kingston line-up that afternoon were Howie Carter, Kelly, Shay, McDermott, Allen, Bill Schwab and Loeser.

And speaking of baseball I recall the days when former Police Sergeant William F. Hanley used to toss them over for the local cops with "Gus" Kuehn behind the plate. They made a great pair. Older readers will recall the days before Hanley became a cop when he used to twirl in the old Hudson River League in the days at the turn of the century. He also at one time hurled them over for the famous Chandlers of Dutchess county.

Former Sergeant Hanley died on July 5, 1927, in his home on Shufeldt street, about two years after he had retired from the police force. He was appointed a member of the police force on February 1, 1913.

Ground was broken on Thursday afternoon, July 14, 1927, for the new building at Glenerie Park on the 10-acre plot of ground that the Kingston Y's Men's Club had bought for use as a summer camp by the local "Y".

Charles Ramsey, president of the board of directors of the "Y" dug the first spadeful of ground with Dr. Julian I. Gifford, president of the Y's Men's Club acting as master of ceremonies. The Rev. Dr. Lucas Boeve of the First Dutch Church offered the prayer, and brief addresses were made by "Pop" Hinds, physical director and several others.

The plans for the building called for a structure 64 feet long and 24 feet in width. Architect George E. Lowe had prepared the plans

Mr. Ramsey for years was active in the local "Y" and did much to carry on the activities of the association. "Pop" Hinds was widely known as a physical director, and while in Kingston turned out some of the fastest amateur basketball teams in the history of the association.

The days of the silent pictures was recalled to my mind by reading an item dated July 12, 1917, which said that Star Theatre, on Broadway, near the Broadway crossing, had closed its doors. I recall the days when this theatre was operated by the late Phil Sampson, who with his brother for years conducted Sampson Brothers clothing house in the building now housing The Freeman on lower Broadway.

Superintendents in Line

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—National Selective Service System officials disclosed today that local draft boards had been advised that school superintendents were eligible for occupational deferment under certain conditions. Similar eligibility was conferred upon presidents, deans and registrars in junior colleges, colleges, universities and professional schools along with professors and instructors engaged in full-time instruction and research in 20 specified subjects. Superintendents affected are those of elementary, secondary and preparatory school systems, and the same eligibility was given to teachers engaged in full-time instruction in aeronautics, biology, chemistry, mathematics, physics and radio.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Back in 1940, when John L. Lewis, then just about kingpin in the C. I. O., put his chips on Wendell L. Willkie, I remember using a quote from someone who knows the old union rebel better than any one else. The quote was: "Don't forget that first and always, he's a good gambler."

In 1940, Lewis lost and for quite a while after that it appeared that his chips were dwindling. Whether they still are remains to be seen, but by his announcement that he is withdrawing the United Mine Workers from the C. I. O., Lewis has certainly demanded a new shuffle.

The question now is can Lewis gather enough supporters around him from the independent unions and possibly from dissatisfied unions in the C. I. O. and A. F. L., to rebuild the power he once held.

He is, of course, employing the old battle strategy of divide-and-conquer. According to labor observers here, Lewis' plan had this advantage: his opponents were already divided.

In addition, there are some potent independent unions that have nothing to do with either the C. I. O. or A. F. L., which might be recruited on a new front.

Considering these things, is it any wonder that Lewis was willing to call for a new stack and another deal?

The talk of a "labor peace" between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. has been kicked around ever since Lewis led the original rebellion. There have been times when it appeared more impossible than it has in recent weeks. But to those who know the extent of the jurisdictional differences, it never has appeared likely. The war effort hasn't changed the situation at all. In many instances, it has widened the gap. A quick glance at the rapid growth of union membership in the last year or so will make that understandable. Where the A. F. L. and C. I. O. once fought over hundreds of members and jurisdiction on a score of jobs, they now have to settle those same problems multiplied by hundreds.

Probably a much more important factor in the now three-cornered labor union struggle is the trend which manpower legislation will take.

If it comes down to a work-or-fight ultimatum, with wages controlled, the union game may have to be called off for the duration for lack of cards—at least so far as the three leaders are concerned.

At a matter of fact, with James F. Byrnes now firmly in the saddle as stabilization czar, and likely to be able to call forth any further legislation necessary to enforce economic controls on all fronts, that time may already have arrived.

Conference Held By Missionary Union

Approximately 130 women gathered at the Bloomington Reformed Church Thursday for the 20th anniversary of the Missionary Union, Classis of Ulster.

The session started at 10:00 with Mrs. A. Noble Graham presiding. Supporting Mrs. Graham as president was Mrs. Matthew DeWitt and Mrs. Grant Johnson, first and second vice presidents respectively.

Following the opening hymn, the devotions were conducted by the Rev. W. K. Haysom, pastor of the church. The Rev. Mr. Haysom's topic was "Heeding the Macedonian Call," taken from Acts 16: 1-15. If this call had been heeded and the missionary movement had been lived to its fullest, he believed we would not now be at war. The answer to an enduring peace lies with the Christians of the world, who already have that victory in their hands. He gave a challenge to each one to return to her church and talk for "bigger and better" things.

Preceding the annual business, a letter from Mrs. Hubert Kuyper was read by Miss Florence Relyea, corresponding secretary. Mrs. Kuyper is Ulster Classis own missionary to the Japanese people and she is now stationed at Stockton, Cal., where she is working among them. Her letter told of the loyalty of many of the Japanese to America, how they are trying to adjust themselves to the conditions in the barracks and of their cooperative spirit in obeying all the laws they are subject to.

Under annual business, Mrs. Harry Darling gave a brief report of the executive meetings held during the year. Mrs. Harry Ten Hagen, treasurer of the union submitted her report, showing a balance of $32.97 in the general fund. The assignment of classical visitors was given by Mrs. Edgar Ellsworth and Miss Florence Relyea read the reports from the 20 auxiliaries which comprise the Ulster Classis.

Following a solo "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings" sung by Mrs. Charles Schwab and accompanied by Mrs. William Eltinge, the report on Young Peoples work was given. In the absence of Miss Geraldine Peters, classical representative of this work Mrs. Stephen Ryder read the report.

Among the outstanding things that the Girls Leagues of the different churches have accomplished this year, have been the sending of members to the Northfield Missionary Conference, the Burden Lake Youth Conference and to a Retreat held at the Y. W. C. A. camp in High Woods. They have contributed to both foreign and domestic missions work, furnishing flowers for worship services, visited the sick, made baskets for the poor at Christmas, furnished clothing to the needy, had a booth at an annual fair of the church, presented plays, sponsored an Easter presentation and held picnics and a mother and daughter banquet.

Miss Marie Zwemer, who for 25 years has worked among the mountain people of Jackson County, Ky., was the speaker at the morning session. She spoke of the pioneer works which was started 42 years ago by two women, one a doctor and one a nurse, and what progress had been made. Miss Zwemer's work has been chiefly among children and young people and her talk was based largely on personal incidents that she had observed in the lives of these young people.

Annville students after completing college courses, return to their own people and serve them not only as doctors, lawyers, teachers and nurses, but as religious leaders carrying on the work of the church.

The morning session was closed with a hymn and a prayer by the Rev. Herbert Greenland.

A lunch was served by the ladies of the church. The table decorations were centerpieces of Indian tepees with smaller tepees for favors at each place. Fall flowers and pieces of handicraft made by the Indians of Peru and loaned by Mrs. Byron Johnson, gave a colorful effect to the room. During the luncheon, James F. Osterhoudt was honored in a short talk given by the Rev. Mr. Haysom. Mr. Osterhoudt, who on the following day would be 93 years old, has for many years been a faithful attendant at the fall conferences.

The first address of the afternoon was given by Mrs. Edgar F. Romig, president of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church of America, who represented both the domestic and foreign boards. She painted a word picture of the accomplishments she had seen achieved by the boards during the past 25 years since she had been a member. In the domestic field she told of the progress that had been made at Dulce, N. M. This work started in a small mission school. Seeing the need of more adequate equipment to care for the great number of Indians who were dying from tuberculosis, the board interested the government and now the large government building has been erected. Another example of the work among the Indians is the Rev. Robert Chaat, a full blooded Comanche Indian who has become an ordained minister of the Reformed Church. He is now serving a parish among his own people at Lawton, Okla. She spoke of the Italian work being carried on in the Reformed missions in Newburgh, Brooklyn and Hackensack, N. J. Another branch of the domestic work is the National Council of Home Missions, working among migrants.

In the foreign field Mrs. Romig reported numerous schools, colleges and hospitals throughout China, Japan, India and Arabia.

Mrs. Romig spoke of the Christian enterprise as a blueprint, with love making the impressions. "Little kindly things that are done," she said, "are lines in this blueprint that is sure to have its effect on someone."

In closing she spoke of the loyalty of the American people in giving 10 per cent to the government for war purposes. There must be a substitute for this giving after the war is over and she stressed that all must be willing to sacrifice as much for the church as they did for the war.

Miss Belle F. Bogard, missionary from Japan, was the second speaker of the afternoon. "Love" was her topic from St. John 15:12. She showed how different was Christ's philosophy of love to the hatred that is in the world today, even entering into the hearts of little children. Miss Bogard divided the Japanese people into three categories, the military group, the larger group of the common people out of which the Christian church has been formed, and the Japanese as individuals. She said there were 250,000 Japanese Christians, who are worshipping in 2 600 churches of different denominations. The mission schools and colleges are a part of this church group and she spoke extensively of Ferris Seminary, which is supported by the Reformed Church. She stated that the work was still being carried on there. As American teachers leave the faculty, Japanese youth who have been educated in America or at Ferris Seminary take their place.

In speaking of individuals, she told of one Japanese Christian, who, after the war had started, had jeopardized his own safety in order to cable to the U. S. for funds to obtain the release of several American missionaries, who were being detained. When brought before the police on the accusation of aiding alien enemies, he said, "I am a Christian, I could do nothing else."

In describing the military group, Miss Bogard said they dictated and the common people had to obey. This military group is the one which is responsible for the heinous crimes that have been committed, she said.

In speaking of the economic condition, Miss Bogard told of conditions as they existed 1½ years ago, when she left Japan. She told of the scarcity of all staple goods and the inferior quality of garments which were made of 10 per cent wool or cotton and 90 per cent wood fibre. These garments will shrink so much after a few washings that they will become useless. As an example of the rise in prices, Miss Bogard inquired the cost of half soling shoes and found she would be charged $8.50 in Japanese money for this work. If leather is furnished $3.50 is charged.

Miss Bogard urged all to have more love and tolerance. She showed where America had not been entirely guiltless. "We must scrutinize," she said, "where we have failed, for it is not love that fails, but we who fail love. If we had tithed for God as we do for war, we would have evangelized more of the world."

An invitation was accepted to hold next fall's conference at the Woodstock Reformed Church.

Gardens Club Studies Grapes And Use of Leaves in Garden

The regular meeting of the Little Gardens Club was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. H. Niles, 193 Pearl street. Following the business meeting the remainder of the afternoon was spent on the program which consisted of two papers.

The first paper, "Grapes, Their Care for Successful Growth" was presented by Mrs. Edmund Hathaway. This paper covered the correct pruning and transplanted soil treatment, the pests and blights affecting the vines. Many points were brought out in this paper that helped solve problems for several members.

The next paper, "Piles of Leaves," prepared by Dr. Howard B. Sprague, agronomist at the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station was presented by Mrs. Sidney Clapp. This is a timely topic and explained how excellent humus can be prepared in home gardens by gathering the leaves and sprinkling each layer with a small amount of lime or commercial fertilizer with about five pounds of fertilizer to 100 pounds of leaves and keeping the pile moist. This is nature's rich source of humus to improve garden flowers and shrubs.

At the conclusion of the program, the hostess served refreshments with Mrs. Harry Myers presiding at the coffee table.

Bouquets of chrysanthemums, lavender groupings for the table, decorated the reception hall and the rooms. In keeping with the season the home had been trimmed with Halloween characters and streamers. Mrs. Charles Hardenbergh assisted by pouring.

The musical was thoroughly enjoyed in its informal presentation. A few words of explanation by the artists were given as they announced their groups of numbers for the audience. Mrs. Francis Smiley played two groups of piano numbers, the first including groups of the old masters and the second of today's composers with one by Vladimir Padwa that is almost "jazz." Mrs. Henry F. Dunbar sang two groups of folk songs and Miss Susanne Dunbar played two sprightly dances on her violin.

Mrs. Sheldon also played a group of piano numbers, written for left hand alone. Mrs. Florence Cubberly played a group of violin solos, accompanied by Miss Helen Turner.

INTRODUCING STRANGERS TO OTHER STRANGERS

A situation which is described as having "no beginning" is sent me in this letter from a member of a civilian defense committee.

"I know all these women who are doing civilian defense work, but have never met or seen their husbands, or they mine. There is to be a dance soon, to raise money for emergency equipment and we will all be there with our husbands. How will I introduce my husband to Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Green, and to their husbands when I don't know any of the husbands. And what shall I do about introducing Mr. and Mrs. Brown who are going with us and who will be total strangers?

Answer: You introduce your husband and also the Browns to Mrs. Jones and then wait for Mrs. Jones to introduce her husband. If she does not do this you ask the man you believe to be her husband, "Are you Mr. Jones?" If he says, "Yes" you say, "I'm Mrs. Gray," and then add, "May I introduce you to Mrs. Brown—and Mr. Brown—and my husband?" You say the same to the others. If the supposed Mr. Jones had replied, "I'm not Mr. Jones" and gave you no further information, you could just the same have said, "I'm Mrs. Gray. May I introduce you to Mrs. Brown?"

If he does not tell you his name let it go! Unless later on you have to introduce him to someone, you can then say, "You never told me your name!" Of course if he did tell you and you forgot, this is the awkward situation that keeps many a charming person from being a social success.

Meant to Be Polite

Dear Mrs. Post: The other evening my fiance and a girl friend of mine and I went to a restaurant for supper where there were booths. She got in one side and I in the other and instead of sitting in the same side with me, my fiance sat across from me with my girl friend. I sat alone. I thought he should have sat with me, and told him so later.

He contended the girl was our guest, and he sat exactly where he was supposed to under the circumstances. I didn't mean to quarrel about it and I'm sure he didn't either, but that is almost what it came to. Now just out of curiosity we'd like to know who was right about the booth?

Answer: It's very easy to understand why he thought as he did—in fact it might have been for two reasons. The first, you and he together would have shut her out so completely as to be discourteous. Whereas (in his mind) he could not have imagined you as shut out from this girl and himself. The other reason is that had you been married, the place he took would have been right according to etiquette. Even so—since you are not yet married, you were right.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "Restaurant and the Theatre." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage.

Conference Held By Missionary Union

Approximately 130 women gathered at the Bloomington Reformed Church Thursday for the 20th anniversary of the Missionary Union, Classis of Ulster.

The session started at 10:00 with Mrs. A. Noble Graham presiding. Supporting Mrs. Graham as president was Mrs. Matthew DeWitt and Mrs. Grant Johnson, first and second vice presidents respectively.

Following the opening hymn, the devotions were conducted by the Rev. W. K. Haysom, pastor of the church. The Rev. Mr. Haysom's topic was "Heeding the Macedonian Call," taken from Acts 16: 1-15. If this call had been heeded and the missionary movement had been lived to its fullest, he believed we would not now be at war. The answer to an enduring peace lies with the Christians of the world, who already have that victory in their hands. He gave a challenge to each one to return to her church and talk for "bigger and better" things.

Preceding the annual business, a letter from Mrs. Hubert Kuyper was read by Miss Florence Relyea, corresponding secretary. Mrs. Kuyper is Ulster Classis own missionary to the Japanese people and she is now stationed at Stockton, Cal., where she is working among them. Her letter told of the loyalty of many of the Japanese to America, how they are trying to adjust themselves to the conditions in the barracks and of their cooperative spirit in obeying all the laws they are subject to.

Under annual business, Mrs. Harry Durling gave a brief report of the executive meetings held during the year. Mrs. Harry Ten Hagen, treasurer of the union submitted her report, showing a balance of $32.97 in the general fund. The assignment of classical visitors was given by Mrs. Edgar Ellsworth and Miss Florence Relyea read the reports from the 20 auxiliaries which comprise the Ulster Classis.

Following a solo "How Lovely. Are Thy Dwellings" sung by Mrs. Charles Schwab and accompanied by Mrs. William Eltinge, the report on Young Peoples work was given. In the absence of Miss Geraldine Peters, classical representative of this work Mrs. Stephen Ryder read the report.

Among the outstanding things that the Girls Leagues of the different churches have accomplished this year, have been the sending of members to the Northfield Missionary Conference, the Burden Lake Youth Conference and to a Retreat held at the Y. W. C. A. camp in High Woods. They have contributed to both foreign and domestic missions work, furnishing flowers for worship services, visited the sick, made baskets for the poor at Christmas, furnished clothing to the needy, had a booth at an annual fair of the church, presented plays, sponsored an Easter presentation and held picnics and a mother and daughter banquet.

Miss Marie Zwemer, who for 25 years has worked among the mountain people of Jackson County, Ky., was the speaker at the morning session. She spoke of the pioneer works which was started 42 years ago by two women, one a doctor and one a nurse, and what progress had been made. Miss Zwemer's work has been chiefly among children and young people and her talk was based largely on personal incidents that she had observed in the lives of these young people.

Annville students after completing college courses, return to their own people and serve them not only as doctors, lawyers, teachers and nurses, but as religious leaders carrying on the work of the church.

The morning session was closed with a hymn and a prayer by the Rev. Herbert Greenland.

A lunch was served by the ladies of the church. The table decorations were centerpieces of Indian tepees with smaller tepees for favors at each place. Fall flowers and pieces of handicraft made by the Indians of Peru and loaned by Mrs. Byron Johnson, gave a colorful effect to the room. During the luncheon, James F. Osterhoudt was honored in a short talk given by the Rev. Mr. Haysom. Mr. Osterhoudt, who on the following day would be 93 years old, has for many years been a faithful attendant at the fall conferences.

The first address of the afternoon was given by Mrs. Edgar F. Romig, president of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church of America, who represented both the domestic and foreign boards. She painted a word picture of the accomplishments she had seen achieved by the boards during the past 25 years since she had been a member. In the domestic field she told of the progress that had been made at Dulce, N. M. This work started in a small mission school. Seeing the need of more adequate equipment to care for the great number of Indians who were dying from tuberculosis, the board interested the government and now the large government building has been erected. Another example of the work among the Indians is the Rev. Robert Chaat, a full blooded Comanche Indian who has become an ordained minister of the Reformed Church. He is now serving a parish among his own people at Lawton, Okla. She spoke of the Italian work being carried on in the Reformed missions in Newburgh, Brooklyn and Hackensack, N. J. Another branch of the domestic work is the National Council of Home Missions, working among migrants.

In the foreign field Mrs. Romig reported numerous schools, colleges and hospitals throughout China, Japan, India and Arabia.

Mrs. Romig spoke of the Christian enterprise as a blueprint, with love making the impressions. "Little kindly things that are done," she said, "are lines in this blueprint that is sure to have its effect on someone."

In closing she spoke of the loyalty of the American people in giving 10 per cent to the government for war purposes. There must be a substitute for this giving after the war is over and she stressed that all must be willing to sacrifice as much for the church as they did for the war.

Miss Belle F. Bogard, missionary from Japan, was the second speaker of the afternoon. "Love" was her topic from St. John 15:12. She showed how different was Christ's philosophy of love to the hatred that is in the world today, even entering into the hearts of little children. Miss Bogard divided the Japanese people into three categories, the military group, the larger group of the common people out of which the Christian church has been formed, and the Japanese as individuals. She said there were 250,000 Japanese Christians, who are worshipping in 2 600 churches of different denominations. The mission schools and colleges are a port of this church group and she spoke extensively of Ferris Seminary, which is supported by the Reformed Church. She stated that the work was still being carried on there. As American teachers leave the faculty, Japanese youth who have been educated in America or at Ferris Seminary take their place.

In speaking of individuals, she told of one Japanese Christian, who, after the war had started, had jeopardized his own safety in order to cable to the U. S. for funds to obtain the release of several American missionaries, who were being detained. When brought before the police on the accusation of aiding alien enemies, he said, "I am a Christian, I could do nothing else."

In describing the military group, Miss Bogard said they dictated and the common people had to obey. This military group is the one which is responsible for the heinous crimes that have been committed, she said.

In speaking of the economic condition, Miss Bogard told of conditions as they existed 1½ years ago, when she left Japan. She told of the scarcity of all staple goods and the inferior quality of garments which were made of 10 per cent wool or cotton and 90 per cent wood fibre. These garments will shrink so much after a few washings that they will become useless. As an example of the rise in prices, Miss Bogard inquired the cost of half soling shoes and found she would be charged $8.50 in Japanese money for this work. If leather is furnished $3.50 is charged.

Miss Bogard urged all to have more love and tolerance. She showed where America had not been entirely guiltless. "We must scrutinize," she said, "where we have failed, for it is not love that fails, but we who fail love. If we had tithed for God as we do for war, we would have evangelized more of the world."

An invitation was accepted to hold next fall's conference at the Woodstock Reformed Church.

Sprague, agronomist at the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station was presented by Mrs. Sidney Clapp. This is a timely topic and explained how excellent humus can be prepared in home gardens by gathering the leaves and sprinkling each layer with a small amount of lime or commercial fertilizer with about five pounds of fertilizer to 100 pounds of leaves and keeping the pile moist. This is nature's rich source of humus to improve garden flowers and shrubs.

INTRODUCING STRANGERS TO OTHER STRANGERS

A situation which is described as having "no beginning" is sent me in this letter from a member of a civilian defense committee.

"I know all these women who are doing civilian defense work, but have never met or seen their husbands, or they mine. There is to be a dance soon, to raise money for emergency equipment and we will all be there with our husbands. How will I introduce my husband, to Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Green, and to their husbands when I don't know any of the husbands. And what shall I do about introducing Mr. and Mrs. Brown who are going with us and who will be total strangers?

Answer: You introduce your husband and also the Browns to Mrs. Jones and then wait for Mrs. Jones to introduce her husband. If she does not do this you ask the man you believe to be her husband, "Are you Mr. Jones?" If he says, "Yes" you say, "I'm Mrs. Gray," and then add, "May I introduce you to Mrs. Brown—and Mr. Brown—and my husband?" You say the same to the others. If the supposed Mr. Jones had replied, "I'm not Mr. Jones" and gave you no further information, you could just the same have said, "I'm Mrs. Gray. May I introduce you to Mrs. Brown?"

If he does not tell you his name let it go! Unless later on you have to introduce him to someone, you can then say, "You never told me your name!" Of course if he did tell you and you forgot, this is the awkward situation that keeps many a charming person from being a social success.

Meant to Be Polite

Dear Mrs. Post: The other evening my fiance and a girl friend of mine and I went to a restaurant for supper where there were booths. She got in one side and I in the other and instead of sitting in the same side with me, my fiance sat across from me with my girl friend. I sat alone. I thought he should have sat with me, and told him so later.

He contended the girl was our guest, and he sat exactly where he was supposed to under the circumstances. I didn't mean to quarrel about it and I'm sure he didn't either, but that is almost what it came to. Now just out of curiosity we'd like to know who was right about the booth?

Answer: It's very easy to understand why he thought as he did—in fact it might have been for two reasons. The first, you and he together would have shut her out so completely as to be discourteous. Whereas (in his mind) he could not have imagined you as shut out from this girl and himself. The other reason is that had you been married, the place he took would have been right according to etiquette. Even so—since you are not yet married, you were right.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "Restaurant and the Theatre." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage.

When you buy a Bond or Savings Stamp
Think of those boys at the front,
Those lads in the air, on sea, on land—
For they are bearing the brunt.
A few pennies here, a few dollars there
In buying a Bond or Stamps
Means ammunition and equipment to give
Those warriors of ours a chance.
So—go out and purchase a Bond or Stamp,
Buy without fail today—
Thus showing those lads of ours that we Are with them all the way.

In buying a Bond or Stamps
Means ammunition and equipment to give
Those warriors of ours a chance.

War-time reportorial technique: ". . . all occupants of the car were killed instantly but the tires were not damaged."

Woman—Well, there is only one part of it that doesn't make a noise and that's the horn.

A Detour is no respector of the condition of your tires.

Clarence—It says the man was shot by his wife at close range.

Policeman—Then there must have been powder marks on the body.

Clarence—Yes, that's why she shot him.

How About Your Tires?

You say your car does miles and miles on a teaspoon full of gas,
But what about your tires?
And shows amazing bursts of speed when others try to pass.
But what about your tires?
You say its hood has not been up since nineteen thirty-eight,
Upon its durability you boastfully dilate,
And it will last for three more years, you confidently state,
But what about your tires?

Friend—Do you ever pause and reflect on opportunities you have missed?

Man—No. It would be just my luck to miss some more while I was reflecting.

Dorothy — I'm through with Freddy.

Mildred—How come, dearie?

Dorothy—I heard him telling Bob that he had Ethyl in his automobile last night.

Father—I like that young fellow you were with the other night, so I asked him to dinner this evening. I told him to drop around in his business clothes.

Daughter—Oh, father! He's a swimming instructor at a nudists' camp!

'Neath a ton of sugar, under a rubber tree;
Let me rest in my new auto machine,

Man—My wife says if I don't stop going to night football games, she'll leave me.

Friend—Hard luck, old chap.

Man—Yes . . . I'll miss her.

German Prisoners In Canadian Camp Resist Reprisals

Canadian Officials Declare Time Magazine Broke Censorship Rules by War Story

Ottawa, Oct. 23 (AP)—German war prisoners at Bowmanville, Ont., attempted to resist reprisal shacklings on October 10 and submitted only after serious disorders in which both prisoners and guards were injured, the Canadian government announced last night.

Some of the prisoners, a statement by Defense Minister J. L. Ralston disclosed, barricaded themselves in their barracks and refused to obey orders until guards chopped a hole in the roof and sprayed them with a fire hose.

One prisoner was wounded in the leg by a rifle bullet and two suffered light bayonet wounds, Ralston said. He described other injuries as mostly of a minor character.

"Mild resistance" to the shackling order was shown at one other camp, but no trouble was encountered at any of the remaining 15 prison camps in Canada, Ralston added.

The shackling order was issued by the Canadian government as a reprisal measure after the Germans had announced that they had fettered 1,375 British officers and men captured in the Dieppe raid August 19. As Canadians made up five-sixths of the army force participating in that action it was assumed that most of those chained by the Germans were Canadians.

The story of the disorders at the Bowmanville camp was withheld from publication until last night with the object, it was declared, of preventing garbled reports from reaching Germany and giving the Nazis an excuse for further reprisals against Canadian soldiers now being held as prisoners of war.

Ralston's statement apparently was provoked by a statement on the Bowmanville disorders which appeared in the current issue of Time magazine, causing the Canadian legation in Washington to make official representations to United States authorities yesterday on the ground it constituted a serious breach of censorship regulations.

The representations asked a full investigation of the source of information on which the story was based and how it was transmitted across the border.

Canadian legation officials in Washington said their government took a serious view of the incident because it might lead to drastic repercussions affecting Canadian prisoners of war in Germany.

New York, Oct. 22 (Special)—Joseph Van Roy of Milton Road, Highland, receives approximately $3,300 from the estate left by his wife, the late Loretta L. Laura Van Roy, it was disclosed in a State Transfer Tax Department report filed in Brooklyn Surrogate's Court today. The remaining property goes to a son, Frank A. Laura, of New York. Mrs. Van Roy died February 15, 1942, leaving property which was appraised today at $35,990 gross value, $10,635 net, the bulk consisting of real estate.

RIO LIMITS TRANSPORT

Rio de Janeiro has limited transportation to street cars, buses, and taxicabs. Private motor cars are no longer seen on the streets. Taxicabs make only short trips, because they are rationed a trifle less than three gallons of gasoline a day. Many buses use diesel oil and may soon have to suspend operations.

The true sardine is not a dwarf fish, but the young of the pilchard—a species of herring.

German Prisoners In Canadian Camp Resist Reprisals

Canadian Officials Declare Time Magazine Broke Censorship Rules by War Story

Ottawa, Oct. 23 (AP)—German war prisoners at Bowmanville, Ont., attempted to resist reprisal shacklings on Octtober 10 and spbmitted only after serious disorders in which both prisoners and guards were injured, the Canadian government announced last night.

Some of the prisoners, a statement by Defense Minister J. L. Ralston disclosed, barricaded themselves in their barracks and refused to obey orders until guards chopped a hole in the roof and sprayed them with a fire hose.

One prisoner was wounded in the leg by a rifle bullet and two suffered light bayonet wounds, Ralston said. He described other injuries as mostly of a minor character.

"Mild resistance" to the shackling order was shown at one other camp, but no trouble was encountered at any of the remaining 15 prison camps in Canada, Ralston added.

The shackling order was issued by the Canadian government as a reprisal measure after the Germans had announced that they had fettered 1,375 British officers and men captured in the Dieppe raid August 19. As Canadians made up five-sixths of the army force participating in that action it was assumed that most of those chained by the Germans were Canadians.

The story of the disorders at the Bowmanville camp was withheld from publication until last night with the object, it was declared, of preventing garbled reports from reaching Germany and giving the Nazis an excuse for further reprisals against Canadian soldiers now being held as prisoners of war.

Ralston's statement apparently was provoked by a statement on the Bowmanville disorders which appeared in the current issue of Time magazine, causing the Canadian legation in Washington to make official representations to United States authorities yesterday on the ground it constituted a serious breach of censorship regulations.

The representations asked a full investigation of the source of information on which the story was based and how it was transmitted across the border.

Canadian legation officials in Washington said their government took a serious view of the incident because it might lead to drastic repercussions affecting Canadian prisoners of war in Germany.

Apple Week Proclaimed

Albany, Oct. 23 (AP)—As New York State Apple Week, Governor Lehman today urged increased consumption of the fruit as a "home front" contribution to the war effort. "The crop is larger than estimated," the Governor said. "Our present storage problem can be helped and orderly marketing encouraged by greater apple consumption on the home front at this time. We can thus save in the consumption of other foods in which there is an indicated shortage."

Highland Man Legatee

New York, Oct. 22 (Special)—Joseph Van Roy of Milton Road, Highland, receives approximately $3,300 from the estate left by his wife, the late Loretta L. Laura Van Roy, it was disclosed in a State Transfer Tax Department report filed in Brooklyn Surrogate's Court today. The remaining property goes to a son, Frank A. Laura, of New York. Mrs. Van Roy died February 15, 1942, leaving property which was appraised today at $35,990 gross value, $10,635 net, the bulk consisting of real estate.

RIO LIMITS TRANSPORT

Rio de Janeiro has limited transportation to street cars, buses, and taxicabs. Private motor cars are no longer seen on the streets. Taxicabs make only short trips, because they are rationed a trifle less than three gallons of gasoline a day. Many buses use diesel oil and may soon have to suspend operations.

The true sardine is not a dwarf fish, but the young of the pilchard—a species of herring.

British Enlist Advice of Labor

Workers Are Represented On Production Boards In Many Industries.

LONDON.—For the first time in British history a move is being made on a national scale to enlist the skill and experience of the men and women in the factories and workshops to stimulate output.

In practically all engineering factories the workers are electing representatives to joint production committees, writes Jack Tanner, president of the Engineering Union of Great Britain, expressing his personal views in an article made public by the British Information services. Formerly this had been the task of the managements alone.

"Workers engaged on the job had no machinery for bringing forward ideas," says Mr. Tanner. "Often they felt frustrated because they could see that things were going wrong, but were denied the right of helping to put matters straight.

"Now that the National Engineering Employers federation has followed the lead of the government and agreed with all the engineering trade unions on a plan for joint committees, on which elected trade union representatives of the workpeople will sit with equal rights with the managerial nominees, I confidently look forward to striking increases in output.

"My union recently conducted an inquiry into Britain's production effort. We obtained statistics from nearly 1,000 factories engaged on all types of war output, and employing some 900,000 workers. We found that where, prior to the national agreement, production committees had already been set up, they had succeeded in pushing up production at a far greater rate than in undertakings where no such committee was at work.

"A great deal of this increase was attributed to suggestions put forward by the workers, who had devised methods to secure economy in labor power, had proposed means for better organization in the factory and had taken steps to improve the training given to the vast numbers of unskilled men and women who are becoming increasingly responsible for handling the vast war machine being built up in the factories.

"I think it is true to say that many of the employers were amazed to find the wide range of knowledge among their workers. They have discovered that skilled engineers not only understand their particular craft, but have also mastered to a considerable extent the wider problems of their industry.

"I have dealt only with my own industry, but this form of negotiation and co-operation between employers and workers is by no means confined to engineering. Right at the beginning of the war, the trade-union movement secured a government pledge that no decisions affecting the workers would be taken without the appropriate trade unions being consulted.

"That pledge has been kept. Ernest Bevin, the minister of labor, has carried out the greatest mobilization of man power in British history, but he has done it all in full consultation with a joint committee composed of representatives of the British Trade Union Congress General council and the British Employers confederation.

"This industrial democracy has enabled employees, employers and government to work together through the stormy years of war. I believe it must be maintained and developed for the equally difficult days of peace. If we succeed in doing that, we shall have gone some of the way toward ensuring that the promises now being made to the people are realized."

House Member Declares 'Surprise' Awaits Enemy

WASHINGTON.—Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) finished an inspection of some of the "most secret of newest material" of the army and announced: "Believe me, the Heinies are going to get some terrific surprises."

A comparison of army ordnance and captured German weapons at the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds "clearly proved the superiority of American arms," said Thomas, a member of a house military subcommittee which has just finished an inspection tour. He said that the nature of some of the secret weapons "never has been hinted at publicly, and I know they will come as a complete surprise to the enemy."

The new carbine adopted by the army, he said, is "undoubtedly the most effective small arm in the world." The new weapon is being supplied troops which formerly carried pistols as sidearms.

Boys' Tapioca Barrage Alarms San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO. — A plane swooped low and residents found thousands of little pill-like objects on the ground.

Fearing some weird Japanese weapon, they called police. Laboratory experts studied the white pills and decided:

"It's tapioca."

SON NAMED FOR HITLER

After a minister in Bloemfontein, South Africa, had refused to baptize their son "Adolph Hitler," the parents persuaded the clergyman of their own church in Edenburgh, Orange Free State to grant their request. They stated frankly that they wished to honor the Nazi leader on South African soil.

Strict Economy Responsibility of Local Officials

Albany—The necessity for strict retrenchment on the part of local governments to avert future crises in their fiscal affairs was called their first responsibility both to taxpayers and their employes by James H. Moseley, president of the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey. Mr. Moseley's comment was made today in discussing a resolution adopted by the Board of Trustees of the Survey.

The resolution reiterated "to the responsible officials of local governments the necessity, for the national and local welfare, of so conducting public affairs that not one dollar of public funds will be spent needlessly or for any purpose which can be considered nonessential when measured by the need for money to pay America's fighting forces and to provide them with food, equipment and material for war."

The resolution added that strict adherence to such a policy "will constitute not only a far-reaching contribution to national financial stability now and after the war but likewise will be a constant incentive to civilian sacrifices and an important factor in maintaining civilian morale."

Mr. Moseley cited some of the financial difficulties which local governments—those of counties, cities, villages, townships and special districts—may expect to encounter because of conditions brought about by war.

"The imposition of vastly increased personal income taxes by the federal government can be expected, sooner or later, to make the ownership of high valuation properties such as large estates next to impossible. There has been a growing tendency for several years for this type of property, when placed on the market to be purchased by educational, philanthropic or religious institutions which can qualify for real estate tax exemption. When such property becomes tax exempt, the burden on the remaining privately-owned taxable property naturally increases.

"Extensive takings for war purposes by the Federal government will further increase real estate tax exemptions and in turn raise the amount of tax which the remaining privately-owned property bear.

"Retail business establishments which are obliged to discontinue operations for the duration will leave many vacancies and these can be expected at least to increase tax delinquencies.

"Still another condition which local governments must consider is the effect of rent ceilings, whatever their virtue as an instrument of price control. If property taxes increase but owners are unable to increase rents proportionately it may become uneconomical or impossible for owners of property operating on a small margin to meet the taxes.

"So much for some of the probable effects of war, as they can be forseen now, on real estate taxes which are the principal source of revenue of local governments.

"On the other hand, the other sources of revenue of these govrnments, state-collected and shared taxes and state and federal subventions, also are likely to fall off. The yield from motor fuel and motor vehicle registration taxes already has dropped because of gasoline rationing and the shortage of rubber. Subventions are likely to be reduced as the financial pinch on the higher levels of government becomes more severe.

"These are not the views of an alarmist. Occasion for alarm will develop only if local government officials fail now to heed the financial weather signs which are evident on the horizon. Some farsighted administrators of local governments already have begun to trim their spending sails in anticipation of what may be expected in the months and years ahead. If officials of local government recognize the prospects which the future holds and act accordingly, they will fulfill their first responsibility to both taxpayers and the employes of local government by preparing now for future financial stability."

Care Is Provided

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia has moved officially toward providing daytime care for children of a fast-growing number of women in war jobs. Declaring yesterday that the problem was "extremely difficult" but could be solved by sensible and constructive handling, LaGuardia named a committee of 14, headed by Welfare Commissioner William Hodson, to coordinate all efforts in the field. The action followed a report from Hodson, Health Commissioner Ernest L. Stebbins and Schools Superintendent John F. Wade, which said at least 49,200 New York city women were in war industries, while the city's 400 child care centers could handle only about 7,000 children.

I.J.B. Dinner-Meeting Held at the Coq d' Or

At the annual dinner-meeting of the I. J. B. held Thursday evening at the Coq d' Or, Max Oppenheimer was unanimously chosen captain; William O'Reilly, mate and Thomas Rowland, treasurer.

Gordon Fitzgerald, the retiring captain, introduced speakers who reviewed the activities of the club since its institution. Motion pictures of numerous successful events held by the organization were shown.

The eight members of the I. J. B., who are now in active service of the country, were fittingly remembered.

The membership, which is closed, is comprised of approximately 50 men, many of whom were the originators. The initials I. J. B. stands for Irish, Jews and Binnewaters.

Jail 50,000 Jews In Old Fortress

Sick Dying Like Flies in Underground Dungeons.

LONDON.—Fifty thousand Jews from Germany and Czechoslovakia have been thrown into the Austro-Hungarian fortress at Terezin and several thousand who are ill or charged with "criminal" acts are in underground dungeons where they are "dying like flies," a Czech government spokesman said.

Everyone sleeps on damp floors and each is given only enough food to keep alive.

"All hope for them has been abandoned," the spokesman said, adding that Jewish leaders in the Czech protectorate had received demands from the Nazis to prepare 15,000 other Jews for deportation.

The spokesman said the Germans had launched a campaign to exterminate Jews from the protectorate and that of 40,000 Jews formerly in Prague only 15,000 now remain.

The Jews at Terezin are said to include 7,000 young men and women who are forced to work on farms or build barracks. Outside fortress walls thousands of other Jews live in concentration camps where conditions are said to be "horrible."

A European observer said the Germans planned to exterminate the Jews, not only in Europe but throughout the world.

"Extermination is the word," he said, "with a little torture thrown in to gratify the higher nature of the metaphysical and mystical Germans."

He declared the Nazis had executed 2,000,000 Jews in the past three years and that hundreds of thousands of others had been deported from Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia and other European countries.

Too Much Salute, Not Enough Shoot, Say Indians

FORT DEVENS, MASS.—Indian soldiers stationed at this fort, itching to go on the modern warpath against the Axis, have one good-natured complaint — "too much salute, not enough shoot!"

That was the war cry among more than 1,000 tribesmen from Oklahoma, New Mexico and other states as Massachusetts observed "Indian day" in recognition of the aid the Redmen gave to the white pioneers of the Bay colony.

Since Massachusetts now has only a comparatively few of her own to honor, the presence of the Devens warriors gives the state its greatest population of Indians since the days of the Puritans.

Sea Gull Cricket Eaters Now Have Taste for Fish

SALT LAKE CITY.—The city's sea gulls are on probation for failing to uphold the dignity of their ancestors.

The birds have stripped all the goldfish from the pool around Sea Gull monument, dedicated to gulls which saved early Utah pioneers' crops from a cricket invasion in 1847.

Officials said the pool would be restocked to give the gulls another chance to uphold the usefulness of their ancestors. Until recently the birds did not bother the fish.

British to Penalize Those Who Destroy Rags

LONDON.—Severe penalties for those who destroy rags, rope or string were ordered today by the British government, ranging up to $2,000 fine or two years' imprisonment.

The ministry of supply said hundreds of thousands of tons of rags were needed as raw material to make equipment for the armed forces.

All rags, rope and string must be kept separately and not only must not be destroyed, but must not be thrown into garbage cans or refuse bins.

British Enlist Advice of Labor

Workers Are Represented On Production Boards In Many Industries.

LONDON.—For the first time in British history a move is being made on a national scale to enlist the skill and experience of the men and women in the factories and workshops to stimulate output.

In practically all engineering factories the workers are electing representatives to joint production committees, writes Jack Tanner, president of the Engineering Union of Great Britain, expressing his personal views in an article made public by the British information services. Formerly this had been the task of the managements alone.

"Workers engaged on the job had no machinery for bringing forward ideas," says Mr. Tanner. "Often they felt frustrated because they could see that things were going wrong, but were denied the right of helping to put matters straight.

"Now that the National Engineering Employers federation has followed the lead of the government and agreed with all the engineering trade unions on a plan for joint committees, on which elected trade union representatives of the workpeople will sit with equal rights with the managerial nominees, I confidently look forward to striking increases in output.

"My union recently conducted an inquiry into Britain's production effort. We obtained statistics from nearly 1,000 factories engaged on all types of war output, and employing some 900,000 workers. We found that where, prior to the national agreement, production committees had already been set up, they had succeeded in pushing up production at a far greater rate than in undertakings where no such committee was at work.

"A great deal of this increase was attributed to suggestions put forward by the workers, who had devised methods to secure economy in labor power, had proposed means for better organization in the factory and had taken steps to improve the training given to the vast numbers of unskilled men and women who are becoming increasingly responsible for handling the vast war machine being built up in the factories.

"I think it is true to say that many of the employers were amazed to find the wide range of knowledge among their workers. They have discovered that skilled engineers not only understand their particular craft, but have also mastered to a considerable extent the wider problems of their industry.

"I have dealt only with my own industry, but this form of negotiation and co-operation between employers and workers is by no means confined to engineering. Right at the beginning of the war, the trade-union movement secured a government pledge that no decisions affecting the workers would be taken without the appropriate trade unions being consulted.

"That pledge has been kept. Ernest Bevin, the minister of labor, has carried out the greatest mobilization of man power in British history, but he has done it all in full consultation with a joint committee composed of representatives of the British Trade Union Congress General council and the British Employers confederation.

"This industrial democracy has enabled employees, employers and government to work together through the stormy years of war. I believe it must be maintained and developed for the equally difficult days of peace. If we succeed in doing that, we shall have gone some of the way toward ensuring that the promises now being made to the people are realized."

House Member Declares 'Surprise' Awaits Enemy

WASHINGTON.—Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) finished an inspection of some of the "most secret of newest material" of the army and announced: "Believe me, the Heinies are going to get some terrific surprises."

A comparison of army ordnance and captured German weapons at the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds "clearly proved the superiority of American arms," said Thomas, a member of a house military subcommittee which has just finished an inspection tour. He said that the nature of some of the secret weapons "never has been hinted at publicly, and I know they will come as a complete surprise to the enemy."

The new carbine adopted by the army, he said, is "undoubtedly the most effective small arm in the world." The new weapon is being supplied troops which formerly carried pistols as sidearms.

Boys' Tapioca Barrage Alarms San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO. — A plane swooped low and residents found thousands of little pill-like objects on the ground.

Fearing some weird Japanese weapon, they called police. Laboratory experts studied the white pills and decided:

"It's tapioca."

The pellets didn't come from the plane; small boys had been using them in slingshots.

After a minister in Bloemfontein, South Africa, had refused to baptize their son "Adolph Hitler," the parents persuaded the clergyman of their own church in Edenburgh, Orange Free State to grant their request. They stated frankly that they wished to honor the Nazi leader on South African soil.

Care Is Provided

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia has moved officially toward providing daytime care for children of a fast-growing number of women in war jobs. Declaring yesterday that the problem was "extremely difficult" but could be solved by sensible and constructive handling, LaGuardia named a committee of 14, headed by Welfare Commissioner William Hodson, to coordinate all efforts in the field. The action followed a report from Hodson, Health Commissioner Ernest L. Stebbins and Schools Superintendent John F. Wade, which said at least 49,200 New York city women were in war industries, while the city's 400 child care centers could handle only about 7,000 children.

Strict Economy Responsibility of Local Officials

Albany—The necessity for strict retrenchment on the part of local governments to avert future crises in their fiscal affairs was called their first responsibility both to taxpayers and their employes by James H. Moseley, president of the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey. Mr. Moseley's comment was made today in discussing a resolution adopted by the Board of Trustees of the Survey.

The resolution reiterated "to the responsible officials of local governments the necessity, for the national and local welfare, of so conducting public affairs that not one dollar of public funds will be spent needlessly or for any purpose which can be considered nonessential when measured by the need for money to pay America's fighting forces and to provide them with food, equipment and material for war."

The resolution added that strict adherence to such a policy "will constitute not only a far-reaching contribution to national financial stability now and after the war but likewise will be a constant incentive to civilian sacrifices and an important factor in maintining civilian morale."

Mr. Moseley cited some of the financial difficulties which local governments—those of counties, cities, villages, townships and special districts — may expect to encounter because of conditions brought about by war.

"The imposition of vastly increased personal income taxes by the federal government can be expected, sooner or later, to make the ownership of high valuation properties such as large estates next to impossible. There has been a growing tendency for several years for this type of property, when placed on the market to be purchased by educational, philanthropic or religious institutions which can qualify for real estate tax exemption. When such property becomes tax exempt, the burden on the remaining privately-owned taxable property naturally increases.

"Extensive takings for war purposes by the Federal government will further increase real estate tax exemptions and in turn raise the amount of tax which the remaining privately-owned property bear.

"Retail business establishments which are obliged to discontinue operations for the duration will leave many vacancies and these can be expected at least to increase tax delinquencies.

"Still another condition which local governments must consider is the effect of rent ceilings, whatever their virtue as an instrument of price control. If property taxes increase but owners are unable to increase rents proportionately it may become uneconomical or impossible for owners of property operating on a small margin to meet the taxes.

"So much for some of the probable effects of war, as they can be forseen now, on real estate taxes which are the principal source of revenue of local governments.

"On the other hand, the other sources of revenue of these govrnments, state-collected and shared taxes and state and federal subventions, also are likely to fall off. The yield from motor fuel and motor vehicle registration taxes already has dropped because of gasoline rationing and the shortage of rubber. Subventions are likely to be reduced as the financial pinch on the higher levels of government becomes more severe.

"These are not the views of an alarmist. Occasion for alarm will develop only if local government officials fail now to heed the financial weather signs which are evident on the horizon. Some farsighted administrators of local governments already have begun to trim their spending sails in anticipation of what may be expected in the months and years ahead. If officials of local government recognize the prospects which the future holds and act accordingly, they will fulfill their first responsibility to both taxpayers and the employes of local government by preparing now for future financial stability."

I.J.B. Dinner-Meeting Held at the Coq d' Or

At the annual dinner-meeting of the I. J. B. held Thursday evening at the Coq d' Or, Max Oppenheimer was unanimously chosen captain; William O'Reilly, mate and Thomas Rowland, treasurer.

Gordon Fitzgerald, the retiring captain, introduced speakers who reviewed the activities of the club since its institution. Motion pictures of numerous successful events held by the organization were shown.

The eight members of the I. J. B., who are now in active service of the country, were fittingly remembered.

The membership, which is closed, is comprised of approximately 50 men, many of whom were the originators. The initials I. J. B., stands for Irish, Jews and Binnewaters.

Jail 50,000 Jews In Old Fortress

Sick Dying Like Flies in Underground Dungeons.

LONDON.—Fifty thousand Jews from Germany and Czechoslovakia have been thrown into the Austro-Hungarian fortress at Terezin and several thousand who are ill or charged with "criminal" acts are in underground dungeons where they are "dying like flies," a Czech government spokesman said.

Everyone sleeps on damp floors and each is given only enough food to keep alive.

"All hope for them has been abandoned," the spokesman said, adding that Jewish leaders in the Czech protectorate had received demands from the Nazis to prepare 15,000 other Jews for deportation.

The spokesman said the Germans had launched a campaign to exterminate Jews from the protectorate and that of 40,000 Jews formerly in Prague only 15,000 now remain.

The Jews at Terezin are said to include 7,000 young men and women who are forced to work on farms or build barracks. Outside fortress walls thousands of other Jews live in concentration camps where conditions are said to be "horrible."

A European observer said the Germans planned to exterminate the Jews, not only in Europe but throughout the world.

"Extermination is the word," he said, "with a little torture thrown in to gratify the higher nature of the metaphysical and mystical Germans."

He declared the Nazis had executed 2,000,000 Jews in the past three years and that hundreds of thousands of others had been deported from Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia and other European countries.

Too Much Salute, Not Enough Shoot, Say Indians

FORT DEVENS, MASS.—Indian soldiers stationed at this fort, itching to go on the modern warpath against the Axis, have one good-natured complaint — "too much salute, not enough shoot!"

That was the war cry among more than 1,000 tribesmen from Oklahoma, New Mexico and other states as Massachusetts observed "Indian day" in recognition of the aid the Redmen gave to the white pioneers of the Bay colony.

Since Massachusetts now has only a comparatively few of her own to honor, the presence of the Devens warriors gives the state its greatest population of Indians since the days of the Puritans.

Sea Gull Cricket Eaters Now Have Taste for Fish

SALT LAKE CITY.—The city's sea gulls are on probation for failing to uphold the dignity of their ancestors.

The birds have stripped all the goldfish from the pool around Sea Gull monument, dedicated to gulls which saved early Utah pioneers' crops from a cricket invasion in 1847.

Officials said the pool would be restocked to give the gulls another chance to uphold the usefulness of their ancestors. Until recently the birds did not bother the fish.

British to Penalize Those Who Destroy Rags

LONDON.—Severe penalties for those who destroy rags, rope or string were ordered today by the British government, ranging up to $2,000 fine or two years' imprisonment.

The ministry of supply said hundreds of thousands of tons of rags were needed as raw material to make equipment for the armed forces.

All rags, rope and string must be kept separately and not only must not be destroyed, but must not be thrown into garbage cans or refuse bins.

CAMP DAVIS, N. C.—And why, his companions asked, should Pvt. Joe Mendel go swimming in the surf with his trousers on?

BOSTON.—Festive Thanksgiving day tables were indicated by the New England Crop Reporting service.

The service estimated that there will be 33,786,000 turkeys raised in the United States this year, 1 per cent more than last year, and predicted a 756,000-barrel cranberry crop.

THEY BUILD WAY TO BUS

Four miners in Northumbria, England, found the bridge over the River Wansbeck washed out, and as that meant an extra two miles to catch the bus, they built a new bridge. It has a span of 120 feet, and was constructed in spare time.

British Welcome President's Wife

Press Conference Is Held at Buckingham Palace

London, Oct. 24 (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt arose early today and breakfasted alone in her apartment at Buckingham Palace as a crowd of sightseers, including many American soldiers, gathered outside the palace, hoping to see the guest of the royal family.

Mrs. Roosevelt's apartment in the palace was one of those damaged by bomb blasts some time ago and its windows are partly boarded over.

After leaving the king and queen, she spent a busy morning conferring on plans for her tour of Britain at war before leaving to give a press interview. The President's wife hopes to study the part which British women are playing in the war and visit American troops in the British Isles.

The two princesses were not in the palace when Mrs. Rosevelt arose this morning. They stayed in London yesterday until she had arrived by train after her trans-Atlantic flight and then went to their country home for the night. Mrs. Roosevelt had a long talk with them before they left.

Her unusually large conference, attended by more than 100 American and British reporters, was held at the United States embassy where she said she had been issued neither a gas mask nor a food ration card yet.

In response to British questions, she said it was "hard to say" whether or not there would be conscription of women in the United States and that she doubted whether prohibition would be brought back although campaigners had been active since the 18-year-old draft age question arose.

She was greeted personally by King George VI and Queen Elizabeth yesterday on her arrival at London's Paddington Station and then was taken to the palace amid the cheers of a friendly throng.

To make the welcome complete, Mrs. Roosevelt's son, Elliott, a lieutenant-colonel with the U. S. army air forces in Britain, dined with the royal family last night. He had been unable to meet his mother at the station because of official duties.

RICHES AWAIT HER

Riches that turned up surprisingly after Henry le Feaux died in the Free State a few years ago are awaiting an heir, it is revealed in Johannesburg, South Africa. His neighbor knew him only as a former school teacher, quiet and retiring. Eventually his estate proved to be more than $37,000, but he left no will and a search was made for his heirs. Strangely enough, no one has come forward to claim the riches, the source of which continues to be a mystery. Now the trustees, in a final effort to find an heir, have resorted to publicity.

BATTLES OF THE BALLOTS:

Ladies in the Race

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Wide World Feature Writer

Washington—Feminine politicos have tossed some neat (and gaudy) bonnets into this year's election scramble. In Connecticut, which has never had a woman representative in Congress, the "blond and brilliant" Mrs. Clare Booth Luce is the Republican nominee from the silk stocking fourth district.

The play-writing wife of Publisher Henry Luce won the nomination in snappy style by a convention vote of 84 to 2 over Lester Barlow, explosives inventor. Five other G. O. P. candidates withdrew from the race.

Mrs. Luce, an all-outer against the Axis, has charged the administration with talking a tough war but waging a soft one. She seeks the congressional seat now held by Democrat Leroy D. Downs, newspaper publisher and World War veteran.

A Roosevelt In Race

Mrs. Dorothy K. Roosevelt, sister-in-law of the nation's first lady, is the Democratic nominee for Congress from the 17 Michigan district. Mrs. Roosevelt, first wife of the late G. Hall Roosevelt, easily beat five Democratic opponents in the primary.

Down in Arkansas, there is talk that quiet little Mrs. Hattie Caraway is becoming the No. 1 political power of the state. The soft-spoken senior senator from Arkansas helped a former opponent win the junior senatorial nomination against the opposition of a strong state organization.

Already re-elected to Congress from Maine is Republican Margaret C. Smith, widow of the late Representative Clyde C. Smith. Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts, a veteran member of Congress, was renominated by the Republicans of her district.

Retiring from the national political scene is Miss Jeanette Rankin, member of the House from Montana, who voted against United States entrance into both world wars. Miss Rankin did not seek re-election.

Political Leaders Figure Eight Per Cent Ballot Slump

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 24 (AP)—New York political leaders, figuring their favorites' chances in the November 3 election, reckoned with a new factor today—a slump of about eight per cent in statewide registration from 1938, last gubernatorial election year.

In New York city, where Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., Democratic nominee for governor, seeks to overcome normally heavy upstate Republican ballots, some 12 per cent fewer voters qualified. The city total was 2,135,710 as against 2,433,976 four years ago.

Outside the city, where Republican Thomas E. Dewey looks for the support to send him to the executive mansion, approximately four per cent, or 112,000, fewer registered this year than the 3,125,900 of 1938.

This all adds—in figures supplied the Associated Press by county election boards, with only 21 of 9,333 election districts missing—to 5,149,821 qualified voters, about 410,000 below 1938 and some 1,800,000 under the abnormal 1940 presidential election total.

Dewey, in 1938, polled 617,000 margin outside New York city. He lost to Governor Lehman by 64,000.

Several counties embracing larger cities where Democrats hope for upstate strength this year show heavy losses. Many predominantly G.O.P. rural areas, with registration often non-personal, give totals nearly as large and sometimes slightly larger than four years ago.

Albany county, only upstate county to give Lehman a majority at that time, lists 2,529 fewer voters than its 1938 total of 137,491.

RAYS FIND BLOODSTAIN

Bloodstains are detected by making them luminous in tests conducted by John M'Grath, of the University of Dublin, Eire. The luminescence test is of special value in difficult cases, he says. A solution is finely sprayed on the stain and results in a marked bluish-white luminescence, clearly visible in the dark. It persists some minutes and is readily photographed. The older the stain the more marked and clear is the light effect. Slight stains, not discernible by the naked eye, became visible.

CAN MEN

No Matter What You've Already Done About Your Scrap Metal... Read This Now!

To win this war we've got to get more scrap, and you have the finest kind of scrap. You have it in the largest quantities. Your scrap takes the least work to prepare for the mills. Without your help, all the household scrap in America — important as it is — cannot stave off disaster!

So here's what you must do: Wake up to the fact that it's not enough just to clean out broken and useless equipment. We've got to keep going! Get out the stuff that's lying around because someone thinks it may be used some day.

Make this the absolute, unchallenged rule:
IF IT HASN'T BEEN USED FOR SIX MONTHS,
AND YOU ARE CERTAIN IT WON'T BE USED FOR THE NEXT SIX—SELL IT.. OR SCRAP IT!

This is work for the boss to do — no one else can give the final word. If it's machinery, get in touch with the manufacturer, to see if someone else can use it. If they can't—scrap it! If it's a pile of extra parts or fixtures, sell or scrap the ones you don't need. If it's heavy stuff that has to be dismantled—do it, even if it costs more than the scrap will bring.

Remember—you're not in this to make money .... you're doing it to save our Country from defeat!

Get your employes in on this. Listen to their suggestions—let them know you're in it all the way. But don't forget the real job is up to you! For if this job isn't done, if our community and all the others in America don't come through, steel mills will shut down. Then if we lose the war—what will the things you hoard be worth?

Stop for a moment and think of that!

WHOSE BOY WILL
FAILED?

Political Leaders Figure Eight Per Cent Ballot Slump

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 24 (AP)—New York political leaders, figuring their favorites' chances in the November 3 election, reckoned with a new factor today—a slump of about eight per cent in statewide registration from 1938, last gubernatorial election year.

In New York city, where Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., Democratic nominee for governor, seeks to overcome normally heavy upstate Republican ballots, some 12 per cent fewer voters qualified. The city total was 2,135,710 as against 2,433,976 four years ago.

Outside the city, where Republican Thomas E. Dewey looks for the support to send him to the executive mansion, approximately four per cent, or 112,000, fewer registered this year than the 3,125,900 of 1938.

This all adds—in figures supplied the Associated Press by county election boards, with only 21 of 9,333 election districts missing—to 5,149,821 qualified voters, about 410,000 below 1938 and some 1,800,000 under the abnormal 1940 presidential election total.

Dewey, in 1938, polled 617,000 margin outside New York city. He lost to Governor Lehman by 64,000.

Several counties embracing larger cities where Democrats hope for upstate strength this year show heavy losses. Many predominantly G.O.P. rural areas, with registration often non-personal, give totals nearly as large and sometimes slightly larger than four years ago.

Albany county, only upstate county to give Lehman a majority at that time, lists 2,529 fewer voters than its 1938 total of 137,491.

RAYS FIND BLOODSTAIN

Bloodstains are detected by making them luminous in tests conducted by John M'Grath, of the University of Dublin, Eire. The luminescence test is of special value in difficult cases, he says. A solution is finely sprayed on the stain and results in a marked bluish-white luminescence, clearly visible in the dark. It persists some minutes and is readily photographed. The older the stain the more marked and clear is the light effect. Slight stains, not discernible by the naked eye, became visible.

CAN MEN CALL YOU "SCRAP SLACKER?"

No Matter What You've Already Done About Your Scrap Metal... Read This Now!

To win this war we've got to get more scrap, and you have the finest kind of scrap. You have it in the largest quantities. Your scrap takes the least work to prepare for the mills. Without your help, all the household scrap in America — important as it is — cannot stave off disaster!

So here's what you must do. Wake up to the fact that it's not enough just to clean out broken and useless equipment. We've got to keep going! Get out the stuff that's lying around because someone thinks it may be used some day.

Make this the absolute, unchallenged rule:
IF IT HASN'T BEEN USED FOR SIX MONTHS, AND YOU ARE CERTAIN IT WON'T BE USED FOR THE NEXT SIX—SELL IT . . OR SCRAP IT!

This is work for the boss to do — no one else can give the final word. If it's machinery, get in touch with the manufacturer, to see if someone else can use it. If they can't—scrap it! If it's a pile of extra parts or fixtures, sell or scrap the ones you don't need. If it's heavy stuff that has to be dismantled—do it, even if it costs more than the scrap will bring.

Remember—you're not in this to make money . . . . you're doing it to save our Country from defeat!

Get your employes in on this. Listen to their suggestions—let them know you're in it all the way. But don't forget the real job is up to you! For if this job isn't done, if our community and all the others in America don't come through, steel mills will shut down. Then if we lose the war—what will the things you hoard be worth?

Stop for a moment and think of that!

WHOSE BOY WILL DIE BECAUSE YOU FAILED?

Two Movie Employes Are Ordered to Be Tried

Los Angeles, Oct. 24 (AP)—Two minor young movie studio employes were ordered to stand trial on charges of statutory rape against Betty Hansen, the 17-year-old Lincoln, Neb., girl who claims Actor Errol Flynn also assaulted her.

The two are Morrie Black, 22, and Joseph Geraldi, 20, bound over to Superior Court at their preliminary hearing yesterday. Arnold Knapp, 18, held on the same charge, was given a continuance.

Flynn also was to have been given a preliminary hearing yesterday on the statutory charge. However, his case was postponed until November 2 after a new complaint was filed against him, charging that he twice raped Peggy La Rue Satterle, 17-year-old night club entertainer, on a yacht trip when she was only 15. The November 2 hearing will be on both Miss Hansen's and Miss Satterle's charges.

In the occupied zone they have, already, threatened to use force to shanghai the Paris artisans onto Berlin-bound trains.

Against what still is the unoccupied zone, they have in reserve the terrible weapon of strangulation.

It is not necessary that they occupy all of France, to throttle the now-hungry nation. They need only to extend the band of occupation along the Mediterranean coast, and France is effectively isolated from the sea, her empire and the world. Marseille, greatest port of France and Vichy's last worthwhile port of commerce, would be in German hands; Toulon, last homeland naval base and whatever warships might be caught there, would lie under the swastika. German and Italian armies would meet at the Riviera border.

This would not take so very many of Germany's men.

Those in Vichy and elsewhere in France who were sincere in once believing their loyalty belonged to Petain would be trapped. France would be as surely sealed up as is Yugoslavia today, and the Germans would proceed to work their will as they would to any occupied, subjugated country.

So it is no wonder if "men of good will" in Vichy France, and they do exist, are seeking escape with honor. Soon it may be too late.

Talking Pictures For Halloween Celebration Here

A special showing of talking pictures is to be an added feature of the community wide Halloween celebration which will be held in the Municipal Auditorium on Saturday night, October 31. The Department of Recreation announced this morning that Henry Millonig, Jr., will show eight reels of talking pictures to close the program at the auditorium.

A great deal of interest is already being manifested in the Halloween program being set up this year by the Department of Recreation and American Legion. A full evening of activity has been planned by the sponsoring agencies, and children and adults are looking forward to spending this Halloween at the Municipal Auditorium.

In addition to the full program of talking pictures, the auditorium program will include a costume parade, stage entertainment, Halloween stunts, and costume judging. Prizes will be awarded for the best masquerade children and adults in the costume parade.

During the past five years that special community Halloween celebrations have been held under the joint cooperation of the American Legion and Department of Recreation, upward of 3,000 people, young and old alike, have participated in the parades and activities at the Municipal Auditorium. It is expected that this year's superior features will attract even larger numbers to the celebration. Parade plans are now being set up and will be forwarded to the principals of each of the city schools so that all the children in the city will know exactly where to go and at what time, in order to take part in the parades.

One parade is to be led by the high school band and will march from the Governor Clinton Hotel to the Municipal Auditorium. The other parade will be led by the American Legion Drum Corp and will leave from the downtown section of the city and parade to the auditorium. Both parades will begin at 7:30 and the program at the auditorium will start at 8 o'clock.

Two Movie Employes Are Ordered to Be Tried

Los Angeles, Oct. 24 (AP)—Two minor young movie studio employes were ordered to stand trial on charges of statutory rape against Betty Hansen, the 17-year-old Lincoln, Neb., girl who claims Actor Errol Flynn also assaulted her.

The two are Morrie Black, 22, and Joseph Geraldi, 20, bound over to Superior Court at their preliminary hearing yesterday. Arnold Knapp, 18, held on the same charge, was given a continuance.

Flynn also was to have been given a preliminary hearing yesterday on the statutory charge. However, his case was postponed until November 2 after a new complaint was filed against him, charging that he twice raped Peggy La Rue Satterle, 17-year-old night club entertainer, on a yacht trip when she was only 15. The November 2 hearing will be on both Miss Hansen's and Miss Satterle's charges.

in their attempt to "peacefully" turn France into a nation of share-croppers, stripped of its industrial skill?

In the occupied zone they have, already, threatened to use force to shanghai the Paris artisans onto Berlin-bound trains.

Against what still is the unoccupied zone, they have in reserve the terrible weapon of strangulation.

It is not necessary that they occupy all of France, to throttle the now-hungry nation. They need only to extend the band of occupation along the Mediterranean coast, and France is effectively isolated from the sea, her empire and the world. Marseille, greatest port of France and Vichy's last worthwhile port of commerce, would be in German hands; Toulon, last homeland naval base and whatever warships might be caught there, would lie under the swastika. German and Italian armies would meet at the Riviera border.

This would not take so very many of Germany's men.

Those in Vichy and elsewhere in France who were sincere in once believing their loyalty belonged to Petain would be trapped. France would be as surely sealed up as is Yugoslavia today, and the Germans would proceed to work their will as they would to any occupied, subjugated country.

So it is no wonder if "men of good will" in Vichy France, and they do exist, are seeking escape with honor. Soon it may be too late.

Talking Pictures For Halloween Celebration Here

A special showing of talking pictures is to be an added feature of the community wide Halloween celebration which will be held in the Municipal Auditorium on Saturday night, October 31. The Department of Recreation announced this morning that Henry Millonig, Jr., will show eight reels of talking pictures to close the program at the auditorium.

A great deal of interest is already being manifested in the Halloween program being set up this year by the Department of Recreation and American Legion. A full evening of activity has been planned by the sponsoring agencies, and children and adults are looking forward to spending this Halloween at the Municipal Auditorium.

In addition to the full program of talking pictures, the auditorium program will include a costume parade, stage entertainment, Halloween stunts, and costume judging. Prizes will be awarded for the best masquerade children and adults in the costume parade.

During the past five years that special community Halloween celebrations have been held under the joint cooperation of the American Legion and Department of Recreation, upward of 3,000 people, young and old alike, have participated in the parades and activities at the Municipal Auditorium. It is expected that this year's superior features will attract even larger numbers to the celebration. Parade plans are now being set up and will be forwarded to the principals of each of the city schools so that all the children in the city will know exactly where to go and at what time, in order to take part in the parades.

One parade is to be led by the high school band and will march from the Governor Clinton Hotel to the Municipal Auditorium. The other parade will be led by the American Legion Drum Corp and will leave from the downtown section of the city and parade to the auditorium. Both parades will begin at 7:30 and the program at the auditorium will start at 8 o'clock.

Dodgers Mum on Signing Branch Rickey to Replace MacPhail as President

Italy Dependent on Nazis For Much Material of War

As the Nazis drive toward Russia's oil, the toll of machines and materials is reflected in reports that Germany is moving Italy's industrial plants into the Reich and draining Italian man power to staff factories in the Reich, says the National Geographic society.

An obvious weakness of the German-Italian alliance is Italy's lack of raw materials.

Before the war Italy depended upon Germany for coal. Normally, she looked to Germany for about one-half of her requirements (about 7,000,000 tons a year); to Britain for a fourth. Much of the imported tonnage was water-borne. Britain's blockade put a severe burden on Italian facilities for movement of German coal by rail. Coal deposits in the Apennines and at the base of the Alps yielded about 2,000,000 tons a year. With the outbreak of war, Germany became virtually Italy's sole source of supply.

By subsidies Italy tried to become independent of foreign iron sources. This effort failed. Only one-fourth of the country's needs came from domestic mines, with the islands of Sardinia and Elba the chief sources. Imports of iron and steel from Germany have kept Italian industry going. German shipments of bars, rods, sheets and manufactures of iron and steel in a representative year amounted to $15,000,000. From Germany also came machine tools; agricultural and textile machinery, electric generators, motors and other apparatus to the amount of $25,000,000 in a year.

Soviet Kuban River Region Productive, Valuable Area

The Nazi war machine reported battering its way into the Kuban river region, south of Rostov, invades one of the most productive and valuable areas of the Soviet North Caucasus, says a National Geographic society bulletin.

The Kuban river long has been associated with the rough-riding, hard-fighting Cossacks, whose lusty songs and spin-and-kick dances have made them familiar around the world. Less colorful but more important are the region's fertile farm lands and rich petroleum deposits.

Rising in the majestic glaciers of the Caucasus mountains, the Kuban meanders for more than 500 miles before it reaches outlet in the shallow Azov arm of the Black sea. For the last half of its journey, the river flows generally westward through the open, rolling steppe Country of Krasnodar Territory—where nature offers few obstacles to enemy advance. The Territory, with its back to the Caucasus ranges, faces German forces from the Crimean peninsula to the west, the Ukraine to the northwest, and the recently captured Rostov sector directly north.

Producing More With Less

Despite his 75 years and the fact that he is operating only a tenth as much land as last year, George Renshaw of Cerro Gordo, Iowa, this season is producing 50 per cent more food than in 1941, according to the department of agriculture.

Explaining why he moved from an 80-acre farm to an 8-acre tract, Renshaw said: "A man my age can't do a lot of heavy farm work, but I figured I could produce more of the things the country needs in the war if I had a small place." With the help of the county supervisor for the Farm Security administration and an FSA loan, Renshaw found what he wanted. On the new place Renshaw is spending most of his time on beekeeping. He had 100 hives from his old farm, and with part of the loan increased the colony to 150 hives.

No Means Found, as Yet

Although it is well known that eyes become tired from work, especially when they have defects, no satisfactory methods have yet been devised to measure directly ocular fatigue.

About 50 years ago the suggestion was made that the rate of blinking might be a measure of eye fatigue, but subsequent studies have indicated that blinking is not a satisfactory yardstick.

Normal eyes do not tire easily, but eyes with uncorrected visual defects may often become fatigued before the working day is over. Ocular fatigue is measured in lowered efficiency, mistakes, accidents, and general discomfort of the entire body. Not infrequently fatigue in weak eyes is indicated by redness and soreness of the eyes, blurred vision and headaches.

Davis Informs Landis

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, has notified Rear Admiral Emory S. Land that the latter's speech recommending that "organizers" should be shot at dawn should have been cleared through O. W. I. Davis sent a note to the Maritime Commission chairman in forming him that his talk to the Investment Bankers Association of America in New York city Monday was in violation of President Roosevelt's order requiring that all speeches by policy-making officials be cleared in advance.

FRANCE DISGUISES OIL

Tunny liver oil as a substitute for cod liver oil is being enclosed in chocolate confections in France. Substitutes are appearing in Paris for medicinals and related products, owing to shortages. Mercurochrome has replaced iodine and vaseline has given way to derivatives of oleaginous plants.

Cardinal Official Seen as Likely Choice to Become President of Ex-Champs

With both parties failing to offer any reasonable proof about the matter, Branch Rickey, present vice-president of the St. Louis Cardinals, and the front office of the Brooklyn Dodgers, seem to be apart as another week comes to an end without the former National League champs signing a new man to replace Larry MacPhail, ex-president of the Dodgers.

Earlier this week Rickey flew to New York to confer with Dodger officials about this new job. But now the Cardinal boss has returned to St. Louis, still keeping mum on the subject. Various sources say that Rickey has been signed or will sign a Brooklyn contract soon to become the head of the Dodger club.

Before the 1942 World Series finished Sam Breadon, owner of the champion Cardinals, announced in an interview that he didn't feel as though he could lay approximately $50,000 on the line for Rickey again with the baseball future so uncertain. This was taken as a sure omen that Rickey would be elsewhere when the 1943 season got under way.

Weiss Drops Out

Friday another light was cast upon the picture when George Weiss, head of the New York Yankee farm system, declared that he had decided to remain with that organization for the time being. Perhaps Weiss may have an inkling of replacing Ed Barrow, the present Yankee president, if and when Barrow decides to give up that post.

It was pretty well established that Rickey and Weiss were the logical choices to take over MacPhail's big seat with the Dodgers. Both have been around baseball to know just about everything there is to know about the game. But now, with Weiss out of the picture, there seems to be some optimism that the Cardinal vice-president will soon leave that club and hook on with the former National League champs.

If Rickey is finally decided upon, and at this writing there is every reason to believe that he will, the Dodgers will practically be controlled by the Rickey family. Branch Rickey, Jr., is the Dodger farm system head right now and figures on keeping his job no matter who the final choice may be. Of course, if his father is signed to head the Brooklyn Dodgers, there should be quite a bit of harmony between the front office and the obtaining of players from farm clubs.

Meanwhile, things are pretty quiet around the Dodger office these days, especially after Larry MacPhail left. In the MacPhail days there was always something brewing. Now Jack Collins, business manager, sits around reading newspapers to see how Branch Rickey and the club's directors are progressing, while John McDonald, secretary, keeps a thorough check of all the odds on Rickey's chances of getting MacPhail's position.

Conn Is Shifted; Will Teach Boxing

Billy Leaves New York Camp; Joins Brother

Army officers said Conn will assist the athletic officer at the center and coach the post's boxing team. His brother, Jackie Conn, is stationed here now.

Rickey to Dodgers

New York, Oct. 23 (AP) — The World-Telegram said today that the Brooklyn Dodgers had reached an agreement with Branch Rickey that would bring him to the club as president and general manager. Formal announcement, the paper said, could be expected at any time. It asserted that a decision was reached at a conference of the board of directors and Rickey here Wednesday. None of the directors could be reached immediately for comment.

WILD PIG'S RAIDS ENDED

Raids by a veteran lamb-killing wild pig at Uruti, New Zealand, have ended at last. A party led by K. and E. Meuli killed it with three shots in the head. For several seasons pig-hunters tried to run down the marauder, which had done much damage. A powerful beast, its hide was one and a half inches thick. One of its fine tusks had been splintered in a recent fight. Because so many of the men who used to shoot wild pigs have been called into the armed forces, the farmers find it impossible to keep the menace under control.

U. S. SHIPS CAUSE BOOM

Influx of ships from the United States has brought prosperity to the stores in Tocopilla, Chile. The 24 hours loading required by many vessels put a heavy strain on working crews and store staffs. Housewives find that the new prosperity does not make it easier to purchase necessaries, as the city is poorly supplied with common foods such as meat and potatoes, while fruits and vegetables cost fantastic prices. As Tocopilla is almost the last port of call for coastal vessels most of what they bring is sold before they arrive.

"Y" National Scores

Norman Sande of the Clarifiers took the spotlight at the Y. M. C. A. alleys Thursday night in the "Y" National Division with a powerful 233 single game. Sande only bowled two games and finished with a 351 double. His 233 sparked the club to a lone win over the Knitters. Oscar Schaller, Jr., posted a 495 series for the winners.

Ray DuBois of Canfields No. 2, although his club dropped three in a row to Canfields No. 1, unleased a steady flow of pins and wound up with a 556 triple, with a high game of 198. R. Every of the winners had a 517 triple.

Another 556 series was registered by Seelbach of the Ertel outfit which won three from the Half Moon keglers. Seelbach rapped out a high 221 single and also a 334 for his pace-setting triple. Auchmoody's 372 was tops for the Moons.

"Y" American Results

After Norm Sande's nifty 233 single at the Y. M. C. A. alleys Thursday night, Roland Post of the Freeman No. 1 squad took a look at the same lanes Friday night and after having a miss in the first frame, settled down and pitched himself into a stellar 233 single. Post wound up his activities with a power-laden 586 triple with other scores of 176 and 177. Post paced the Freeman bowlers to three straight conquests over the strong Ballantine team. Low had a 476 series for the losers.

The "Y" Couples won two from the Pontiacs with DeWitt coming through with a 481 series on a high single of 183. Shults had a 457 three-game cluster for the Pontiacs.

Although the Electrol bowlers took high single and high triple honors, the Wonderly keglers captured two from that team. L. Watrous poured a 517 triple on scores of 176, 173 and 168. Jordan had a 519 for the Electrols with Humphrey coming on with a 180 high solo game.

Booster League Scores

Egbert "Joe" Maxwell topped the Booster League spotlight at the Central Recreation alleys last night as he sparked the Greene bowlers to two triumphs over the Unknowns. "Joe" started last night's activities off with a blazing 226 single and wound up with a 562 triple. Maxwell's other games were 192 and 144.

A. Berry of the Unknowns was the chief cog for the losers but his 549 series couldn't overcome Maxwell's ace-high kegling. Berry rolled an even 200 game and also a 210. W. Greene also came through with a 200.

Bob Tierney of Piepers took second place with a 539 triple and a 212 single game. Tierney's other scores were 168 and 539. Piepers won three straight from Worfs. W. Davis of the winners had a 524 series. J. Letus of the losers had a 455 three-game score.

Jakes won three in a row from the I. M. M. bowlers with J. Williams pitching out a 190 high single and 493 triple. Ben Marcus' 473 triple was tops for the losers.

Eichlers grabbed three conquests from the Hercules with E. Schaller rolling a 509 triple on scores of 172, 176 and 161. Neal Houghtaling's 189 single was high in the match. Ed Safford, who leaves for service soon, took high single for the losers with 167. His 431 also was high for Hercules.

Electrol League Results

In the Electrol League matches at the Central Recreation alleys Friday night, J. Abbott of the Grinders walked off with the high triple mark with his 543 on a string of 171, 194 and 178. J. Pelesky, also of the Grinders, had a high 209 single and a 533 triple. The Grinders, despite these marks, were beaten in two games by the Dispatchers. J. Burns was high for the winners with a 498 series.

Mike Provenzano, who has been working his way into headlines recently, also came up with a neat score for the Test Lab, three-game winners over the Office bowlers, with his 516 triple and high 199 single game. V. Freese of the losers posted a 513 triple.

J. Heidecamp, bowling with the Turrets, featured with a 441 triple and 173 single game as that club won two games. Barkow had 417 for the Accounting team.

The Automatics won three straight from the Maintenance with Neer rolling a 489 triple. Neer's 183 single also was high in the match.

Van Deusen, Mellow High

Herb Van Deusen and Earl Mellow bowling with the Mickeys in the Major Bowling League, ran up some enviable scores at the Central Recreation alleys last night. Van Deusen came through with a powerful 605 triple with a high game of 223 while Mellow, another of the city's outstanding keglers, blasted his way to a 602 series and a high game of 227. The 227 and 605 were high in the match against Hymes.

With Van Deusen and Mellow doing this kind of work, Mickeys won two from Hymes. Herb Whitaker also was a factor with his 565. Van Deusen's scores were 223, 169 and 213 while Mellow poured out 171, 204 and 227. Whitaker rolled a 210, and Joe Scholar of the winners had a 201. Bill Mergendahl of Hymes hit 561. He had an even 200 while Larry Peterson, Sr., blasted a 213.

Steve Fassbender's 595 three-game cluster of 198, 220 and 177, sparked the Trailways to a couple of wins over the U. P. A. team. P. Myers had high single of 221. Johnny Ferraro, anchor, hit 208. Phil Masters had a 526 for the losers. Larry Guadagnola's 203 was tops for the U. P. A.

Doblers walloped Grunenwalds in three straight with Harold Broskie in the driver's seat with a 582 triple. Orv Van Alstyne of the losers had a high 222 single. Broskie's scores were 220, 182 and 180.

Steins also won two from the Joneses. Nagiles had a high 224 single in the match while Al Kieffer of the losers posted high triple of 588. Burger had a 203 for Steins. Kieffer rolled 221, while Hod Spaulding and Ken Williams registered 202 singles.

Colonial Women's League

Once again the familiar name of Alyce Riseley takes honors in the Colonial Women's Bowling League. In the regular league matches this week at the Centrals, Alyce not only grabbed high single honors with a nifty 210 single but managed to walk off with high triple awards with her 522, just a pin higher than Rose Schatzel's 521.

Mrs. Riseley, leadoff for Cys, sparked that team to two victories over the Raimonds. Bea Coddington of Cys had a 506. Alyce's other scores were 116 and 196. Ennist had 418 for the losers.

Rose Schatzel's 521 triple, notably her 190 single, did the trick for the Joneses in three straight over the Zeroettes. Rose had other scores of 158 and 173. Evelyn Provenzano had a 505 for the winners.

The Imperials won two from Kaplans despite Bea Schaller's high single and triple honors for the losers. Bea had 194 and 487. Kruszewsk had a 422 for the winners.

Adelaide Gilbert's 162 single and 455 triple went to waste for Gils as they lost three in a row to the Chez Emile outfit. L. Winters had 448 for the winning team. Rosemary Weigand's 158 single was high for that club.

The All Stars copped two from Nekos with Charlotte Lapine hitting a 477 series. M. Mellert's 172 was tops for the losers. The final match found Lowerys winning two from Sams. M. Marabella had a 174 and 445 for the winners. Lois Tremper's 402 was high for Sams.

COINS GIVE UP COPPER

Germany is salvaging copper from coins withdrawn from circulation. It is estimated in Berlin that the original coins contained 4,378 tons of pure copper and that more than 3,000 tons can be recovered. Most of the coins used in Germany are of zinc, aluminum, silver and aluminum bronze.

Smoky City Gridders Meet Redskins in Big Game; Giants Play Brooklyn Team

By SID FEDER

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Unless the rarified atmosphere of the first division finally proves too much for them, the Pittsburgh Steelers have a chance tomorrow to tie for the eastern division lead in the National Football League's title race.

It has been a long time since the Steelers were anywhere within shouting distance of the top. As a matter of fact, not since 1936, when they finished second in the east, have the smoky city gridders even been on speaking terms with the select set.

But this year, sparked by a new set of backs, who know slightly more than one-and-one about offensive, the Steelers have knocked off three clubs in a row to climb up into second place in the east, and tomorrow they tangle with the Washington Redskins, the divisional leaders. If they can hand the "Skins" the same medicine they passed out to New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia in recent treatments, they'll be all tied up like a Christmas package at the head of the parade.

So far this year, the Pittsburghers have won three games, with only half the campaign completed. This is more victories than they've chalked up for any full season since 1937, when they won four.

Giants Play Dodgers

Sunday's tussle tops off a full league program of five outings, in which the pace-setting Chicago Bears, unbeaten western champions, figure to have things pretty easy against Philadelphia's fading Eagles; the Chicago Cardinals and the Green Bay Packers invade Cleveland and Detroit, respectively, and the New York Giants travel across the East River to tangle with their old Brooklyn sparring partners, the Dodgers.

Buff Donelli, the Duquesne coach who had a short term of trying to get the Steelers on the right track a year ago, looks back on last year now, sighs and says, "The line was okay, but, oh, those backs—; this year, it's different."

The major "difference" so far is a youngster from Virginia—all-America Bill Dudley. He has been the sparkplug of the Steelers' offense, and when he has tailed off a bit, there have been such others as Curt Sandig, a 170-pounder from St. Mary's of Texas, who has been another of the big National League rookie surprises this fall. Then there have been such others to take up the slack as Dick Riffle, the former Albright linebuster who is making his fifth season in the league his best; Joe Hoague, a six-foot-two 200-pounder out of Colgate, who has been doing mean things to enemy forward walls this season, and Andy Tomasic, a rapid-running Czech from Temple.

Sports Shorts

The National Football League's 1942 Record and Roster Manual, the only official publication containing complete records on professional football, has been made available to the public by The Sporting News at St. Louis, Mo. The guide originally was compiled by the National League exclusively for newspaper men and radio announcers.

The Pittsburgh Steelers' present winning streak of three games is three times longer than that of any other team with which Co-owner Bert Bell has been affiliated in his ten years in the National Football League. Bell owned and coached the Philadelphia Eagles eight seasons.

Don Hutson added another record to his long string of superlative performances when he gained 209 yards on passes against Cleveland last week. The previous record was 180 yards set by Don Looney in Davey O'Brien's last game in the National League in 1940.

Leo Cantor and Bill Hutchinson, a pair of rookie backs, will fill in for Tuffy Leemans until the veteran fullback is able to rejoin the New York Giants. Leemans suffered a concussion in the Bear game last week.

Ernie Pannell ends his major league career for the duration at Detroit this week. The big Green Bay tackle has been called up for an assignment in the Navy and will report immediately after the game.

Italy Dependent on Nazis For Much Material of War

As the Nazis drive toward Russia's oil, the toll of machines and materials is reflected in reports that Germany is moving Italy's industrial plants into the Reich and draining Italian man power to staff factories in the Reich, says the National Geographic society.

An obvious weakness of the German-Italian alliance is Italy's lack of raw materials.

Before the war Italy depended upon Germany for coal. Normally, she looked to Germany for about one-half of her requirements (about 7,000,000 tons a year); to Britain for a fourth. Much of the imported tonnage was water-borne. Britain's blockade put a severe burden on Italian facilities for movement of German coal by rail. Coal deposits in the Apennines and at the base of the Alps yielded about 2,000,000 tons a year. With the outbreak of war, Germany became virtually Italy's sole source of supply.

By subsidies Italy tried to become independent of foreign iron sources. This effort failed. Only one-fourth of the country's needs came from domestic mines, with the islands of Sardinia and Elba the chief sources. Imports of iron and steel from Germany have kept Italian industry going. German shipments of bars, rods, sheets and manufactures of iron and steel in a representative year amounted to $15,000,000. From Germany also came machine tools, agricultural and textile machinery, electric generators, motors and other apparatus to the amount of $25,000,000 in a year.

Soviet Kuban River Region Productive, Valuable Area

The Nazi war machine reported battering its way into the Kuban river region, south of Rostov, invades one of the most productive and valuable areas of the Soviet North Caucasus, says a National Geographic society bulletin.

The Kuban river long has been associated with the rough-riding, hard-fighting Cossacks, whose lusty songs and spin-and-kick dances have made them familiar around the world. Less colorful but more important are the region's fertile farm lands and rich petroleum deposits.

Rising in the majestic glaciers of the Caucasus mountains, the Kuban meanders for more than 500 miles before it reaches outlet in the shallow Azov arm of the Black sea. For the last half of its journey, the river flows generally westward through the open, rolling steppe Country of Krasnodar Territory—where nature offers few obstacles to enemy advance. The Territory, with its back to the Caucasus ranges, faces German forces from the Crimean peninsula to the west, the Ukraine to the northwest, and the recently captured Rostov sector directly north.

Producing More With Less

Despite his 75 years and the fact that he is operating only a tenth as much land as last year, George Renshaw of Cerro Gordo, Iowa, this season is producing 50 per cent more food than in 1941, according to the department of agriculture.

Explaining why he moved from an 80-acre farm to an 8-acre tract, Renshaw said: "A man my age can't do a lot of heavy farm work, but I figured I could produce more of the things the country needs in the war if I had a small place." With the help of the county supervisor for the Farm Security administration and an FSA loan, Renshaw found what he wanted. On the new place Renshaw is spending most of his time on beekeeping. He had 100 hives from his old farm, and with part of the loan increased the colony to 150 hives.

Although it is well known that eyes become tired from work, especially when they have defects, no satisfactory methods have yet been devised to measure directly ocular fatigue.

About 50 years ago the suggestion was made that the rate of blinking might be a measure of eye fatigue, but subsequent studies have indicated that blinking is not a satisfactory yardstick.

Normal eyes do not tire easily, but eyes with uncorrected visual defects may often become fatigued before the working day is over. Ocular fatigue is measured in lowered efficiency, mistakes, accidents, and general discomfort of the entire body. Not infrequently fatigue in weak eyes is indicated by redness and soreness of the eyes, blurred vision and headaches.

THOUSANDS DIG TUNGSTEN

Thousands of men are working wolfram and tungsten mines near Arrequintin, Argentina, to their capacity. Heavy demand for the minerals has caused opening of new mines and new records for production are being reported regularly from throughout the San Juan province.

LEADER DIES IN DUEL

Juan Caceres and Juan Maidana, leaders of their respective political parties in San Carlos, Argentina, fought a savage duel in which Caceres was killed and his opponent seriously wounded. Each was armed with a revolver and a machete and blood flowed freely.

Davis Informs Landis

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, has notified Rear Admiral Emory S. Land that the latter's speech recommending that "organizers" should be shot at dawn should have been cleared through O. W. I. Davis sent a note to the Martitime Commission chairman in forming him that his talk to the Investment Bankers Association of America in New York city Monday was in violation of President Roosevelt's order requiring that all speeches by policy-making officials be cleared in advance.

FRANCE DISGUISES OIL

Tunny liver oil as a substitute for cod liver oil is being enclosed in chocolate confections in France. Substitutes are appearing in Paris for medicinals and related products, owing to shortages. Mercurochrome has replaced iodine and vaseline has given way to derivatives of oleaginous plants.

Cardinal Official Seen as Likely Choice to Become President of Ex-Champs

With both parties failing to offer any reasonable proof about the matter, Branch Rickey, present vice-president of the St. Louis Cardinals, and the front office of the Brooklyn Dodgers, seem to be apart as another week comes to an end without the former National League champs signing a new man to replace Larry MacPhail, ex-president of the Dodgers.

Earlier this week Rickey flew to New York to confer with Dodger officials about this new job. But now the Cardinal boss has returned to St. Louis, still keeping mum on the subject. Various sources say that Rickey has been signed or will sign a Brooklyn contract soon to become the head of the Dodger club.

Before the 1942 World Series finished Sam Breadon, owner of the champion Cardinals, announced in an interview that he didn't feel as though he could lay approximately $50,000 on the line for Rickey again with the baseball future so uncertain. This was taken as a sure omen that Rickey would be elsewhere when the 1943 season got under way.

Weiss Drops Out

Friday another light was cast upon the picture when George Weiss, head of the New York Yankee farm system, declared that he had decided to remain with that organization for the time being. Perhaps Weiss may have an inkling of replacing Ed Barrow, the present Yankee president, if and when Barrow decides to give up that post.

It was pretty well established that Rickey and Weiss were the logical choices to take over MacPhail's big seat with the Dodgers. Both have been around baseball to know just about everything there is to know about the game. But now, with Weiss out of the picture, there seems to be some optimism that the Cardinal vice-president will soon leave that club and hook on with the former National League champs.

If Rickey is finally decided upon, and at this writing there is every reason to believe that he will, the Dodgers will practically be controlled by the Rickey family. Branch Rickey, Jr., is the Dodger farm system head right now and figures on keeping his job no matter who the final choice may be. Of course, if his father is signed to head the Brooklyn Dodgers, there should be quite a bit of harmony between the front office and the obtaining of players from farm clubs.

Meanwhile, things are pretty quiet around the Dodger office these days, especially after Larry MacPhail left. In the MacPhail days there was always something brewing. Now Jack Collins, business manager, sits around reading newspapers to see how Branch Rickey and the club's directors are progressing, while John McDonald, secretary, keeps a thorough check of all the odds on Rickey's chances of getting MacPhail's position.

Conn Is Shifted; Will Teach Boxing

Billy Leaves New York Camp; Joins Brother

Army officers said Conn will assist the athletic officer at the center and coach the post's boxing team. His brother, Jackie Conn, is stationed here now.

Rickey to Dodgers

New York, Oct. 23 (AP) — The World-Telegram said today that the Brooklyn Dodgers had reached an agreement with Branch Rickey that would bring him to the club as president and general manager. Formal announcement, the paper said, could be expected at any time. It asserted that a decision was reached at a conference of the board of directors and Rickey here Wednesday. None of the directors could be reached immediately for comment.

WILD PIG'S RAIDS ENDED

Raids by a veteran lamb-killing wild pig at Uruti, New Zealand, have ended at last. A party led by K. and E. Meuli killed it with three shots in the head. For several seasons pig-hunters tried to run down the maurauder, which had done much damage. A powerful beast, its hide was one and a half inches thick. One of its fine tusks had been splintered in a recent fight Because so many of the men who used to shoot wild pigs have been called into the armed forces, the farmers find it impossible to keep the menace under control.

U. S. SHIPS CAUSE BOOM

Influx of ships from the United States has brought prosperity to the stores in Tocopilla, Chile. The 24 hours loading required by many vessels put a heavy strain on working crews and store staffs. Housewives find that the new prosperity does not make it easier to purchase necessaries, as the city is poorly supplied with common foods such as meat and potatoes, while fruits and vegetables cost fantastic prices. As Tocopilla is almost the last port of call for coastal vessels most of what they bring is sold before they arrive.

"Y" National Scores

Norman Sande of the Clarifiers took the spotlight at the Y. M. C. A. alleys Thursday night in the "Y" National Division with a powerful 233 single game. Sande only bowled two games and finished with a 351 double. His 233 sparked the club to a lone win over the Knitters. Oscar Schaller, Jr., posted a 495 series for the winners.

Ray DuBois of Canfields No. 2, although his club dropped three in a row to Canfields No. 1, unleased a steady flow of pins and wound up with a 556 triple, with a high game of 198. R. Every of the winners had a 517 triple.

Another 556 series was registered by Seelbach of the Ertel outfit which won three from the Half Moon keglers. Seelbach rapped out a high 221 single and also a 134 for his pace-setting triple. Auchmoody's 372 was tops for the Moons.

"Y" American Results

After Norm Sande's nifty 233 single at the Y. M. C. A. alleys Thursday night, Roland Post of the Freeman No. 1 squad took a look at the same lanes Friday night and after having a miss in the first frame, settled down and pitched himself into a stellar 233 single. Post wound up his activities with a power-laden 586 triple with other scores of 176 and 177. Post paced the Freeman bowlers to three straight conquests over the strong Ballantine team. Low had a 476 series for the losers.

The "Y" Couples won two from the Pontiacs with DeWitt coming through with a 481 series on a high single of 183. Shults had a 457 three-game cluster for the Pontiacs.

Although the Electrol bowlers took high single and high triple honors, the Wonderly keglers captured two from that team. L. Watrous poured a 517 triple on scores of 176, 173 and 168. Jordan had a 519 for the Electrols with Humphrey coming on with a 180 high solo game.

Booster League Scores

Egbert "Joe" Maxwell topped the Booster League spotlight at the Central Recreation alleys last night as he sparked the Greene bowlers to two triumphs over the Unknowns. "Joe" started last night's activities off with a blazing 226 single and wound up with a 562 triple. Maxwell's other games were 192 and 144.

A. Berry of the Unknowns was the chief cog for the losers but his 549 series couldn't overcome Maxwell's ace-high kegling. Berry rolled an even 200 game and also a 210. W. Greene also came through with a 200.

Bob Tierney of Piepers took second place with a 539 triple and a 212 single game. Tierney's other scores were 168 and 539. Piepers won three straight from Worfs. W. Davis of the winners had a 524 series. J. Letus of the losers had a 455 three-game score.

Jakes won three in a row from the I. M. M. bowlers with J. Williams pitching out a 190 high single and 493 triple. Ben Marcus' 473 triple was tops for the losers.

Eichlers grabbed three conquests from the Hercules with E. Schaller rolling a 509 triple on scores of 172, 176 and 161. Neal Houghtaling's 189 single was high in the match. Ed Safford, who leaves for service soon, took high single for the losers with 167. His 431 also was high for Hercules.

Electrol League Results

In the Electrol League matches at the Central Recreation alleys Friday night, J. Abbott of the Grinders walked off with the high triple mark with his 543 on a string of 171, 194 and 178. J. Pelesky, also of the Grinders, had a high 209 single and a 533 triple. The Grinders, despite these marks, were beaten in two games by the Dispatchers. J. Burns was high for the winners with a 498 series.

Mike Provenzano, who has been working his way into headlines recently, also came up with a neat score for the Test Lab, three-game winners over the Office bowlers, with his 516 triple and high 199 single game. V. Freese of the losers posted a 513 triple.

J. Heidecamp, bowling with the Turrets, featured with a 441 triple and 173 single game as that club won two games. Barkow had 417 for the Accounting team.

The Automatics won three straight from the Maintenance with Neer rolling a 489 triple. Neer's 183 single also was high in the match.

Van Deusen, Mellow High

Herb Van Deusen and Earl Mellow bowling with the Mickeys in the Major Bowling League, ran up some enviable scores at the Central Recreation alleys last night. Van Deusen came through with a powerful 605 triple with a high game of 223 while Mellow, another of the city's outstanding keglers, blasted his way to a 602 series and a high game of 227. The 227 and 605 were high in the match against Hymes.

With Van Deusen and Mellow doing this kind of work, Mickeys won two from Hymes. Herb Whitaker also was a factor with his 565. Van Deusen's scores were 223, 169 and 213 while Mellow poured out 171, 204 and 227. Whitaker rolled a 210, and Joe Scholar of the winners had a 201. Bill Mergendahl of Hymes hit 561. He had an even 200 while Larry Petersen, Sr., blasted a 213.

Steve Fassbender's 595 three-game cluster of 198, 220 and 177, sparked the Trailways to a couple of wins over the U. P. A. team. P. Myers had high single of 221. Johnny Ferraro, anchor, hit 208. Phil Masters had a 526 for the losers. Larry Guadagnola's 203 was tops for the U. P. A.

Doblers walloped Grunenwalds in three straight with Harold Broskie in the driver's seat with a 582 triple. Orv Van Alstyne of the losers had a high 222 single. Broskie's scores were 220, 182 and 180.

Steins also won two from the Joneses. Nagiles had a high 224 single in the match while Al Kieffer of the losers posted high triple of 588. Burger had a 203 for Steins. Kieffer rolled 221, while Hod Spaulding and Ken Williams registered 202 singles.

Colonial Women's League

Once again the familiar name of Alyce Riseley takes honors in the Colonial Women's Bowling League. In the regular league matches this week at the Centrals, Alyce not only grabbed high single honors with a nifty 210 single but managed to walk off with high triple awards with her 522, just a pin higher than Rose Schatzel's 521.

Mrs. Riseley, leadoff for Cys, sparked that team to two victories over the Raimonds. Bea Coddington of Cys had a 506. Alyce's other scores were 116 and 196. Ennist had 418 for the losers.

Rose Schatzel's 521 triple, notably her 190 single, did the trick for the Joneses in three straight over the Zeroettes. Rose had other scores of 158 and 173. Evelyn Provenzano had a 505 for the winners.

The Imperials won two from Kaplans despite Bea Schaller's high single and triple honors for the losers. Bea had 194 and 487. Kruszewsk had a 422 for the winners.

Adelaide Gilbert's 162 single and 455 triple went to waste for Gils as they lost three in a row to the Chez Emile outfit. L. Winters had 448 for the winning team. Rosemary Weigand's 158 single was high for that club.

The All Stars copped two from Nekos with Charlotte Lapine hitting a 477 series. M. Mellert's 172 was tops for the losers. The final match found Lowerys winning two from Sams. M. Marabella had a 174 and 445 for the winners. Lois Tremper's 402 was high for Sams.

COINS GIVE UP COPPER

Germany is salvaging copper from coins withdrawn from circulation. It is estimated in Berlin that the original coins contained 4,378 tons of pure copper and that more than 3,000 tons can be recovered. Most of the coins used in Germany are of zinc, aluminum, silver and aluminum bronze.

Pittsburgh Steelers Have Chance to Tie for Lead In Pro Football League

Smoky City Gridders Meet Redskins in Big Game; Giants Play Brooklyn Team

By SID FEDER

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Unless the rarified atmosphere of the first division finally proves too much for them, the Pittsburgh Steelers have a chance tomorrow to tie for the eastern division lead in the National Football League's title race.

It has been a long time since the Steelers were anywhere within shouting distance of the top. As a matter of fact, not since 1936, when they finished second in the east, have the smoky city gridders even been on speaking terms with the select set.

But this year, sparked by a new set of backs, who know slightly more than one-and-one about offensive, the Steelers have knocked off three clubs in a row to climb up into second place in the east, and tomorrow they tangle with the Washington Redskins, the divisional leaders. If they can hand the "Skins" the same medicine they passed out to New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia in recent treatments, they'll be all tied up like a Christmas package at the head of the parade.

So far this year, the Pittsburghers have won three games, with only half the campaign completed. This is more victories than they've chalked up for any full season since 1937, when they won four.

Giants Play Dodgers

Sunday's tussle tops off a full league program of five outings, in which the pace-setting Chicago Bears, unbeaten western champions, figure to have things pretty easy against Philadelphia's fading Eagles; the Chicago Cardinals and the Green Bay Packers invade Cleveland and Detroit, respectively, and the New York Giants travel across the East River to tangle with their old Brooklyn sparring partners, the Dodgers.

Buff Donelli, the Duquesne coach who had a short term of trying to get the Steelers on the right track a year ago, looks back on last year now, sighs and says, "The line was okay, but, oh, those backs—; this year, it's different."

The major "difference" so far is a youngster from Virginia—all-America Bill Dudley. He has been the sparkplug of the Steelers' offense, and when he has tailed off a bit, there have been such others as Curt Sandig, a 170-pounder from St. Mary's of Texas, who has been another of the big National League rookie surprises this fall. Then there have been such others to take up the slack as Dick Riffle, the former Albright linebuster who is making his fifth season in the league his best; Joe Hoague, a six-foot-two 200-pounder out of Colgate, who has been doing mean things to enemy forward walls this season, and Andy Tomasic, a rapid-running Czech from Temple.

The National Football League's 1942 Record and Roster Manual, the only official publication containing complete records on professional football, has been made available to the public by The Sporting News at St. Louis, Mo. The guide originally was compiled by the National League exclusively for newspaper men and radio announcers.

The Pittsburgh Steelers' present winning streak of three games is three times longer than that of any other team with which Co-owner Bert Bell has been affiliated in his ten years in the National Football League. Bell owned and coached the Philadelphia Eagles eight seasons.

Don Hutson added another record to his long string of superlative performances when he gained 209 yards on passes against Cleveland last week. The previous record was 180 yards set by Don Looney in Davey O'Brien's last game in the National League in 1940.

Leo Cantor and Bill Hutchinson, a pair of rookie backs, will fill in for Tuffy Leemans until the veteran fullback is able to rejoin the New York Giants. Leemans suffered a concussion in the Bear game last week.

Ernie Pannell ends his major league career for the duration at Detroit this week. The big Green Bay tackle has been called up for an assignment in the Navy and will report immediately after the game.

Other officers are: vice-president, Patsy Scudder; recording secretary, Janice Hyde; corresponding secretary, Veronica Melonson and treasurer, Virginia Crawford.

Plans are now being made for the Tri-Hi Harvest Moon Dance. The committee consists of Hilda Brown, Virginia Dowd, Jane Hutton, Gloria Mayone, Veronica Melonson and Patsy Scudder. Dr. Frederick Stamm Gives Address To Kingston Hospital Nurses' Class

ing to know that the persons in their care have faith in them. He spoke of the influence a nurse may have on her patient who although he may not say so will long remember her attitude.

"More things are wrought by the mind, spirit and soul of man than this world dreams of," said Dr. Stamm in concluding his address. He urged the nurses to dedicate their minds and spirits to their profession in dealing with mankind.

Harry Flemming, president of the board of managers, presided at the exercises. He spoke of the increasing difficulties being encountered in maintaining the usual hospital routine. Many of the city's doctors and a portion of the nursing staff itself have enlisted in the service or are working in other fields. Mr. Flemming asked for the cooperation of the public in these times.

The annual report of the school of nursing was read by Miss Almena A. Porter, principal, as follows:

"Mr. Flemming, Dr. Stamm, Members of the Board of Managers, Medical Staff, fellow workers and friends:

"Both Science and Art are involved in most human activities. We will for our purpose consider Science to be accurate thinking on how things should be done and Art the accurate doing of things, intuitively. Some people have studied for years and mastered the Science of Music, but they give you no thrill when they perform with their instruments—we say they have no "feeling" for it, while a simple untrained voice may touch the heart but be unable to sing the more complicated and difficult numbers. Only when one has both do we find the Master.

"Jimmy Doolittle demonstrated in 1917-18 that he had the Art of flying. In 1924 and 1925 he received his Masters and Doctors Degrees in Aeronautical Engineering and his thesis proved he also had acquired the Science of flying—and in 1942 we heard of his Masterpieces.

"So it is with nurses, some have Art and little Science, some have Science and little Art. Both types render service of a sort but the one who stands on the pedestal, admired and loved by those she serves has both to give, the Art and Science of Nursing. Nursing Service and Nursing Education are so integrated and so interdependent it is necessary to think of and treat both in the same plan.

"Quality of Nursing Service surely depends on the standards of teaching given to the nurse as well as the intuitive desire to serve on the part of the Individual.

"Today the problem facing us all is how to maintain the standards with an ever decreasing Staff and an ever increasing burden of Service required. We have come to think in terms of Nursing Service rather than Nursing Care.

"Good Nursing Care means "carrying out properly of all necessary and vital procedures with the true Artistic feeling and Scientific accuracy."

"Nursing Service has grown to mean Nursing Care plus much more which in no way concerns the patient. May I list a few such activities? An increasing amount of clerical work—charts, records, charge sheets, reports and request slips. Often this work alone consumes the entire time of one nurse.

"Housekeeping — cleaning and supplies should be known and understood by all nurses but while doing this type of work her presence for actual bedside care of the patient may be sacrificed at a time when it is really needed.

"Care of flowers—serving food—answering telephones and attending to visitors are all a part of this Nursing Service, and consume much time and energy.

"Recently a busy nurse spent one-half hour arranging for a radio installation for a patient. In the meantime a complaint of "slow service" came in from another patient in a nearby room.

"We have changed our way of life in hospitals as elsewhere. A few years back an occasional small bouquet of flowers was a treat, now its not uncommon to have more than the room will accommodate. Visitors increased many times over with change in transportation.

"Ice cream and soft drinks became a "must have" for the convalescent. Radios and telephones are common in many rooms where a few years ago the telephone was only needed in Special Department offices. The busy nurse is now called many times a day, often from some distance, to answer a very unnecessary question or to be met by an irate voice of impatient waiting.

"Books, magazines, newspapers, toilet articles and gifts, are all a part of every bedside equipment in an ever increasing amount. The nurse cares for these articles and several times each day removes them from the table which is needed for "Nursing Care," and, as "Nursing Service" she puts them all back a few minutes later.

"The number and type of necessary and valuable nursing procedures has also changed, and it is now determined, that about 100 of these procedures which can be safely performed only by the nurse, are common in the average hospital.

"With the Doctors leaving for the service the ones remaining at home find themselves wishing to give over more responsibility and detail to the Nursing Group such as dressings, treatments and records all of which have grown during the past few years in an amazing manner. "Rounds" are made at inconvenient hours.

"If a maid or other nonprofessional worker is absent frequently it is the nursing department which takes over all or part of this work included in Nursing Service.

"Another change in our way of caring for the sick was the supplementing of the student service with the aid of graduate nurses known as "general duty staff." A year ago we had many of these valuable assistants but now as more and more nurses are taken into the service, and industry is calling on them once again to help care of their employes and more money is available for luxury nursing to the private patient, we are faced with a serious handicap—inability to maintain our staff. Experienced, qualified supervisors are very difficult to replace, yet we must expect some will leave for various reasons.

"To meet the rather disturbing problem as pictured there are several points to consider.

"We must keep our ranks filled and reserves always coming up by increasing our student enrollment. Student recruitment was an important part of the work done this year. Several talks were given in the local and nearby high schools—many students were shown about the hospital and special effort made to interest these young women in nursing. A class of 22 entered August 31—the largest class to date.

"We must be even more careful in our selection of students than previously and spare no time or effort in giving each one the best and fullest nursing educational program possible, that there be little or no wasted energy on poor quality nursing. The very best in material and effort is needed now more than ever, we must prepare them as quickly as possible. Waste no time that they may be ready when needed to meet all emergencies. We have kept this all in mind in reviewing our curriculum this year. We must keep our nursing group happy, contented, and healthy by good living and working conditions and adequate living salary.

"A "refresher course" was given last spring for graduate nurses who felt they wished to review and prepare for necessary duty. Some of these people have been inactive for several years but can now be very helpful if needed.

"We must help our nurses in all ways possible by simplifying the work whenever plausible and taking away from them the non-nursing tasks and supplying more non-professional assistants such as maids, attendants, clerks and Nursing Aides. We must all try not to interfere with serious nursing care of patients by making technical demands and time conserving requests, unnecessarily.

"Luxury Nursing Service may have to go, as more nurses are needed for the armed forces or if serious disaster comes to our locality. The nurses will, I know, do their best in this great time of need and give of themselves freely trying to maintain the true art and science necessary for good nursing care. Fourteen of our alumnae are now enrolled in national service. About 60 are members of the American Red Cross Nursing Service. Fifteen of this class are in Student Research which means they automatically become Red Cross nurses as soon as registration is completed.

"All but one have completed the course and received signed diplomas. Seven finished the three years without a day loss of time. They have excellent records as students and all but three have taken their State Board examinations.

"May they—each one—be endowed with the best in the Art and the Science of Nursing as well as the courage and the moral strength necessary to serve their country and fellow man in a most worthy manner.

"May I take this opportunity to thank all those who have contributed to our well being during the year. The Board of Managers and Miss Allan for their patience, council, cooperation and never ending interest.

"The Medical Staff have given most generously of time for teaching and in the care of nurses when ill during the entire year.

"Many friends outside of the hospital have added much to our comfort through gifts, entertainment and assistance of various types.

"The Alumnae Association and Ladies' Auxiliary stand by, ready to assist in any way called upon and do much to hold our school and hospital standards high.

"I wish to make special mention of a new group of co-workers this year—the ten young women of the American Red Cross Nurses Aide. They have given a very great and valuable amount of assistance in Nursing Care this summer. They have worked hard and with fine spirit. We do appreciate this very fine patriotic effort and I know of no more important or needed work for women of our country today than this volunteer service.

"The greatest praise and appreciation belongs truly with the nurses themselves—the class of 18, and 32 remaining students, the new class of 21, and those graduate nurses—all who have worked long hours and hard, often under severe emotional strain of the present day. They have done their best I am sure and are determined to carry through with faith, courage and anticipation of better days to come again."

Mrs. Isabel Watzka Nyulassy who was both president of the class and valedictorian, gave the valedictory. She spoke as follows:

"I cannot help but feel very proud tonight, as I know my classmates do, at having completed our three years' course at Kingston Hospital; for it was a course, taught and supervised, in such a way, that it ranks one of the highest in the state.

"And I think it is fitting now to express our gratitude to our nursing faculty for their great skill and patience in helping us succeed in our career as nurses, which is truly a noble one. Day after day, these teachers of ours stood by us, helping and correcting our problems, so that today the class of 1942 stands before you as graduates ready for whatever may be asked of us. And, also my classmates and I want to thank the doctors who, although in not as intimate contact with us, as our nursing supervisors, encouraged and guided us, lending a friendly word when it was most needed.

"How fitting it is to speak of the need of the nursing profession for, as we all know, the government cannot obtain enough nurses, for its urgent need of them today. Nursing schools everywhere have enlarged their classes to capacity, and students are being given more responsibility than ever before, because the graduates are embarked on more serious tasks, that of helping the United States in their fight against the enemy.

"Not only is the demand for nurses a great issue today, there is still another one of putting the nursing profession on a college level where it belongs. To cite an example of this, is Bellevue Hospital School of Nursing, that famous hospital where our class affiliated for six months. This school has been made a division of the College of Medicine of New York University. Even to our affiliation, our nursing staff has been most wise in selecting this old hospital for us, where our practice and teaching is completed to the highest degree. So now, we nurses, find our educational opportunity being raised again.

"Who knows, at the end of the war, perhaps, at long last, some brave person remembering all the glory and compliments bestowed on nurses at this critical period, and the great role they have played as they have always played, will suddenly reproach himself and others as to the long 12 hours they work, and the little salary they receive.

"Perhaps this matter of ethics which goes along with the nursing profession will be dropped as an impractical thing, and give to the nurse a decent livelihood.

"And so, tonight we are all gathered, for the finals, the graduation of our class, a class to which I am proud to belong, because each and every one has been most cooperative and always more than willing to do her share. And for that I want to extend my gratitude and appreciation.

"Tonight we are all as one, perhaps for the last time, because life as we know consists of many partings, so let us rejoice and be happy, happy that behind us silently applauding our successes or with tear-dimmed eyes sadly looking upon our misdeeds, are our parents. And for those whose mother and father have joined that "great beyond" be comforted that they are present tonight lending their silent blessing."

In conclusion, Mrs. Nyulassy read a short poem giving the resume of a nurse's life.

Sister Berenice Says Nurse's Aide Group Is Welcome

How very much the service of the Volunteer Nurse's Aide is appreciated in the local hospitals is apparent in this statement made by Sister M. Berenice, superintendent of the Benedictine Hospital. Sister Berenice says, "The hospitals of Kingston, the Benedictine and the Kingston, like the many hundreds of voluntary hospitals throughout the country, have accepted the challenge made by the United States Office of Civilian Defense in their appeal for rapid expansion of nursing facilities for civilian needs. Following the initial step taken by the national nursing organizations and the American Red Cross, the hospitals of Kingston have gladly given the Volunteer Nurse's Aides, the group recently formed by the Kingston Chapter of the American Red Cross.

"Due to the number of graduate nurses joining the armed forces, also leaving for defense industries, a serious emergency now confronts the members of the nursing profession and the management of hospitals. The assistance, therefore, of the trained Volunteer Nurse's Aide at this time will be more than welcomed to relieve the professional graduate nurse of some of the simpler nursing tasks for patients who are not seriously ill. The hospitals of Kingston, therefore, welcome the opportunity to take an active part in this laudable and practical work undertaken by the American Red Cross. The hospitals also make a special appeal to all who have been considering entering this group of Volunteer Nurse's Aides to register at once, so as to have some share in this valuable contribution to the Volunteer Nurse's Aide Service in the hospital during these serious times."

ing to know that the persons in their care have faith in them. He spoke of the influence a nurse may have on her patient who although he may not say so will long remember her attitude.

"More things are wrought by the mind, spirit and soul of man than this world dreams of," said Dr. Stamm in concluding his address. He urged the nurses to dedicate their minds and spirits to their profession in dealing with mankind.

Harry Flemming, president of the board of managers, presided at the exercises. He spoke of the increasing difficulties being encountered in maintaining the usual hospital routine. Many of the city's doctors and a portion of the nursing staff itself have enlisted in the service or are working in other fields. Mr. Flemming asked for the cooperation of the public in these times.

The annual report of the school of nursing was read by Miss Almena A. Porter, principal, as follows:

"Mr. Flemming, Dr. Stamm, Members of the Board of Managers, Medical Staff, fellow workers and friends:

"Both Science and Art are involved in most human activities. We will for our purpose consider Science to be accurate thinking on how things should be done and Art the accurate doing of things, intuitively. Some people have studied for years and mastered the Science of Music, but they give you no thrill when they perform with their instruments—we say they have no "feeling" for it, while a simple untrained voice may touch the heart but be unable to sing the more complicated and difficult numbers. Only when one has both do we find the Master.

"Jimmy Doolittle demonstrated in 1917-18 that he had the Art of flying. In 1924 and 1925 he received his Masters and Doctors Degrees in Aeronautical Engineering and his thesis proved he also had acquired the Science of flying—and in 1942 we heard of his Masterpieces.

"So it is with nurses, some have Art and little Science, some have Science and little Art. Both types render service of a sort but the one who stands on the pedestal, admired and loved by those she serves has both to give, the Art and Science of Nursing. Nursing Service and Nursing Education are so integrated and so interdependent it is necessary to think of and treat both in the same plan.

"Quality of Nursing Service surely depends on the standards of teaching given to the nurse as well as the intuitive desire to serve on the part of the Individual.

"Today the problem facing us all is how to maintain the standards with an ever decreasing Staff and an ever increasing burden of Service required. We have come to think in terms of Nursing Service rather than Nursing Care.

"Good Nursing Care means "carrying out properly of all necessary and vital procedures with the true Artistic feeling and Scientific accuracy."

"Nursing Service has grown to mean Nursing Care plus much more which in no way concerns the patient. May I list a few such activities? An increasing amount of clerical work—charts, records, charge sheets, reports and request slips. Often this work alone consumes the entire time of one nurse.

"Housekeeping — cleaning and supplies should be known and understood by all nurses but while doing this type of work her presence for actual bedside care of the patient may be sacrificed at a time when it is really needed.

"Care of flowers—serving food —answering telephones and attending to visitors are all a part of this Nursing Service, and consume much time and energy.

"Recently a busy nurse spent one-half hour arranging for a radio installation for a patient. In the meantime a complaint of "slow service" came in from another patient in a nearby room.

"We have changed our way of life in hospitals as elsewhere. A few years back an occasional small bouquet of flowers was a treat, now its not uncommon to have more than the room will accommodate. Visitors increased many times over with change in transportation.

"Ice cream and soft drinks became a "must have" for the convalescent. Radios and telephones are common in many rooms where a few years ago the telephone was only needed in Special Department offices. The busy nurse is now called many times a day, often from some distance, to answer a very unnecessary question or to be met by an irate voice of impatient waiting.

"Books, magazines, newspapers, toilet articles and gifts, are all a part of every bedside equipment in an ever increasing amount. The nurse cares for these articles and several times each day removes them from the table which is needed for "Nursing Care," and, as "Nursing Service" she puts them all back a few minutes later.

"The number and type of necessary and valuable nursing procedures has also changed, and it is now determined, that about 100 of these procedures which can be safely performed only by the nurse, are common in the average hospital.

"With the Doctors leaving for the service the ones remaining at home find themselves wishing to give over more responsibility and detail to the Nursing Group such as dressings, treatments and records all of which have grown during the past few years in an amazing manner. "Rounds" are made at inconvenient hours.

"If a maid or other nonprofessional worker is absent frequently it is the nursing department which takes over all or part of this work included in Nursing Service.

"Another change in our way of caring for the sick was the supplementing of the student service with the aid of graduate nurses known as "general duty staff." A year ago we had many of these valuable assistants but now as more and more nurses are taken into the service, and industry is calling on them once again to help care of their employes and more money is available for luxury nursing to the private patient, we are faced with a serious handicap —inability to maintain our staff. Experienced, qualified supervisors are very difficult to replace, yet we must expect some will leave for various reasons.

"To meet the rather disturbing problem as pictured there are several points to consider.

"We must keep our ranks filled and reserves always coming up by increasing our student enrollment. Student recruitment was an important part of the work done this year. Several talks were given in the local and nearby high schools—many students were shown about the hospital and special effort made to interest these young women in nursing. A class of 22 entered August 31—the largest class to date.

"We must be even more careful in our selection of students than previously and spare no time or effort in giving each one the best and fullest nursing educational program possible, that there be little or no wasted energy on poor quality nursing. The very best in material and effort is needed now more than ever, we must prepare them as quickly as possible. Waste no time that they may be ready when needed to meet all emergencies. We have kept this all in mind in reviewing our curriculum this year. We must keep our nursing group happy, contented, and healthy by good living and working conditions and adequate living salary.

"A "refresher course" was given last spring for graduate nurses who felt they wished to review and prepare for necessary duty. Some of these people have been inactive for several years but can now be very helpful if needed.

"We must help our nurses in all ways possible by simplifying the work whenever plausible and taking away from them the non-nursing tasks and supplying more non-professional assistants such as maids, attendants, clerks and Nursing Aides. We must all try not to interfere with serious nursing care of patients by making technical demands and time conserving requests, unnecessarily.

"Luxury Nursing Service may have to go, as more nurses are needed for the armed forces or if serious disaster comes to our locality. The nurses will, I know, do their best in this great time of need and give of themselves freely trying to maintain the true art and science necessary for good nursing care. Fourteen of our alumnae are now enrolled in national service. About 60 are members of the American Red Cross Nursing Service. Fifteen of this class are in Student Research which means they automatically become Red Cross nurses as soon as registration is completed.

"All but one have completed the course and received signed diplomas. Seven finished the three years without a day loss of time. They have excellent records as students and all but three have taken their State Board examinations.

"May they—each one—be endowed with the best in the Art and the Science of Nursing as well as the courage and the moral strength necessary to serve their country and fellow man in a most worthy manner.

"May I take this opportunity to thank all those who have contributed to our well being during the year. The Board of Managers and Miss Allan for their patience, council, cooperation and never ending interest.

"The Medical Staff have given most generously of time for teaching and in the care of nurses when ill during the entire year.

"Many friends outside of the hospital have added much to our comfort through gifts, entertainment and assistance of various types.

"The Alumnae Association and Ladies' Auxiliary stand by, ready to assist in any way called upon and do much to hold our school and hospital standards high.

"I wish to make special mention of a new group of co-workers this year—the ten young women of the American Red Cross Nurses Aide. They have given a very great and valuable amount of assistance in Nursing Care this summer. They have worked hard and with fine spirit. We do appreciate this very fine patriotic effort and I know of no more important or needed work for women of our country today than this volunteer service.

"The greatest praise and appreciation belongs truly with the nurses themselves—the class of 18, and 32 remaining students, the new class of 21, and those graduate nurses—all who have worked long hours and hard, often under severe emotional strain of the present day. They have done their best I am sure and are determined to carry through with faith, courage and anticipation of better days to come again."

Mrs. Isabel Watzka Nyulassy who was both president of the class and valedictorian, gave the valedictory. She spoke as follows:

"I cannot help but feel very proud tonight, as I know my classmates do, at having completed our three years' course at Kingston Hospital; for it was a course, taught and supervised, in such a way, that it ranks one of the highest in the state.

"And I think it is fitting now to express our gratitude to our nursing faculty for their great skill and patience in helping us succeed in our career as nurses, which is truly a noble one. Day after day, these teachers of ours stood by us, helping and correcting our problems, so that today the class of 1942 stands before you as graduates ready for whatever may be asked of us. And, also my classmates and I want to thank the doctors who, although in not as intimate contact with us, as our nursing supervisors, encouraged and guided us, lending a friendly word when it was most needed.

"How fitting it is to speak of the need of the nursing profession for, as we all know, the government cannot obtain enough nurses, for its urgent need of them today. Nursing schools everywhere have enlarged their classes to capacity, and students are being given more responsibility than ever before, because the graduates are embarked on more serious tasks, that of helping the United States in their fight against the enemy.

"Not only is the demand for nurses a great issue today, there is still another one of putting the nursing profession on a college level where it belongs. To cite an example of this, is Bellevue Hospital School of Nursing, that famous hospital where our class affiliated for six months. This school has been made a division of the College of Medicine of New York University. Even to our affiliation, our nursing staff has been most wise in selecting this old hospital for us, where our practice and teaching is completed to the highest degree. So now, we nurses, find our educational opportunity being raised again.

"Who knows, at the end of the war, perhaps, at long last, some brave person remembering all the glory and compliments bestowed on nurses at this critical period, and the great role they have played as they have always played, will suddenly reproach himself and others as to the long 12 hours they work, and the little salary they receive.

"Perhaps this matter of ethics which goes along with the nursing profession will be dropped as an impractical thing, and give to the nurse a decent livelihood.

"And so, tonight we are all gathered, for the finals, the graduation of our class, a class to which I am proud to belong, because each and every one has been most cooperative and always more than willing to do her share. And for that I want to extend my gratitude and appreciation.

"Tonight we are all as one, perhaps for the last time, because life as we know consists of many partings, so let us rejoice and be happy, happy that behind us silently applauding our successes or with tear-dimmed eyes sadly looking upon our misdeeds, are our parents. And for those whose mother and father have joined that "great beyond" be comforted that they are present tonight lending their silent blessing."

In conclusion, Mrs. Nyulassy read a short poem giving the resume of a nurse's life.
